2 FLIERS SLEEP AT BREMEN AS 100,000 AWAIT

Copenhagen Disappointed by Hillig's Landing in Germany.

LAST 240-MILE LEG TO BE FLOWN TODAY

Halt for Night Is Surprise as Americans Return After Passing.

Bremen, Germany, June 25 (A.P.). Otto Hillig and Holger Hoirlis, the second pair of American transatlantic fliers to land in Germany in two days, came down at Bremen at 9:40 o'clock tonight, 240 miles short of Copenhagen, the goal of their flight across the ocean.

They were utterly exhausted and Hoirlis was on the verge of collapse from the strain of keeping the ship aloft for more than 32 hours.

Hillig, after a telephone conversation with the chairman of the reception committee awaiting them at Copenhagen, wanted to go on to Denmark with another pilot who knew the way, but Hoirlis insisted he would be able to start in the morning, so both fliers went to bed, leaving orders that they were not to be disturbed.

Bremen Landing Is Surprise.

Before they turned in they said they wanted to get off for Copenhagen, a flight of about 240 miles, at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning (5 a. m. E. S. T.).

The landing at Bremen was a complete surprise, for at 8:40 p. m. their monoplane, "Liberty," was sighted over the city headed toward Copenhagen from Krefeld, where they had come down to get their bearings earlier in the evening.

It was 9:40 p. m. when the drone of the "Liberty" was heard again and the plane circled the city before coming down at the airport.

Neither flier was in any condition to talk about details, but it was understood that somewhere between here and Copenhagen they had decided to turn back rather than take the risk of flying on through the night while both of them were utterly fatigued.

100,000 Wait at Airport.

A few minutes after the landing Hillig was on the telephone talking to the chairman of the reception committee waiting for them at Copenhagen. The chairman urged them to come on because 100,000 people were at the airport waiting to greet them and Hillig said he would start immediately.

Hoirlis demurred, however, and Hillig agreed to postpone the last leg of the flight until morning.

The halt at Bremen was the second interruption of the flight which was to have been a nonstop trip from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Copenhagen, where the families of both fliers are waiting for them.

At 5:30 p. m., after long hours in which the most sanguine had almost given up hope, the Liberty dropped out of the sky at Krefeld, about 160 miles south of here.

Only Five Gallons of Gas.

It was lucky for them, as it turned out, for they had only five gallons of gasoline left when their wheels rolled across the turf at the Krefeld airdrome.

Even so, they could not hide their disappointment at not having reached their goal, and they stayed just long enough to eat a couple of sandwiches drain a stein of beer apiece and refuel.

Between bites they told airport officials they had come through the worst weather imaginable across the ocean, flying at more than 12,000 feet for long stretches above the clouds.

Through a rift in the heavy cloudbanks they sighted land which they took to be Spain and kept on across France in good weather, spotting the landing field at Krefeld just in time.

Their speed averaged better than 100 miles an hour all the way.

When the hum of their motor turned Bremen's eyes toward the sky tonight the plane could be seen flying along the Weser River. It made a wide loop over the city and struck

Princess Helene Is Ill From Drug

Divorced Wife of King Carol Reported Taking Opiate by Mistake.

London, June 25 (U.P.).—The Daily Express received private advices from Bucharest tonight saying Princess Helene, divorced wife of King Carol, was ill, due to an overdose of veronal.

The overdose was said to have been taken accidentally as the result of a mistake in selecting a medicine bottle from several bottles on her dressing table.

Princess Helene, who refused to accept a place on the Roumanian throne after the return of her former husband from exile, recently has been reported planning to leave Roumania. It also has been reported that Mme. Lupescu, with whom Carol lived, in France, had returned to Bucharest and was exerting a strong influence on the king.

5,300,000 JOBLESS, LABOR CHIEF CLAIMS

Summer Decline Has More Than Offset Gains of Spring, Green Asserts.

(Associated Press.)

An estimate that unemployment has increased by over 150,000 persons since May and that there are now approximately 5,300,000 jobless in this country was made last night by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Trade union unemployment reports for the first half of June confirm labor's warning of last month that we might expect worse unemployment in the summer dull season," Green said in a statement. "Union records for a representative group of wage earners, covering 24 cities in all parts of the country, show an increase in the number out of work in industry.

"This increase cancels all the gains since March and unemployment is again at the March level. The number hired by farmers has not been enough to offset the layoffs in industry."

Green estimated workers have lost $3,500,000,000 from unemployment alone since January 1, and added that while "unquestionably there has been an attempt to give workers at least part time jobs," the effort to prevent layoffs "has not extended far enough."

Indorsing plans of the President's emergency employment committee to prepare now for jobless relief work next winter, Green said "it is not enough to provide for relief," and "the employer who lays off his men and allows them to depend on relief from charity is shirking his duty in this crisis."

"From March to May," he said, "employment in trade and industry had been gaining at the rate of five-tenth of 1 per cent of the workers, according to our figures from trade unions. But in June the trend was reversed and the number out of work increased by 1 per cent. Union reports show 18.3 per cent out of work in the first half of June (weighted figures), compared to 17.1 per cent in May and 18.1 in March.

Green described the report as "discouraging," since "in normal years, employment for workers in general improves from May to June."

Douglas Fairbanks Aids Pair Hurt in Car Wreck

Los Angeles, Calif., June 25 (A.P.). Douglas Fairbanks, film actor, today rescued Mr. and Mrs. Melville L. Van Duersen, of Hillside, N. J., from an automobile wreck.

The actor saw two automobiles collide and one overturn. He ran to the machine, dropped through a shattered window and extricated Mr. and Mrs. Van Duersen and then ran to a telephone and summoned a police ambulance. Mr. and Mrs. Van Duersen were seriously hurt and physicians believed Mrs. Van Duersen had suffered internal injuries. Occupants of the other automobile escaped injury.

Post and Gatty Take Air for Siberian Flight After Short Rest.

Moscow (Friday), June 26 (U.P.).—The American fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, arrived late yesterday from Berlin, rested a few hours and departed in the white monoplane Winnie Mae, at 5 o'clock this morning (9 p. m. Thursday, Eastern standard time) on the Siberian stage of their flight around the world.

The speedy plane was headed over the Urals, across the desolate and often dangerous regions of the interior, toward Novosibirsk and Irkutsk, some 2,600 miles away. They expected to complete the longest stage of their journey by tonight.

Moscow, June 25 (A.P.).—The American airmen, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, reached Moscow today, 60½ hours after hopping off from New York on their attempt to set a new round-the-world speed record.

The fliers settled their little airplane down at October Airdrome in a perfect landing at 5:30 p. m. (10:30 a. m. Eastern standard time) and were greeted cordially by Soviet and civil aviation officials.

Leaving their machine to be refueled, they went to a hotel to rest and later to be honor guests at a banquet.

Both men were in excellent condition, apparently unwearied by the flight of more than 900 miles from Berlin, which they accomplished in slighty more than eight hours, despite fog and rain over Poland.

They expressed confidence they would reach New York again in less than the scheduled ten days. They expected to arrive at Nome June 28.

Post, who is pilot, and Gatty, navigator and radio man, were shy at the effusive greeting extended by officials of the Asoaviakhim, or Soviet Society for the Development of Aviation, and were reticent concerning their experience.

When airdrome authorities expressed astonishment at the willingness of the airmen to attempt the difficult crossing of the Ural mountains during the night, Post said with a broad Oklahoma drawl:

"Well, we flew over the ocean in the middle of the night in a hard storm. I don't expect the Urals will bother us much."

Finally, however, they decided it would be better to take off about dawn so their flight over the mountains will be made in the daytime. They took on 275 gallons of gasoline here and a number of maps provided by Soviet officials, but they did not load any oil.

Oil was offered to them, as well as anything else they needed, but they decided they had enough until they reached Novosibirsk, where they will take fuel en route to Irkutsk. The distance from Moscow to Irkutsk is 2,600 miles. Novosibirsk is about half way, and the fliers expect to reach

KENTUCKY BANKERS, CALDWELL INDICTED

Federal Grand Jury Accuses Trio in Misapplication of $1,000,000 Fund.

Louisville, Ky., June 25 (A.P.).—James B. Brown, former president of the National Bank of Kentucky, Louisville; Rogers Caldwell, president of Caldwell & Co., Nashville, and Charles F. Jones, former vice president of the National Bank of Kentucky, were indicted by a Federal grand jury here today.

Brown and Jones, already under Federal indictments, were charged in the bills returned today with making a false statement of the bank's condition to the comptroller of currency, with misapplication of $114,520 for the benefit of the Louisville Herald-Post Co. and misapplication of $1,000,000 for the benefit of Caldwell & Co.

Caldwell was indicted as a conspirator in the alleged misapplication.

In addition to his banking connections, Brown was publisher of the Herald-Post, now in receivership.

The National Bank of Kentucky failed last November, as did the Bancokentucky Co., holding company for the bank. Brown was president of the Bancokentucky Co.

He was acquitted in a State court a few weeks ago on charges of embezzlement of $2,000,000 of bank funds.

Nashville, Tenn., June 25 (A.P.).—D. D. Robertson, receiver for the Bank of Tennessee, today filed an intervening petition seeking a $12,655,094.61 judgment against receivers for Caldwell & Co., investment house, of which the bank was a subsidiary.

The bill said the bank, at the time of its collapse in November, 1930, had on hand $12,655,094.61 of securities purchased from the parent concern under repurchase agreements.

The repurchase agreements, the bill averred, provided that Caldwell & Co. buy back the securities at the price paid by the bank. The repurchases were to be made whenever demanded by the bank, the bill said.

It was set out that demand was made on receivers for Caldwell & Co. but they declined to buy the securities back.

PARIS CHAMBER TO STUDY DEBT ANSWER TODAY

General Accord Is Seen Unless French Cabinet Wrecks Plan.

FRANCE'S REPLY HELD HERE PENDING RESULT

Secretary Stimson to Sail Tomorrow for Conferences in Europe on Problem.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The eyes of official Washington today will be on Paris, where the French Chamber of Deputies will debate the Hoover plan for a one-year holiday on intergovernmental debts, together with the French cabinet's reply to that plan. In a parliamentary body as explosive as the Chamber of Deputies, anything may happen, including the overthrow of the cabinet and the virtual wrecking of the entire plan.

Here in Washington there is growing optimism that the debt postponement plan ultimately will evolve into an all-around agreement.

Secretary of State Stimson, who announced yesterday that he would sail tomorrow on the Italian liner Conte Grande for Naples, Italy, for a tour of four European countries, had two conferences with Ambassador Paul Claudel, of France, and afterward said that these had given him a great deal of encouragement.

Progress Is Made.

The general situation, Secretary Stimson said, has reached a stage where things are going as well as might be expected. Good progress is being made, he added, but it will take time to solve the many questions involved.

Secretary Stimson announced originally that his European tour would be in the nature of a vacation. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon likewise denied that there was any official aspect to his European trip. Upon his arrival in London, however, he immediately entered into conferences with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and other British leaders, ascertained the gravity of the German financial situation, and the plan of President Hoover for a one-year holiday on war debts and reparations followed. New Secretary Mellon is in Paris, deeply engrossed in negotiations with the French leaders.

On the eve of the departure of Secretary Stimson, there is no secret about the official importance of his mission. He will see the foreign ministers of Italy, France, Great Britain and Germany, and he will talk to them about debts and other problems, including disarmament.

Presidential Dinner Planned.

While in Paris, he will have dinner with the French President, and it is probable that he will be entertained by other European leaders.

He will sail Saturday on an Italian liner, and is scheduled to arrive at Naples July 7. He will be in Paris July 15 or 16, in Berlin about July 21—which means he will miss the conference between British and German statesmen there earlier—and he will be in London about July 27. It is not expected that he will encounter Secretary Mellon on his tour.

In Secretary Stimson's entourage will be Mrs. Stimson, Allen Klots (his Special Assistant), Capt. Eugene

SHAPIRO, HELD GUILTY OF MAIL FRAUD, PLANS TO ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

Faces Maximum Term of 60 Years and Fine of $120,000.

CONVICTION VOTED ON 12 INDICTMENTS

Former Real Estate Man Continues at Liberty on Same Bond.

Found guilty on all twelve counts of an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud, Jacob B. Shapiro, one-time millionaire real estate operator here, faces a maximum of 60 years in the penitentiary and total fines of $120,000.

Shapiro was found guilty by a jury early last night. He came into court with his attorney, Alvin Newmyer, to stand silently while Lee Ashford, clerk of the court, sonorously intoned the twelve interrogations relating to the counts in the indictment.

As the jury left the box to go from court, Newmyer and Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly, who prosecuted the case, approached the bench and held a conference with Justice Jesse Adkins.

New Trial May Be Sought.

At this conference it was decided that the same $10,000 bond under which Shapiro had been at liberty ever since the indictment was returned two months ago would be continued in force until he is brought into court to receive sentence.

Four court days must elapse before Shapiro can be sentenced and his attorney has already filed notice of his intention to ask for a new trial. This motion will be argued before Justice Adkins next week.

After a lengthy charge by Justice Adkins the case was given to the jury at 10:30 yesterday morning. When no decision had been reached at 1 o'clock, Justice Adkins issued orders that the members be taken to luncheon.

Late in the afternoon when it seemed that the jury was hopelessly deadlocked, Justice Adkins sent word to the jury to return to the courtroom for further instructions. The jury promptly sent back word that it did not consider such instruction necessary.

Stood 10 to 2 for Conviction.

Questioned after the jury had been discharged, one member said that the jurors stood ten to two for guilty on all counts from the first ballot until the next to the last ballot. On the last ballot the two who had held out for acquittal gave way to the arguments of the others and agreed to vote guilty.

The twelve counts in the indictment each relate to the sending through the mails of a letter. Some of these letters contained statements of the trusts then in force on certain pieces of property. Others had inclosed in them settlement papers and still others contained remitted trust papers.

The charge of use of the mails to defraud arose from the existence of "ground trusts" on homes that Shapiro's company built and sold. It was testified that purchasers of certain of these homes had bought their property without being told of the presence of the small ground trust.

In several instances, Assistant United States Attorney Fihelly developed through Government witnesses that home buyers were unaware of the existence of ground trusts on their homes until months after the date of purchase.

Shapiro Paid Off Trusts.

To counteract this testimony, Shapiro's attorney developed from each home buyer that the trusts had been paid off by Shapiro or his agents and that none of them had suffered any loss or had been called upon to pay more than the agreed price for the property.

Mr. Newmyer charged that Shapiro had been "made the goat" because of a congressional investigation into real estate practices. He intimated that the investigation had spurred authorities to make some one "the goat" because of the discovery of certain malpractices among a small minority of operators here.

In his own defense Shapiro testified that he had placed the ground trusts on the property before building operations had started. He said it was his custom to pay off these trusts when development operations were

Eight Churches Here Affected by Merger

Linking of Congregational and Christian Denominations, Approved at Seattle Convention, Effects Union of More Than One Million Members.

Seattle, June 25 (A.P.).—Formal action which merged two major church bodies of the United States, the Congregationalists and the Christian Church, with a combined membership of more than a million, was taken at a joint convention here late today.

A new constitution providing for the union was approved at separate assemblies.

At the outset the united body will have the congregational moderator and the Christian president as co-moderators.

The Rev. Carl Patton, D. D., proctor of the First Congregational Church, Los Angeles, was elected moderator of the National Congregational Council and thereby becomes co-moderator of the newly formed union.

The majority of the Christian churches involved are located in the States of the Mississippi Valley and the Southeast. Churchmen said the merger was the largest ever to have taken place between denominations entirely distinct in origin and history.

The churches affected total 6,670 in this country, with a communicant membership of 1,050,000 and a constituency, including adherents, of about 3,000,000.

The foreign missions of the two groups already have been merged under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. The missions are in sixteen foreign countries, where 850 American missionaries and more than 6,000 nationals are employed.

Those who led the negotiations for the union believed it was the beginning of a new trend in church life and will be followed by other mergers. They hoped other denominations will join with them to form a

MELLON IN FRANCE FOR DEBT PARLEYS

Secretary Will Confer With Premier Today; Reply to Hoover Due.

Paris, June 25 (A.P.).—Andrew W. Mellon, whose visit to England was an important factor in announcement of President Hoover's moratorium plan, reached Paris today and plunged immediately into the task of harmonizing the French and American attitudes on the President's proposal.

He went from the railroad station directly to the American Embassy, where for two hours he was in conference with Ambassador Edge. Then he called on Minister of Finance Flandin and three hours later registered at his hotel.

The French reply to Mr. Hoover's proposal, the main lines of which are generally known now, tonight appeared to be a basis for negotiations to work out a formula by which the President's proposal may be translated into action.

Tomorrow Mr. Mellon will have luncheon with Premier Laval. Soon thereafter the premier must go into the Chamber of Deputies prepared to answer nine interpellations regarding the war debt plan and the French reply to Washington.

At the luncheon Mr. Mellon will get first-hand information regarding the French viewpoint, for M. Flandin and possibly Aristide Briand also will be there.

Governmental and parliamentary circles generally were optimistic tonight on the strength of dispatches from Washington which indicated the United States was ready to talk over the situation.

At first the French were upset over what they regarded as the abrupt way in which Mr. Hoover's proposal was communicated to the world, but in the chamber lobbies tonight some groups which were hostile to any moratorium on the unconditional reparations annuities appeared less emphatic in their opposition and there was some ground for a belief that some of the left groups, which always have voted against the government, may vote with it tomorrow.

Today the government kept an eye on the New York stock market, the activities of which were regarded as an indication of America's reception to the French note to Washington. Tension over the reception at Washington seemed to have passed and it

MACKS LOSE TWICE AS LEAD DWINDLES

Nats' Victory at Detroit Cuts Margin to One Game in Pennant Race.

Philadelphia's lead in the American League pennant race shrunk to a single game yesterday as a result of developments in the West where the Mackmen were dealt a double defeat by the St. Louis Browns, while the Nats triumphed over the Detroit Tigers.

The day's developments represented a gain of a game and a half for the Washington team, which reduced Philadelphia's lead to the narrowest margin to separate the two teams since the earliest days of the pennant race. At one period of the current Western trip, the Mackmen boasted a lead of four full games.

Catcher Roy Spencer was the hero of the Nat's triumph at Chicago by a 4-3 score. He made three of the four hits that were allowed by Pitcher Vic Sorrell and drove over all of the Nats' runs. Carl Fischer held the White Sox in check until the sixth, when he was relieved by Bobby Burke, owing to loss of effectiveness due to the heat.

The Browns yesterday became the first Western club to win a series from the Mackmen and the double triumph accounted for their fourth win of the five-game series. No other Western club has won more than two games from Philadelphia.

George Earnshaw was the victim of the St. Louis attack in the first game of the twin bill which the Browns won, 6-5. The defeat marked Earnshaw's first loss after twelve straight victories. Walter Stewart pitched the Browns to victory in the second game, 8-5, his mates knocking Shores out of the box.

(Complete accounts of all major league games will be found in the sports section).

Bank Counsel Faces Perjury Indictment

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Isidor J. Kresel, formerly general counsel for the Bank of the United States, was indicted today on a charge of perjury.

The indictment resulted from testimony he gave during the trial of four of the closed bank's officials, three of whom were sentenced to State's prison for misapplying funds of a subsidiary.

New Dry Group Girds To Win Law Support

257-Day Nonpartisan Campaign Over Country Planned to Gain Strength Needed to Decide Victory in 1932 Election.

(Associated Press.)

Details of a cross-country, 257-day campaign characterized as seeking "a fresh support for the dry law needed to weigh the balance between defeat and victory in 1932" were announced yesterday by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the newly created allied forces of prohibition.

Dr. Poling asserted flatly he believed the efforts of recognized dry organizations thus far had fallen short.

"Our campaign," he said, "will be aimed directly at the political conventions of 1932, seeking the placing of dry planks in both party platforms and the nomination of dry candidates. Anything we have done thus far has failed to bring the maximum support from a great untouched area in American public life."

Dr. Poling made this statement a few hours after he had conferred with President Hoover at the White House. He said, however, he had not discussed his organization's plans, or even prohibition, with the President, since the proposed campaign was to be strictly nonpartisan.

Meanwhile, there was gathering in the Capital for a meeting today of members of a "board of strategy," chosen by leaders of the 33 recognized dry groups included in the national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment.

Dr. Poling and members of the allied forces of have been chosen to serve on the strategy board. He said his organization was adopting some of the plans put forward by the conference, but that he included both his own and these organizations in his statement that new effort was needed for continued success by the dry forces.

He added, however, he believed the fresh support his organization sought would strengthen rather than subtract from the forces of the old line groups, such as the Antisaloon League and the W. C. T. U.

In a formal statement put out by the allied forces it was said that, although its field campaign would not start until September 8 in Columbus, Ohio, already 168 local groups in as many cities had been organized.

Dr. Poling reiterated the campaign would be separated entirely from the church, and that in the first 42 cities to be visited public auditoriums already had been engaged. Leaping from Columbus to Indianapolis, he said, the campaigners will swing next to St. Louis, then to Kansas City, and on out to the Pacific Coast, ending the first 42 days at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on October 18.

Walker Opens War on Gangs To Rid New York of Rackets

Offers Business Men Protection If They Will Furnish Information Against Leaders; Assures Safeguards Against Possible Reprisals.

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Declaring war without quarter on the overlords of gangdom, Mayor James J. Walker today offered the city's industries just what the gangster chiefs offer them—protection—and he offered it free.

The mayor made his offer and his declaration of war at a conference in City Hall with representatives of the city's clothing and allied industries. These business men had sought his aid in ridding the city of gang rule.

"The biggest thing done in this town in a long time," the mayor said, "is your determination not to pay one dollar to any gang leader. For that pledge I give you this pledge in return: That every ounce of strength, every bit of resource, every policeman from Commissioner Mulrooney down to the last appointed man is at your command to protect your lives and your property."

Mayor Walker said gangsters had grown rich and powerful here and as a result no one had been willing to testify against them. They had become emboldened, he said, to a point "wilder than the greatest dreams of Jesse James or Hicks the Pirate."

If, however, the city's business men were ready to give information against the gangs, the mayor promised, the city would stamp them out, and if necessary to prevent reprisals

Dr. Jane B. Coates, 59, Wed To Government Worker, 28

Noted Capital Spiritualist and Labor Department Clerk Married Yesterday in Rockville, Md.; Bridegroom to Join Wife's Organization.

Dr. Jane B. Coates, 59 years old, internationally known spiritualist and head of the American Order of the White Cross Societas, yesterday married the 28-year-old youth she expects to make the executive secretary of that organization, at a simple ceremony in Rockville, Md.

The bridegroom, Paul Warren Delos, a clerk at the Department of Labor, last night told The Post how "spiritualist forces that literally threw him out of bed" led him to seek the counsel of Dr. Coates a little more than a year ago, and romance had followed.

"I want it thoroughly understood that I did this of my own free will," he said, adding that he "considered himself fortunate to have married such a wonderful woman."

Dr. Coates paused in expounding the creed of the Spiritual Science Church of America, and objectives of the White Cross Societas, to remark aside to a Post reporter: "Don't you think he's nice."

The two were married secretly by the Rev. Bertram M. Osgood, of the Rockville Baptist Church, a few minutes after they had obtained a marriage license from Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the circuit court.

Mr. Watkins said Dr. Coates introduced Mr. Delose as her secretary, explaining that she was planning a begun, but that he had neglected in some instances to pay them promptly upon settlement or some one in his office had failed to call his attention to certain pieces which were sold with the ground trust remaining on them.

Tells of Losing Fortune.

Further in his testimony Shapiro said that he at one time had amassed a fortune of $2,000,000 from his real estate dealings. He said that the crash following 1929 caught him unawares and he was forced to abandon practically everything he held through inability to secure additional loans. Shapiro is now 30 years old.

The Government used approximately 80 witnesses against Shapiro. Twenty of that number had bought homes from his company. The trial, which lasted almost three weeks, was the second one for Shapiro.

He was indicted last year and was brought to trial before Justice Peyton Gordon, who ruled shortly after the start that the indictment was faulty and a mistrial was entered.

Witness Tells of Letter.

Among the Government witnesses was Howard M. Carter, who bought a home from Shapiro, later to find that it had a ground trust encumbering it. Carter testified that a letter was sent to him asking him not to testify before the grand jury and to sign a letter declaring that he was satisfied the Shapiro company had meant to deal with him in an honest manner.

Carter took this letter to an attorney who suggested that he take it to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, and it was later presented to the grand jury.

Numerous character witnesses were utilized by Shapiro in his defense. Leading bankers and real estate men here testified that his reputation for honesty, integrity and truthfulness was excellent.

The Government often questioned these witnesses about Shapiro's transactions and few of them had any knowledge of his operations. One character witness testified voluntarily that Shapiro was caring for his aged father and mother. He said this "made a great hit with me," but his remark was stricken from the records.

PARIS WILL DEBATE HOOVER DEBT PLAN

European Appointments Made.

Most of Secretary Stimson's appointments in Europe already have been made, and President Hoover has urged him to go at this time. The two are expected to be in constant communication, either through cable messages or by transatlantic telephone.

The French reply to the American proposal for a holiday on debts, which was delivered at the State Department Thursday, has not yet been made public. Once it is submitted to the French Chamber of Deputies today, however, it will be released to the press.

Reports from Paris, obviously based on authoritative information, are to the effect that France is friendly to President Hoover's general proposal; but suggests that Germany be required to make the unconditional payments which she is obligated to pay France under the Young reparations plan, payments in excess of $100,000,000.

Source of Funds.

Under the French proposal this money, which would come from the German railroads, would be paid to the Bank of International Settlements, which institution, the proposal says, might immediately loan the money back to Germany. Thus, it would be little more than a bookkeeping gesture. To the French, however, it would be mighty important, for it would keep intact the Young plan, which is a law in France, and would dispel, for the time at least, the bugaboo of cancellation of debts and reparations.

There is a prospect that Chancellor Bruening of Germany may go to Paris for a conference with Prime Minister Laval. It is entirely possible, of course, that Germany might readily consent to the French proposal. In that case, it is difficult to see how the United States could object to it.

While President Hoover's plan is barely a week old, four countries—Great Britain, Italy, Germany and Austria—already have accepted. Belgium, Roumania, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Poland are believed to be waiting on France. Japan is expected to accept the proposal today.

Stimson Sees Di Martino.

In addition to seeing Ambassador Claudel, of France, yesterday, Secretary Stimson saw Ambassador di Martino, of Italy. The latter handed him the following cablegram which had been received from the Italian foreign minister, Signor Grandi:

"Yesterday the Italian government informed officially the governments of Great Britain, France and Germany of the acceptance on the part of Italy of the proposal of President Hoover.

"This morning, in accordance with instructions from the head of the government, a conference was held with the minister of finance and the governor of the Bank of Italy for the purpose of making proper arrangements, so that President Hoover's proposal for the suspension of debt and reparations payments may have, as early as July 1, a prompt and full execution."

Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, who has given high praise to President Hoover's proposal, will make a radio speech, and will discuss it over the Columbia Broadcasting system tonight at 9 o'clock. He was a visitor at the White House yesterday, but would make no statement as he was leaving.

REICHSBANK TO GET $100,000,000 LOAN

U.S. Federal Reserve Among Four Institutions Which Will Furnish Sum.

Berlin, June 25 (A.P.).—The German Reichsbank this evening concluded arrangements for a $100,000,000 loan with the Bank of England, the Bank of France, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the Bank for International Settlements at Basel.

The money is intended primarily to tide the Reichsbank over the end of the month, for, although gold is flowing in now the process is not likely to be fast enough to equalize before June 30 the loss of approximately 1,000,000,000 marks of the Reichsbank reserves. The loan does not depend on the Hoover moratorium plan.

Today's Reichsbank report, which covers the week ended last Saturday, the day on which President Hoover announced his debt plan, showed the gold reserve for banknote circulation stood at 40.4 per cent, only 0.4 per cent above the minimum prescribed by law. Only a month ago the gold reserve was 68.4 per cent.

Each of the four banks participating in the loan will pay one-fourth of the total $100,000,000 into the Bank for International Settlements, which will place the money at the disposal of the Reichsbank.

London Anticipates French Acceptance

Feeling Is General That Hampering Points Will Not Be Raised.

London, June 25 (A.P.).—Great Britain tonight was awaiting France's reply to President Hoover's proposition for a war debts moratorium with a hope the reply will not raise any point which will make the Washington plan unworkable.

It is generally felt here that the plan of the Paris government, understood to involve a proposal for Germany to pay her unconditional annuities with money to be re-lent to the Reich government, should not prove insurmountable to a general acceptance of the Hoover program.

Meanwhile, London was watching with interest the movements in Paris of the American Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, who left here today, after a series of conferences with British officials.

It was understood the American official would continue in Paris the negotiations which are credited in London with having initiated President Hoover's action on the war debts.

La Follette Backs Debt Plan, He Tells Hoover

Madison, Wis., June 25 (A.P.).—Senator Robert M. Lafollette, of Wisconsin, today informed President Hoover he would support the proposed one-year moratorium. He expressed the opinion the matter should be dealt with at a special session of Congress, but gave assurance he would favor legislation effecting the plan.

He did not consider the proposal as an entering wedge for debt cancellation, adding, "I shall continue to oppose such cancellation unless it shall be accompanied by definite agreements for revision downward of reparations and drastic and genuine land and naval armament reduction to relieve taxpayers of the largest single item in their crushing burden in all countries."

Special Session Asked On War Debt Proposal

Des Moines, Iowa, June 25 (A.P.).—A special session of Congress to consider the Hoover war debt moratorium proposal was suggested today by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa.

Senator Brookhart wired the President that he agreed with the proposal to postpone for a year all intergovernmental debts, but that he believed the subject "of too much importance to be decided by Congress by informal conferences or telegrams to members."

Answer of Belgium May Be Deferred

Public Doubtful of Advantages to Be Gained in Moratorium.

Brussels, Belgium, June 25 (A.P.).—While Belgian officials today continued consideration of President Hoover's war debt moratorium proposal, it was understood that Brussels' reply probably would not be ready for several days.

Public opinion appeared to be doubtful as to the advantages offered by the proposition and the newspapers continued to analyze its possibilities.

The press pointed out that Belgium has a very small share in the unconditional annuities under the Young plan and added that if France should have these exempted from the provisions of the moratorium, then Belgium also should receive unconditional payments.

Prime Minister Benkin today conferred with the German Minister to Brussels in the presence of Foreign Minister Hymans and later talked to the British Ambassador.

New York Firm Seeks To Enjoin Postoffice

Droesch Realty Corporation of New York yesterday filed an injunction suit in District Supreme Court to prevent the United States from erecting a general postoffice on 164th street, Jamaica, N. Y. The suit claims that an apartment house owned by the corporation would be damaged seriously by the postoffice, and its value would drop from $600,000 to $400,000.

Suit is directed against Andrew Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury. Violation of the zoning laws in New York is charged. The court is requested to compel the Government to pick another site for the postoffice and several are suggested.

Pedestrian Injured By Ice Cream Truck

A man was injured yesterday when he was struck down by an ice cream truck at Fourteenth and K streets northwest.

Richard Gant, 55 years old, 810 I street northwest, was attempting to cross at that intersection when he was hit by the machine operated by Herbert Davis, colored, 30 years old, Georgia avenue near Howard place northwest. Mr. Gant was taken in a passing taxicab to Emergency Hospital for treatment of a fractured ankle and cuts and bruises. Brakes on the truck were tested and found in good condition.

Graham Company Low Bidder on School Job

The Graham Construction Co., of Washington, was found to be low bidder on the construction of an eight-room addition to the Bernard T. Janney School, Albemarle street, between Forty-first and Forty-second streets northwest, when bids were opened yesterday by Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the engineer department. The estimate was $87,490.

Thirteen contractors bid on the project, for which $119,998.24 was available. The highest bid was $95,000. The contract probably will be awarded tomorrow or next Tuesday.

DISARMAMENT LEAD SEEN IN DEBT DELAY

Italy Holds Moratorium May Have Greatest Meaning for Future.

Rome, June 25 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Grandi regard President Hoover's moratorium proposal as promising vast possibilities, greater even than relief of the present disastrous world crisis.

The foreign minister is known to have described the President's offer as "destined to be an historical event." Disarmament is what both the Duce and the foreign minister see on the horizon.

This became known today after the government had started in motion the machinery necessary for the inauguration of the moratorium July 1.

The premier and the foreign minister are confident the Hoover proposal will create an atmosphere of world cooperation which will distinctly relieve the tension of recent months and ease the way for next year's disarmament conference.

They are known to be of the opinion that actual relief of distressing economic conditions will be accompanied by improvement in the morale of the world and they unstintingly praise the President's "wisely generous gesture."

Italy's concern over the proposed Austro-German customs union and the phantom of "Anschluss" or political union is described as a European matter which has no place in the Hoover plan.

America's "generosity," as it is called, deserves a similarly unselfish reply, government circles hold, and therefore Italy has put no strings on her acceptance.

Bruening Pleased With Paris Offer

May Not Be Able, However, to Attend Parley at Present.

Berlin, June 25 (A.P.).—Official Germany is delighted at the response France has accorded Chancellor Bruening's suggestion for an informal Franco-German conference such as that recently held at Chequers, England, between the chancellor and Prime Minister MacDonald.

Herr Bruening's only regret, it is said, is that such a meeting would be impracticable in the immediate future, for innumerable matters demand his attention at home. At the moment he is in constant communication with American Ambassador Sackett, awaiting results of the negotiations between Paris and Washington over President Hoover's moratorium plan.

Early next month Mr. MacDonald and Arthur Henderson, the British foreign secretary, are coming to Berlin, and Henry L. Stimson, American Secretary of State, sails for Europe from New York on Saturday. With these visits pending it is regarded as unlikely that both the chancellor and Julius Curtius, the foreign minister, will leave the capital together.

Slavery in Liberia

An amazing story of how human beings are being held in serfdom in the west African Negro republic will be told in

The Washington Post

MONDAY

Stories of the existence of slavery and forced labor in Liberia have shocked the civilized world during the past year. The sordid truth of the charges was revealed in detail by an International Commission last September.

The series of articles which The Post will publish prove that conditions have shown little or no improvement. This expose is the result of a thorough investigation made by George S. Schuyler, whose inquiries and studies kept him in Liberia from last February 12 until April 21.

What he learned and observed will be related in

WARRENTON PLANS JUNIOR HUNT SHOW

Twelfth Annual Exhibition to Be Held at Culpeper This Season.

Special to The Washington Post.

Warretnon, Va., June 25.—Prize lists will be sent out this week for the twelfth annual Warrenton Junior Hunt Show, formerly known as the Warrenton Pony Show. This year's show will be held in Culpeper on July 10 and 11.

The change from the Warrenton show grounds to Culpeper was due to the fact that the directors of the Warrenton Horse Show objected to the use of the grounds here so largely for horses instead of the pony show, as originally the idea at the formation of the pony show in 1919.

Entries will close June 29. The officers of the organization are Elizabeth Nesbit, president; Mae Ferneyhough and Emily North King, vice presidents; Edith C. Nesbit, treasurer, and Mildred F. Gaines, secretary. The directors are North Fletcher, Billy Wilbur, Aubrey Fishback, Billy Gulick, James Hibbard and Robert Blickle.

Member of State Association.

This organization is a member of the Virginia State Horse Show Association and the show is held under the rules of that association. Thirty-six classes are listed this year, in addition to the championships. The classes are evenly divided between ponies and horses.

In the majority of the pony classes the riders are under 16 years of age and in the smaller pony classes the riders are required to be under the ages of 8 and 12 years. In each class the first prize is accompanied by a silver cup.

The Pony Corinthian is known as the Robert Ferneyhough, jr., Memorial and has to be won three times by the same exhibitor to become the permanent owner. The handsome piece of plate given in this class is a memorial to the late Robert Ferneyhough, jr., who was one of the most enthusiastic riders in the pony show for years. The plate is given by his family. Frosty and Anthony Rives entry won in 1930.

Handsome Pony Trophy.

Another handsome trophy is the Sunset Cup presented by J. Temple Gwathmey for the best pony over 13 hands, ridden by a girl, side saddle. This cup has been in competition seven years and has been twice won by Edith C. Nesbit. The Harry Plumb Cup is for the champion hunter pony, to be won twice by the same exhibitor. Some of those who have already one leg on the cup are Dorothy Randolph, Ellie Wood Keith, James Gulick, Robert E. Ferneyhough and Charlotte E. Smith.

The Blanche Ortman Cup is for the grand champion of the show and has to be won three times. It is awarded the pony winning the greatest number of points in the show. The winners to date have been Robert and Louise Sharp's Natty, Ellie Wood Keith's Sinbad, Robert Ferneyhough's Sky High and Florence and Eugene Sydnor's Miss Woodford in the pony class and North Fletcher's Queen Anne and Elizabeth Nesbit's Sportsman in the horse class.

group large enough to warrant the use of the name, the United Church of Christ in America.

Officers will be elected to serve as a grand council for purposes of management. This arrangement will continue until 1935, when one directing head will be chosen.

The convention, attended by 3,000, opened tonight with the Rev. Morris L. Truk, Portland, Me., chosen to lead the devotions.

The Rev. Stephen L. Desha, Hilo, Hawaii, presented the gavel to be used during the five-day convention. The speech of acceptance, prepared by the Rev. R. G. Coffin, president of the general convention now ill in a Columbus, Ohio, hospital, will be read by the Rev. W. H. Denison, of Dayton, Ohio, secretary of the convention.

Hold Seminar Today.

An announcement said the gathering would consider current world problems from a religious standpoint and afford churchmen "opportunity for free discussion of religious problems without fear of being unorthodox."

First seminars will be held tomorrow, devoted to problems relating to the individual, the church, the community, the Nation and international relations. The council will meet Thursday and Friday next week to consider the findings of the seminars.

The Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., will address the convention on "The Mission of the Republic" tomorrow night.

Eight Here Affected.

The Congregational Churches in the Capital which will be effected by the union have a membership of approximately 5,000 in eight churches, four of which are white congregations and four colored. There are no Christian Churches here which will be effected by the merger.

Prominent among the churches here is the First Congregational, where President Coolidge worshipped. Others are: Cleveland Park Congregational, Ingram Memorial Congregational and the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Apart from the churches located here, there are seven white churches of that denomination in the Washington Association of Congregational Churches. Most of these are small churches in Maryland.

Joseph Irwin France, former senator from Maryland, who recently filed his candidacy for the Republican nomination for President, will tell why he is a candidate at a meeting at Mount Ararat Farms, Port Deposit, Md., on July 11.

In opening his campaign, he announced yesterday, he will discuss the "world crisis and its remedy through the application of principles of righteousness to economic, social and international problems."

A special train from Baltimore will arrive at Port Deposit in time for the meeting.

"world tour" in the interest of the White Cross Societies, and as Mr. Deloe would accompany her as secretary, both had agreed it would be well to get married.

Last night Dr. Coates denied any intention of making a world tour immediately. She said she was planning to start a national campaign and expected in about six months' time to make Mr. Deloe secretary of her organization.

"We hoped to avoid publicity and were telling all sorts of stories," she said in explanation of the version given by Mr. Watkins. She said the bridegroom was 34 and she was 58, although the license clerk listed her age as 59 and Mr. Deloe as 28.

When The Post reported arrived at 1437 Meridian street, where Dr. Coates gives readings and the two expect to make their home, Mr. Deloe announced that he wanted to make a statement, because, "he knew a lot of people would say that his wife had hypnotized him or something."

Then it was that he said he had married of his own free will.

"After I met my wife I found that her teachings had coincided with my own belief in the after life," he said. "It was something so different from spiritualism as known to the layman, that the bond readily developed."

Considers Himself Psychic.

Listening to his bride's exposition of her former exploits: "Triumphs" over Houdini, her bitter rival; forecasts predicting Houdini's death and the murder of Mary Baker, and physical manifestations of the dead, Mr. Deloe remarked that he, too, considered himself "psychic" but had never seen any spirits walk.

Dr. Coates remarked that she considered her husband "more of a mystic than a psychi."

The veteran spiritualist, who has been practicing in Washington since 1921, anounced she expected to mail to President Hoover today letter dictated to her by Woodrow Wilson and Nick Longworth. She said the former had appeared to her many times, and the late Speaker of the House only last week had aroused her by shaking her shoulder and advised her of his desire to communicate with his former comrades on the hill.

She said she would make public the letters today. Theybot h contain appeals to the President that he cooperate with her in "freeing spiritualism from the stigma of fortune telling."

Family, Surprised, Agrees.

She said it is necessary for a spiritualist to get a license as a fortune teller before they can practice in Washington and that out of 111 such licenses only 18 are held by legitimate spiritualists.

The family of young Deloe were represented as entirely in accord with the match, although much surprised by the announcement. His mother, Mrs. Mary E. Deloe, of 736 Rock Creek Church road, was said to have attended many of Dr. Coates' readings.

"We were afraid we would be hounded after the announcement," Dr. Coates said. "I was afraid I would be accused of being a love pirate. I don't want any of this Aimee McPherson stuff."

Phone Operators Will Take Alarms

Shepherd-Silver Spring Exchange to Sound Siren for Takoma Park Area.

Arrangements have been completed with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to have the Shepherd-Silver Spring exchange operator take fire calls for the Takoma Park area, it was announced last night by Dr. J. W. Dudley, chief of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department, at a meeting of the fire department.

Dr. Dudley reported that in the future fire alarms will be accepted by the telephone operator, who will take the location and sound the siren on the firehouse, relaying the location to the firehouse. This will make for greater efficiency, he said.

Irvine H. Ware, president of the department, announced that a meeting of the board of trustees will be held next week to consider the deficit in the fire department's treasury due to the failure of subscribers to pay notes. The meeting probably will be held Tuesday or Wednesday night, he said.

AMERICAN FLIERS HOP OFF AT MOSCOW

there late tomorrow. They will remain over night.

Completing more than one-third of their journey around the world, the fliers attracted much attention at Ocober Airdrome when their speedy blue and white monoplane flashed into view and made a wide circle of the field before descending in a three-point landing.

It taxied to a standstill in the midst of a number of giant Soviet military and commercial planes with multiple motors and large cabins. No large crowd was present, only attaches of the field and newspaper correspondents being among the welcoming party. Mechanics and others peered curiously into the interior of the ship as the fliers stepped forward to receive their gretings. Th government was not represented at the recption.

Th taciturn Gatty was offered a Russian cigarette as he stepped on land again, but he refused and drew out a package of an American brand, explaining he hadn't had time to smoke up the pack since leaving New York.

The fliers expressed unconcernn over the difficult transsiberian hop ahead of them, and were assured by field officials that adequate fuel supplies were available along the entire route.

Since they left New York, Tuesday, the fliers have traveled, roughly, 5,800 miles. About 10,000 miles are still before them. From Irkutsk the route is by Khabarovsk and Petropaviovsk, almost 5,000 miles, over the Siberian wilderness and the lonely Russian steppes.

off toward Hamburg. Then it turned again and swooped down at the Bremen airport.

Lindbergh Record Stands.

Twice they had fallen short of their objective, just as Clarence Chamberlin in 1927 made forced landings at Eisleben and Kottbus when he was shooting at Berlin.

But yesterday Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, who today reached Moscow in their globe-girdling flight, fell short twice, once at Chester, England, and again at Hanover, before reaching Berlin.

Thus Col. Charles A. Lindbergh still may claim to be the only west-to-east transatlantic flier who mapped out his objective and then reached it without stopping.

Hillig and Hoirils, unacquainted with European topography, acted wisely, airport officials agreed, in turning back instead of courting the danger which lurked in the darkness between here and Copenhagen.

A few minutes after their plane was parked for the night both men were dead to the world, sleeping in bunks in the administration building of the airport.

100,000 Are Disappointed.

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 25 (A.P.).—Fully 100,000 persons who had gathered at the airport here to welcome Otto Hillig and Holger Hoirils turned away in disappointment tonight when informed the transatlantic fliers had broken their trip at Bremen and would not come here until tomorrow.

Many of them had waited several hours, receiving with good humor an announcement early in the evening that the arrival of the Liberty probably would be delayed. Some of them remembered how Paris had waited for Lindbergh, and the sentiment was general that Copenhagen certainly could wait just as long.

All members of the American colony, including the embassy staff and Admiral Bloch, from the U. S. S. Arkansas, which is anchored in the harbor, were on hand. Mrs. Hoirils, the pilot's mother, was here; but when definite word of the landing at Bremen came, the field was quickly cleared.

Kidd, second vice president; Miss Mamie Scearce, treasurer; Mrs. G. W. Johnson, secretary, and Miss Carrie Hawkins, rehabilitation chairman.

FIREMEN DEFY RULE AGAINST FIREWORKS

Bladensburg's Department Will Ignore Order to Raze Stands.

Although warned by Prince Georges County police that all temporary fireworks stands erected without a permit must be torn down within the next 24 hours, the Bladensburg Volunteer Fire Department last night announced it would go ahead with the sale of fireworks at its stand on land belonging to James LaFontaine along the Bladensburg road.

The Bladensburg department is one of several whose stands were erected without permits. A number of applications for permits were laid on the table at a meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday. This will have the effect of postponing action on the permits until July 7, when the need for stands will have passed as there is no meeting of the commissioners next Tuesday. At Tuesday's meeting the commissioners instructed the county police to remove stands for which no building permits had been issued.

Another fire department which was warned about unauthorized stands last night was the Cottage City organization. Chief Jeremiah Crowley, of the county police, and Sergt. H. G. Machen issued the warning to Chief Samuel Tayman, of the fire department. The Tuxedo Fire Department and the Brentwood group were among those whose permits were not granted Tuesday.

21 Weekly Papers Enter Grumman Contest for Trophy.

Luray, Va., June 25 (A.P.).—Twenty-one Virginia weekly newspapers are entered in the contest for the Fred C. Grumman silver trophy, which will be awarded at the Virginia Press Association convention here July 16 to 18.

The contest awards will be one feature of the convention which is expected to bring to the attention of Virginia publishers many of the problems of newspaper publishing, and serve as a clearing house for suggestions concerning the proper way to meet the current publishing problems.

Among the principal addresses of the convention will be the annual speech by President C. H. Edwards, of the Altavista Journal, "A Suggestive Objective for the Virginia Press Association, 'A Distinctive Virginia,'" by Paul H. Appleby, Radford News Journal; "An Appreciation of Back Office Employes," by Paul Scarborough, Tidewater News, Franklin; "Advertising Plans of the State Conservation and Development Commission," by William E. Carson, chairman, and a "Survey of Charges Made by Virginia Newspapers for Legal Advertising," by Secretary Latimer.

Retired Merchant Dies In Clarksburg Mishap

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 25.—John Stamm, sr., 83, retired merchant, was instantly killed this afternoon when struck by an automobile at the west end junction of West Pike and West Main street. The car was driven by William West, of West Milford, employe of a local oil company, who was held pending investigation.

Witnesses said the aged man stepped from a curb directly in front of the car. He leaves two sons, John and Bert Stamm, local merchants.

Bank Auditors Name Officers at Meeting

The auditors' section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association held its annual meeting last night at Olney Inn, Olney, Md.

The following were elected to the executive committee: Arthur J. Linn, of the Federal-American Bank & Trust Co.; William M. Harris, of the Lincoln National Bank; Joseph Boyd, of the Second National Bank; J. C. Elgin, of W. B. Hibbs & Co., and Ralph Endicott, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. Mr. Endicott, chairman of the section, presided.

Postmasters Elect Thomas Man Again

West Virginia Group Also Names Other Officers; Charleston Chosen.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 25.—L. B. Kenniburg, Thomas, was re-elected president of West Virginia branch, National League of District Postmasters, at the closing business meeting of the annual two-day session there this afternoon. All other 1931 officers were also reelected. Charleston was selected as the 1932 meeting place.

Representative Frank L. Bowman, of this West Virginia district, speaking at the annual banquet last night, criticized the postmasters in accepting badges contributed by a large mail order house and programs donated by a Chicago mail order house on the ground that postmasters should patronize, wherever possible, home, rather than outside business. He also criticized a program preface which praised the postoffice employes for expediting the business of the mail order houses, Mr. Bowman contending the statement made it appear that the postoffice was serving the mail order houses specially.

He also declared postmasters, as appointees under a system of Government built on a two-party plan, should not overlook their obligations to their party. As long as the system prevails, he said, postmasters will be political appointees. The Thursday sessions were interrupted to permit of an automobile sight-seeing tour throughout the section.

George B. Keezell Eulogized at Burial

Former Gov. Byrd Speaks at the Bier of Statesman.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 25.—Eulogized as a man "of rugged honesty, of wholesome devotion to the people of Rockingham and Virginia, of fine judgment and of immovable courage of his convictions" the late George B Keezell, who was in public life for half a century, was laid to rest today. His body was followed to the Keezletown Cemetery by 2,000 people of all walks of life.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. B. F Wilson, of the Harrisonburg Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev L. H Smallwood, of the Keezletown Methodist Church. Short eulogies were spoken by the two ministers and former Gov. Harry F. Byrd. Mr. Byrd lauded the late senator as giving the State a "public service seldom equaled by any other man."

A man of stalwart frame, Senator Keezell's body was placed in a metallic casket weighing 500 pounds. Fourteen men were required to carry the casket. Floral offerings came from all parts of the State.

Every Republican as well as every Democratic leader of Rockingham stood with bowed head in the yard of the Keezell home when the services were conducted from the porch of the old Virginia mansion.

40 ARE GRADUATED BY LEWIS SCHOOLS

Hotel Training Institutions Give Diplomas to 15 Men and 25 Women.

Twenty-five women and fifteen men received diplomas from the Lewis Hotel Training Schools at commencement exercises last night.

They were told by speakers that opportunities in the hotel business are proportionally divided between men and women, a condition said to be found in few industries, it was pointed out. It also was observed that employment in general in the hotel field has been on the increase during the past year.

Those attending the exercises were told of the employment department of the schools, which puts the graduates in touch with employers in various parts of the country, depending upon where the employe prefers to live. This task has been relatively easy, due to the good conditions prevailing in the hotel industry, it was announced.

Speakers at the exercises were: Clifford Lewis, president of the schools; Ross E. King, well-known psychological consultant; Russell Conn, manager of the Hamilton Hotel and a graduate of the Lewis Hotel Training Schools; Mrs. Mary Catherine Lewis, vice president of the schools, and Miss Margaret M. Stockbridge, resident manager of the schools. The roll was called by Clyde B. Douthat, of the alumnus of the school.

Those who received diplomas were: Miss Marie Adams, Mrs. Garnette B. Bowyer, Humphrey E. Casey, Mrs. Helen Clark, Mrs. Kattye H. Cleveland, Mrs. Gertrude A. Clow, Freeman M. Cronkhite, Ray H. Crosson, C. L. Davis, Jack M. Duro, Arthur G. Ellis, Mrs. Salley Ellis, Mrs. Maude S. Eutsler, Mrs. Josephine Fitzpatrick, Frank L. Hagerman, Mrs. Cora W. Harris, Mrs. Lucille Hanier, Louis G. ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ABOUT a month ago, or maybe it was six weeks, I wouldn't cheat you, when I met Harry M. Crandall, former motion picture magnate, in the Federal-American Bank—he was probably in there dragging down a lot of interest, while I was trying to fix it up about that overdraft—he told me at some length about the possibility of his going back into the picture game, if the Zoning Commission, come June, would designate certain restricted property as first commercial. Some weeks later the same information was imparted to others, on the spring booster trip of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Well, that property was zoned first commercial yesterday.

That should mean that within a reasonably short time a new motion picture theater will rear its imposing facade in the vicinity of Connecticut avenue and Newark street, with the Crandall name spelled out in lights on the electric sign. The most successful motion picture exhibitor the Capital has ever known thus will have launched himself again into what is probably the most hectic business on the face of the earth—barring this one!

The property in question, as I understand it, is now owned by Morris Gewirz, secretary and general manager of the Federal Security & Mortgage Co., with whom Mr. Crandall has a working agreement—or an understanding, or something.

Of course, it would have been yesterday that Harry Crandall selected to be out of town!

Word comes from Leonard B. Schloss, under whose direction Glen Echo Park has flourished for the past 21 years, that beginning Sunday the Crystal Pool will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 11:30 p. m., daily. This lengthening of the aquatic day is occasioned by the increasingly warm weather and the growing number of enthusiasts who have indicated a desire to use the pool both early and late. As summer progresses, it is not impossible that the hours will be still further lengthened.

Yesterday's advices included announcement of the appointment of Charles E. Kurtzman, formerly field director of the Fox Eastern circuit of theaters, to the managing directorship of the Roxy Theater in New York, the largest theater in the world, opened and conducted for so long by Samuel L. Rothafel, better known as "Roxy." Mr. Kurtzman, who has been a frequent visitor in Washington, received the appointment from Harry Arthur, Fox general manager, upon his return from a vacation trip to Bermuda. Congratulations to them both.

Yesterday's callers, by the way, were Nell Paxton, organist at the Earle in association with Milton Davis, and Maxine Doyle, the mellifluous mistress of ceremonies, proudly exhibiting an armful of her new pictures. Now to find some good place to have it framed!

And that reminds me. While the ingenuous Miss Doyle is progressing nicely toward a record for continuous service at the Earle, things are not going so well for the masculine masters of ceremonies—even the best of them.

A definite movement looking to the abolishment of the m. c. seems to be on foot. There is no longer a major domo, permanent or otherwise, presiding at the Capitol Theater in New York; Rudy Vallee is soon to move out of the Paramount Theaters in Manhattan and Brooklyn—not to be replaced—Ted Claire has been dropped entirely by Loew, Dave Schooler has suffered a slash in salary, according to report, and on Wednesday of this week our own Wesley Eddy was handed his eight weeks' notice, despite a three-year contract with a specific salary stipulation well up there on the way to $1,000 per week—not that much, to be sure, but more than half of it.

This means, unless present plans are altered, that Wes will finish with Loew the week of August 20 in Syracuse, N. Y. And I hope this New York tip is wrong—as, no doubt, so do you?

Speaking of the Palace, the Loew ace house now may boast a new claim to distinction. Orangelo Ratto, the veteran house manager, whom golf has not been able to lure, horseback riding tempt or motoring intrigue, recently was inducted into the strenuous mysteries of ping pong, following a dinner party to which he was bidden as honored guest!

So fascinated did Mr. Ratto become by this gruelling test of brain, brawn and stamina that he has issued a blanket challenge to all of the first flight of ping pongers in the District for the 230-pound championship—no holds barred!

Those wishing to engage Mr. Ratto in this back-breaking sport had best do so at once, before Mr. Cullen, managing director of the Loew interests, departs Monday evening for a two weeks' vacation at Virginia Beach and leaves him holding the bag.

Edgar Waite, the genial and eminently capable young man who for the past four months has served as director of advertising and publicity for the Fox Theater in this city, within the next week or two will move on to wider fields and greater emoluments as an executive of the New York home office of Fox.

While this department extends its warmest congratulations to Mr. Waite, it regrets the loss of a helpful associate with whom, upon every occasion and under all circumstances, it has been a pleasure to deal.

In producing their official Chicago 1932 World's Fair Spectacle at a reputed cost of some $400,000, Fanchon & Marco will have to step a bit to surpass the production of "America" that occupied the Auditorium during the World's Columbian Exposition in '93.

Or so my grandmother tells me!

Caddy Held as Vagrant Criticizes Pratt's Golf

A Negro caddy was freed of a charge of vagrancy in Police Court yesterday after testifying he had caddied for Maj. Henry G. Pratt, chief of police, and had qualified his assertion with the remark that the major didn't play good golf.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt, before whom the case was heard, asked Eddie Enell if he ever worked, and the man replied that he was a golf caddy. His remark about the chief of police was greeted by laughter in the courtroom, and Enell was acquitted shortly afterward.

Florida Case Hits Former Governor

Catts to Face Grand Jury in Taking of Equipment From Cafe.

Defuniak Springs, Fla., June 25 (A.P.).—Because he is alleged to have smashed the lock and door on a cafe here and hauled away pots, pans and other articles, including the kitchen stove, Sidney J. Catts, former Governor of Florida, tonight faced grand jury action on charges of breaking and entering.

Similar charges were filed against five other men, alleged accomplices of Catts, who served as chief executive from 1917 to 1921. All were released on $500 bond each.

Catts admitted he backed a truck up to the cafe early on the morning of June 16 and carted the goods away. He said he did it after he learned that Sam Satey, cafe owner, who owed him some money, was planning to leave town.

Pollard to Pardon Man Who Fled Prison, 1919

Richmond, Va., June 25 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard today said he will pardon Jesse Straudman, who voluntarily returned to the Virginia Penitentiary Monday after living the life of a good citizen in Youngstown, Ohio, since he escaped from a prison camp in 1919.

The governor said the pardon is assured, but the technicality of making it effective is a matter that must await the return of Maj. Rice M. Yousll, prison superintendent, who today was out of the city.

BRITISH LAMENTATION.

A rare bit of amusement is in store for the American, regardless of his politics, who gives ear to what British statesmen are saying about the American tariff in these parlous times. Remarks on this subject by both Premier MacDonald and would-be Premier Lloyd George entitle them to a high rank with the humorists of their age. All that prevents them from receiving credit as such is the tragedy of English free trade which they seek to cover by their fulminations against the American tariff.

Free trade Britain, they say, is floundering in a bog created by other countries' protective barriers. Premier MacDonald bewails the difficulties of trying "to surmount the bad results of the poverty prevalent in foreign tariff-ridden countries." Mr. Lloyd George joins in the chorus with a statement that he has copied almost verbatim from loose-tongued calamity howlers in this country. "A deficit of 200,000,000 pounds sterling," he says, is what protection has done for the greatest protectionist country in the world."

It is strange indeed that these statesmen should be so distressed over the stupidity of the United States and so little concerned about the welfare of their own people. Do they think to cover up what free trade has done to Britain by shouting from the house tops cheap propaganda as to the effect of protection in America? It is a novelty indeed for Americans to learn that this country has been ruined by the tariff or anything else. But, of course, these tales of woe in America are intended for British consumption only. When British politicians talk for Americans to hear their words are full of intimations that Europe must perish soon unless the United States agrees to cancel war debts.

Nevertheless, it should be stated for the benefit of Britain's deluded politicians that America continues to do its share of the world's business. The decline in trade on this side of the Atlantic seems large to Europe because America deals in quantities vastly greater than does the Old World. But as a matter of fact, this country continues to ship about 10 per cent of its produce abroad and to furnish about the same proportion of all goods entering into international trade as it did before the depression began.

But what of Britain with its glorious free trade? Figures direct from London show that imports declined 16.5 per cent for April as compared with the same month a year ago. That is a good showing. Britain continues to be a good market for many nations even in hard times. But how did British industry fare? Exports for April were 30.5 per cent below those of last year. It must be painfully evident to every Englishman that the government has allowed Britain to be swamped with foreign goods because of its failure to give domestic products preference in the home market.

Is Premier MacDonald proud of the fact that the importation of pig iron and steel products actually increased 3 per cent, while the export of these same commodities fell off 28.4 per cent? It is not surprising that Britain has millions of workers on the dole. When hard times came upon the world nearly every nation took steps to protect its own industries. Since Britain failed to do so, surplus production from all parts of the world is shipped to the "tight little island" while its own workmen remain unemployed. Yet blind leaders of the blind have the naivete to decry what protection has done to America.

SOCIAL PROGRESS.

The social sciences are the youngest branches of knowledge. While the physical sciences are forging ahead, with the capture of new cosmic rays that may break down the atom, and receiving laudations for many remarkable discoveries, economics and sociology are being criticized for having permitted the present depression. Experiments in physics, chemistry and medicine are constantly breaking into new ground, but the experiments in sociology that are being carried on today will not show their effects for years to come.

The present business crisis has brought into the limelight numberless theories for economic relief, but, unlike most other scientific formula they can not all be tried with a view to selecting the best one. The social sciences are still in their infancy, and their progress must necessarily be slow. But they are steadily extending the ground work for a more comprehensive understanding of the forces that shape our social life.

Dr. Charles A. Beard recently stated in an address that the time had come for science to step forward or admit bankruptcy. He said: "Business and political leadership is paralyzed. Five million men and women are walking the streets in search of work in the midst of unlimited wealth. Is it possible that mankind has conquered the physical universe but can not make wise and efficient use of its discoveries?"

Unfortunately mankind does not always use its resources to the best advantage. It may be often the fault of man's stupidity and greed, but frequently it is due to the fact that experimentation requires much time. Man learns best by the process of trial and error. In the field of sociology and economics experiments take many years. The present depression has not proved the bankruptcy of these sciences. It has rather emphasized their great importance.

CHICAGO'S TAX MUDDLE.

Chicago is still floundering in its morass of financial difficulties. Mayor Cermak has labored unceasingly to solve the tangled tax situation. But his efforts to secure payment of taxes now two years overdue have all met with failure due to political opposition.

The last blow was the absolute rejection by the Legislature of the Cermak program of financial reform based on the demands of business men and bankers of Chicago. Since the Legislature has now adjourned there is no further hope from that direction. Gov. Emmerson has announced that he will not call a special session until all local officials are agreed upon a plan of action.

Opposition to the 1929 tax assessment has crystallized in a suit brought by taxpayers to cancel the levy as "incomplete, illegal, fraudulent, unrevised and incorrect." Taxes delinquent for the last three years now total $170,000,000 and the impost for the current year has not yet been made. The hard-pressed city government is paying the police force and firemen from special funds and by borrowing. These sources will yield an additional $20,000,000 with which Mayor Cermak can operate for the next three months, though it may be necessary to suspend all public improvements.

The schools of the city are in serious straits, with teachers and civil service employes unpaid for two months and no funds in sight to meet the $10,000,000 that is due them.

Mayor Cermak has met with discouraging opposition from the politicians of his own party as well as Republicans in his efforts to reform the tax machinery. General sentiment appears determined to reduce the percentage basis of tax levies on assessed valuation. A reduction of 1 per cent from the 2½ per cent basis would probably make necessary a stricter application of personal property taxes. An income tax has also been suggested. Between political exactions and the conditions laid down by the bankers, which must be met if their help is to be secured in refinancing the city, the mayor's task of rescuing the bankrupt municipality is a herculean one.

HOLLYWOOD GETS A BOOST.

Removal of restrictions against the importation of American films into France is a notable victory for the motion picture industry of this country. The ruling of the French Cinema Control Commission is made effective for one year, but it is generally regarded as the end of the controversial film quota system. American concerns may now ship as many films to France as the market demands.

The purpose of the film quota was to develop the French motion picture industry. America is more proficient in the production of entertaining films than any other country. Motion pictures made in Hollywood carry American customs, interests, manners and influence throughout the world. France was annoyed by the enormous demand for American films in that country and the very small sale of French "movies" in the United States. The quota system was, therefore, worked out to maintain a definite ratio in the exchange of films. American producers were granted seven import licenses for every French film licensed in the United States.

Apparently France has discovered that this quota system is ineffective. Americans could not be induced to buy French films by depriving the French of American films. Cinema producers succeed or fail according to their appeal to the public. Obviously, the French industry can be extended only when it makes a universal appeal to the public. Attempts to force competitors to buy inferior screen dramas tend to retard the production of films of a higher type.

One other element has doubtless entered into this decision. Motion pictures have been largely displaced by the "talkies." Transformation of a talking film from one language to another is not the simple process that was required to make silent films understandable to a foreign people. Hence, fewer American pictures are sold. Each country is forced to rely more than formerly upon its own talent and industry. No doubt the advent of the "talkie" has been a powerful influence in the termination of the quota system.

France's action is especially significant because it may induce other European countries to discard their restrictive quotas for American films. Germany, Austria, Hungary and Italy satisfy the appetites of their inhabitants for Hollywood drama only to the extent that America patronizes their respective stars. Since France has recognized the futility of this method of stimulating home industry, these countries, too, may allow their people to choose their own entertainment.

MR. FORD'S EXPERIMENT.

It was announced a short time ago that Henry Ford was undertaking an experiment in large scale farming. This news in itself commands widespread interest, but the more recent statement of his final aims make the project appear to be of even greater importance than a purely agricultural venture. There have been large corporation farms before, many of them have attained marked success, but none has ever interested the public generally.

The most revolutionary idea of the Ford plan is the wage scale. If a five-dollar-a-day minimum wage for eight hours of labor proves successful it can not but affect agriculture all over the country. Conceivably it might, in time, weed out those inefficient farmers who now contribute to the agricultural surplus.

These highly paid field workers are not to be subject to seasonal unemployment, for it is Mr. Ford's ultimate aim to have his men work half the year in the factory and the other half in the open. He believes that summer is no time for a man to work indoors and will attempt to remedy the present custom.

In connection with the farm will be a well equipped laboratory that will endeavor to find, not only the most efficient methods of farming, but also to discover new uses for agricultural products. Mr. Ford says:

"Farming has existed so far to supply the table. This, however, can be done with about 1 per cent of the effort now being given to farming. What agriculture needs is an industrial outlet. Is it possible to 'grow' an automobile? Will it eventually be possible to grow in the earth material which we now get from forests and mines? If the answer is 'yes' it will mean that agriculture will have an industrial market and will require more labor."

It is impossible to forecast the outcome of this venture, but it will prove to be a valuable experiment whatever the results may be. One thing is certain. It could not have been handled by an agency that could have given it more general attention and prestige. The whole country will be interested in Mr. Ford's farm.

All that a debt moratorium means in Senator La Follette's young life is another excuse to ask for an extra session of Congress. But that is easily understood. The summer must be dreadfully dull for him when he has absolutely nothing to object to.

Moscow considers President Hoover's debt proposal "an empty gesture." Apparently that means that since the Soviet has refused to pay any of its debts, it can't expect to reap any benefits from the proposal.

It is possible, of course, that the Democratic leaders who are urging the President into these debt negotiations are actuated by benevolent thoughts for other people besides the Germans.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 25.—The developments of the last few weeks have been distinctly encouraging to business. A United States Court decided that it was not a violation of the antitrust law for two concerns to consolidate and the Government did not appeal. With the exception of some of the Northwest, crop conditions are good. Prices are low, but the people on the land by working hard are producing at a low cost. The price of raw materials has shown a slight improvement. The effort of the railroads to increase rates has met with remarkably little public opposition. Whatever may be the decision of the commission it is evident the people want fair treatment for the railroads. Considerable improvement has taken place in the price of securities. It is too soon to estimate the final result of the proposal of President Hoover to assist Germany, but it seems certain some plan of relief will be adopted. The almost universal good temper in which the proposal was received is most reassuring. We have difficult problems and an uncertain future, but many facts indicate more confidence and better conditions at the present time. The main element in the improvement has been plain hard work.

REGIONAL PATRIOTISM.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

"I am a Cantonese," said Dr. C. C. Wu, Chinese Minister to Washington, explaining his resignation when his government asked him to request the State Department temporarily to removes the arms embargo so that shipments might be made to China for use against the sol-disant government at Canton. Dr. Wu's comment, while bringing to the fore the new schism in China, is indicative of a loyalty which is as alien to old Chinese concepts as it is to the new national idea.

It is this evolution in loyalty which lies back of the hubbub of marching men and jealous war lords. In traditional China the corporate tie never reached higher than the family. When a Chinese said, "I am a Chinese," he was thinking in terms of a way of life, of a civilization, rather than of a national entity. This feeling of a distinctive civilization made up for the lack of a national consciousness in helping the country to survive for 5,000 years as a civilized state.

The Chinese family is not the narrow unit with which the Westerner is familiar. Quantitatively, it stands midway between the Western family and the tribe, but it leaned toward the tribe in the extent of the autonomy which it enjoyed in the life of traditional China. Since loyalty was bounded by the family, it was no wonder that such an agglomeration of almost self-governing families fell into chaos on the collapse of the unifying instrument which kept them together, namely, the monarchy.

Canton, to which Dr. Wu has so proudly given his allegiance, is the home of the new national spirit in China which became necessary to solidify the country on the disappearance of the monarchy. It was a famous Cantonese in the person of Sun Yat-sen who gave his countrymen a realization that they were being governed in the Manchus by an alien dynasty. He and his associates later organized a Nationalist party which seized power in 1927 and established a party dictatorship whose specific function was to tutor the vast body of Chinese people in national consciousness.

Presumably the tutors had a national feeling when they set out on this errand. But by falling out among themselves they are giving the country at worst an example of personal jealousy and at best an example of sectionalism. The rival government at Canton is a counterblast to the measures taken by Chiang Kai-shek and the leading members of the Nanking government in shouldering well-known Cantonese out of office. There is a saying that the Cantonese will dominate the government or become autonomous. The schism gives a certain plausibility to the saying, but it must be regarded against the background of China's embryonic nationalism.

POST HASTE.

The sudden Hoover hurrah has left the Democrats as busy looking for a fly in the argument as the Progressives are searching for a flaw in the ointment.

New York hasn't quite matched Chicago yet, but has discovered a beer baron's boodle amounting to nearly a million.

British Woolworth profits are up 10 per cent. This looks prosperous unless it means that the Johnnies are buying 10-cent neckties and meals.

Too bad moratoriums and Cambridge degrees were so coincidental. A prenatal, instead of a post facto, consultation in Paris by Dr. Mellon might have averted complications.

Il Duce accepts debt delay in principle. If he can out-bull the Pope he may take time to state his attitude in detail.

England passes on the moratorium to her dominions. What a noble example for all mortgagees!

The president of the New York Stock Exchange finds that the changing whims of fashion play hob with consumption. Right. Restore the gay '90 mode of embonpointish feminine form divine and the problem of wheat surplus would be solved.

Atlantic airplane crossings will still have to be cut in half. A pilot in regular service taking 16 hours would have to belong to two unions.

Hoover is nominated for the Nobel peace prize. But he's going to have some competition from those fellows who are trying to settle the church and state wars in Italy, Spain and Mexico.

If our Government didn't have scruples, a lottery on the final figures of the deficit would easily net enough to wipe it out.

It is evident that the Radio Commission is determined not to be outsplit in its decisions by the Supreme Court.

If the newly authorized tariff boost on dried eggs is absolutely prohibitive it is enough. Think what the cook would do, starting with dried eggs.

Of course, the uniform increase to a uniform wholesale price for cigarettes was just a coincidence. Didn't the Sherman law give the oil importers and Secretary Wilbur the wink.

Don't bother about the small-fry issue of $100,000,000 the Treasury will put out. Bills will be limited to a maximum of $100,000.

"What will happen when the stimulus of the 'managed recovery' wears off?" Pass the nux vomica, Dr. Gloom.

JUST FOLKS

GOLFER'S PRAYER.

I do not ask for more than this:
That easy shots I may not miss.
Let champions take the sterner way,
I would be friendly as I play,
And only hope that I may be
Fit for good golfers' company;
Dependable in moments tense,
Taking the bad shot's consequence
Without excuses trite and lame,
Playing a fairly decent game.

Lord, as along the course I strive
I would not every man outdrive.
I ask but this: that shots of mine,
Though long or short, shall hold the line;
That Brown and Green and Jones and Smith
Shall know I must be reckoned with
As one who still will battle on
Until the chance to win is gone.
No better and no worse I'd be
Than those I choose for company.

And so with life, through good or ill,
My place with courage I would fill.
I'd play the friend till all is o'er,
Nor think too much about the score.
I would not sulk when hope seems faint,
I'd brave the worst without complaint.
When others look for help from me,
Dependable I'd like to be,
And have it said unto my fame
I played a fairly decent game.

Any Boy Can Be President, if He Has the Ability, Chance, Luck and Votes.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IT is frequently said by the able and the fortunate that any youth who desires an education can get it.

The truth of the statement depends largely on the meaning given the word "education."

There are many young people who can't acquire a college education or so much as a high school education regardless of the opportunity they are given.

A recent survey of the public schools in a number of States reveals that 3.5 per cent of the children enrolled are feeble-minded and 15 per cent mentally below normal.

These will have all the education they can absorb before they quit the grammar school.

But if you assume that any youth with ambition enough to thirst for education has the intellectual ability to absorb it, and if by education you mean the knowledge commonly acquired in high schools and colleges, then it is true that any youth who desires an education can get it.

But here, again, the statement must be qualified.

If a boy's parents can't afford to pay his way through school, he may be able to work his way through; but in order to pay his own way he must know how to earn money.

You hear much about the sturdy lad who works his way through college, but for every one who succeeds there are nine who try it and fail.

A youth blessed with unusual physical and mental powers, or one fortunate enough to find an easy job that pays well, can keep up with his classes while earning the money to pay expenses. But the ordinary boy will crack under the strain. His only chance is to work a year and study a year and so alternate until his course is finished—or else slight his studies and depend on the sympathy of his instructors, in which case he will not get an education but only a diploma.

Those who have dependents to support have little hope except in correspondence schools.

By working during the day and studying at night, they can get as much knowledge as others acquire in college; but it is a rough and lonely trail to follow and none but the fittest reach the end.

Getting a real education isn't an easy business, even for those who have every advantage; and to say that a boy can get one despite every handicap is almost equivalent to saying that he has ability enough to succeed without it.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Hoover Statesmanship.

Christian Science Monitor.

The wisdom and statesmanship of President Hoover's bold proposal for a year's suspension of all payments on war debts and reparations are becoming more apparent hourly. Already the effect has been electrical. This is due more to the intangible implications of the proposal than to the material benefits which Germany will receive, great as those are. Neither his credit standing nor his relations with his creditor are improved when a debtor seeks to suspend payments on his debts. But if the creditor takes the initiative, the same result is accompanied by an improvement in both credit standing and relations.

Germany felt compelled to wait for its reparation creditors to make the first move. Here the situation was complicated by the divergence of opinion as to who was the real creditor. In their part Germany's creditors looked to their own creditor, the United States.

For European Stability.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

President Hoover's proposal to declare a year's moratorium on all war debts and reparations has been heard by European governments and is being sifted by them. Naturally, Washington admits no intention of cancellation or even reduction of the debts. But the proposal indicates an entire change of face, if not of policy, regarding the interlocked economics of Europe and America. The Administration admits the bearing of the war debts on the economy of post-war Europe, and takes the lead in proposing at least a temporary adjustment of this problem to avoid the total collapse of Central Europe.

Jim Won't Mind.

Atlanta Constitution.

Senator Watson will run again for the Senate, which will give the Democrats of Indiana a fine chance to tell him where to get off.

Politics Butts In.

New York Times.

It was inevitable that the Republicans should seek at once to capitalize for their party what the President has attempted to do for the whole world. This is the inveterate American way. It has been adopted and applied by both parties many times under different Administrations. But it seems particularly ungracious just now, when we are all talking of the unselfish spirit in which Mr. Hoover has acted, and of the sacrifices which America is expected to make, to put a partisan interpretation upon the whole affair.

Democrats will be tempted to see if they can do anything of that sort for their own party. But they will be well advised not to assume a carping attitude toward the stroke by Mr. Hoover which has won him applause from nations across the sea. Most of the Democratic leaders who have spoken about the matter at all have been discreet and even handsome in their praise of the President. But a certain amount of yapping has already been heard from irresponsible members of the party, and there is danger that its volume may increase. It ought to have an extinguisher clapped upon it. The Democrats have nothing to gain by attacking a policy just because it has been proclaimed by a Republican President.

Glass Houses.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

LaGuardia's whine that the President has hit Congress below the belt won't get any sympathy, because his crowd has done that to the President many times.

Enemy Advice.

Milwaukee Journal.

Our sincere advice to the young Republicans is not to believe everything the old Republicans tell them.

It doesn't look as if Hoover is going to get much of a vacation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Proposed Debt Moratorium Is Hailed as Stroke for Better International Understanding, but Writer Warns America Against Foolish Altruism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The widespread favor with which the proposed international debt moratorium is being welcomed reminds me of the situation when Uncle Sam entered the World War. Prior thereto, owing to the fact that we took time to think, it began to be insinuated in Europe that perhaps this country was too mercenary to fight for democracy.

When the United States did finally join the allies against the kaiser, we were stirred by a spirit of altruism such as in all history no other country has ever shown. And with the end of the war, having demonstrated our ability to chase Germans as well as dollars, our attitude in reference to world rehabilitation was very much too idealistic to suit the unregenerated diplomacy of Europe.

The great lesson of the war was that, in spite of cynical assertions to the contrary, the American people are above everything else idealists in their view of world politics. Today the President's proposal of a one-year suspension of reparations and debt payment strengthens that belief.

Europe has come to its present unpleasant fiscal pass through no fault of the United States. The crippled Germany, which is the source of all the trouble, would not have been hamstrung had consideration been given to the far-sighted American idealism which was voiced by President Wilson.

In governmental affairs as well as in the affairs of individuals, there should be a nice balance between the ideal and the practical. Profiting by past experience, our country should insist that warlike expenditures be renounced by Europe as a salutary act of good faith in connection with the international debt holiday.

In smoothing out the situation we should not, in other words, fail to realize the possibility of a foolish altruism which might be just as unsatisfactory in its ultimate effect on the world at large as would the assumption of a militaristic attitude on our part.

If the moratorium results in a saner understanding and a more friendly feeling between the nations of Europe, even the loss of a few millions by the taxpayers of America would not matter.

Indeed, insofar as it eliminates selfishness from the relationship of nations, it will prove an inestimable blessing. The assumption is that they will try to make the best of it without mental reservation. The cause of world peace would suffer a serious setback if Uncle Sam should be made the "easy mark" of an international confidence game.

Mr. Lewisohn Points Out How Happiness Is a By-Product of Making Others Happy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Happiness in this world depends greatly on our association with other people. We do not stand alone in the world. Unless we feel the obligation to try and make others happy and contented we can not be happy ourselves. No happiness exists in ourselves alone, it must always be in association with others, our friendships and connections. Service to others helps to make us happy. It is our duty and obligation to be kind and helpful to those in our surroundings, to care for our families and our dependents, to share with others, to be interested in the success of our city and of our Nation, and to use our accomplishments for the benefit of our friends and associates. If we feel kindly disposed to others we gain their confidence. It helps to make us happy if we have attained the approval of those who surround us. To share with others is a great step toward happiness. I always feel that wealth and success, when attained, are lasting and beneficial only if we feel that we hold our wealth and success in trusteeship, so that it will be of benefit to those we love and to those in whom we are interested. Even after we are gone, a good reputation, if well deserved, lives forever.

ADOLPH LEWISOHN.

Let I Wonder Stop and Doff His Hat at the Next Drenched Female He Encounters and He Shall Wonder No More.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can recall the time when the average motorist seeing a girl getting drenched in a storm would stop and give her a lift to any desired destination. That was many years ago. In the terrific downpour we had here Tuesday, I noticed any number of well dressed young ladies standing under trees, seeking shelter from the rain. Many lone motorists passed them by without a thought of giving any assistance. One does not mind seeing a man get drenched but there is something about a drenched woman that is very unpleasant. Is it a question of whether the girls prefer to get drenched rather than get in a car with some one or is it that man has lost much of the old-time chivalry and is just too busy to bother with a girl who is in distress? I wonder which it is!

I. WONDER.

Testimony of an Old Observer of the Prohibition Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am referring to the letter of Mr. Bradford Witherspoon and wish to say that I was born in New York State March 12, 1849, and have seen quite a little of the prohibition question and I am sure we are one thousand times better off today than we were a few years ago under the license law. A POLICY FIGHT IS IN ADHERENTS ands for Revision Are newed; Conference of Leaders Asked.

(Associated Press.)

mands for a reexamination of Farm Board's stabilization wheat policy yesterday gained new e.

epresentative Andresen (Republic-, Minnesota, suggested a round-le conference attended by Presi-it Hoover, Agriculture Secretary de and Chairman Stone of the rm Board to determine exactly at is to be done with more than 0,000,000 bushels of wheat bought steady domestic markets.

The view is held in some adminis-ation quarters that when Mr. Stone turns today from his Western trip, he board, influenced by insistent lamoring for a more definite state-nent of policy, is likely to study the uestion again and that the chairman may outline the board's position to the President.

Policy Revision Held Doubtful.

Nevertheless, these same quarters believe the board's recent affirmation of its March 23 policy of handling the stabilization supply "in such a way as to impose the minimum burden on domestic and world prices" will not be modified.

Requests for a definite pledge that the wheat will not be sold for a year, or until prices improve, have come in increasing numbers to both the board and the White House. Mr. Hoover is known to be keenly interested in the situation.

Should an immediate conference with Mr. Hoover take place, Secretary Hyde will not be present unless he is called back from a month's vacation on which he left Wednesday night.

The Farm Board said yesterday no plans had been made for Stone on his arrival today to see the President.

Stand Is Reaffirmed.

Kansas grain men were told last week after a request for a definite pledge had been made, that the board would stand on its March 23 statement. Representatives of the grain trade who met with Stone here in May also were given the same answer. Some traders insist the stabilized holdings have a depressing effect on domestic markets.

The board is said to feel that it wants to be free to take advantage of any favorable situation in the world trade. Stone has said wheat would be sold abroad if a market is found and if it does not adversely affect prices.

In contrast to the opposition to the board's stand, a large number of letters have been received by the board supporting its position. Many of these come from the grain regions and the grain trade.

Tour Ends Convention Of Railway Surgeons

A trip to Mount Vernon and a sightseeing tour of the city brought the annual convention of the Association of Surgeons of the Southern Railway System to a close yesterday. Members and their families, numbering several hundred, after spending a short time at Mount Vernon, visited the Capitol, the Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial and other places of interest.

The convention opened Tuesday with business sessions which lasted throughout the day. Wednesday, the doctors held clinics at Emergency and Walter Reed Hospitals.

$75,000,000 Veterans' Loans Held by Banks

(Associated Press.)

The veterans administration yesterday estimated the amount of veterans' loans held by banks at $75,000,000. This estimate was as of June 20.

At that time the total loans made by the Government totaled $1,145,432,753, including $785,951,603 made since the 50 per cent loan law went into effect. During the week immediately preceding that date 18,105 applications for loans were received.

ROADS WOULD RAISE ALL FREIGHT RATES

Reply to I. C. C. Declares Lines Do Not Consider Any Exemptions.

(Associated Press.)

Railroad officials lost no time in notifying the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday that they expect to include every variety of freight in their requested 15 per cent rate increase.

Given two weeks to respond to a commission inquiry asking if any commodities were to be excepted, the lines placed their reply before the commission in less than five days. They have urged that speed be one of first considerations in the commission's disposal of their petition for the increase.

The response of the roads was embodied in a resolution adopted Wednesday in Chicago and promptly forwarded here by air mail. Although pointing out that no exceptions are contemplated now, it left the way open for deviations after the increase has been approved.

Would Make Necessary Changes.

"Experience has shown," it said, "that where any general change in the entire rate structure of the country is authorized and becomes effective, it has subsequently been found to be necessary to make changes and readjustments, in some instances reductions, to meet competition and other situations."

The original petition claiming the railroads faced an emergency in their financial situation was filed June 17. Members of the commission on June 21 conferred with the cooperation committee of the National Association of Utilities and Railroad Commissioners and arranged for joint hearings.

Immediately afterward an order was issued asking the railroads to clarify their petition as to the lines participating, and what, if any, commodities or classes of freight would be exempted.

Water Lines Joint Appeal.

The only step remaining to fulfil the order is for the individual lines to enter written appearances. Yesterday's communication advised the commission that, in addition to all steam railroads, all water lines participating in rail and water rates had agreed to the proceeding and that all international rates are proposed to be increased.

Speculation arose yesterday in railroad circles as to the effect of the answer on the length of time necessary to decide the case.

Under normal conditions, the proceedings would last at least six months. Should it be necessary to hold hearings throughout the country, a year or even more might be necessary.

Camp Good Will Plans Completed by Kiwanis

Plans have been completed for the annual two weeks' camp for mothers and children at Camp Good Will in Rock Creek Park, to start next Wednesday, it was announced at a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club yesterday by Edward S. Pardoe, chairman of transportation of the camp.

Canon Sherman Coolidge was the guest speaker, and entertainment was given at the luncheon by Miss Anna F. Kimball, soprano and violinist, and Miss Ruth F. Kimball, pianist, daughters of Harry G. Kimball, former president of the Washington Kiwanis Club and former District governor of the Capital District of Kiwanis Clubs, and by Miss Mary Vickers, contralto at Christ Church in Baltimore.

Sheriff to Face Senate Contempt Charge Today

Philadelphia, June 25 (A.P.).—Thomas W. Cunningham, sheriff of Philadelphia and treasurer of the Republican State committee, today posted $1,000 bail in the Federal District Court for his appearance in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to answer a charge of contempt of the United States Senate. He is expected to appear in court in Washington tomorrow.

The contempt charge grew out of Cunningham's refusal to give the source of $50,000 he contributed to the campaign fund of William S. Vare in the senatorial campaign of 1926. Cunningham refused to answer questions while a witness before a senatorial investigation committee.

BRITISH LAMENTATION.

A rare bit of amusement is in store for the American, regardless of his politics, who gives ear to what British statesmen are saying about the American tariff in these parlous times. Remarks on this subject by both Premier MacDonald and would-be Premier Lloyd George entitle them to a high rank with the humorists of their age. All that prevents them from receiving credit as such is the tragedy of English free trade which they seek to cover by their fulminations against the American tariff.

Free trade Britain, they say, is floundering in a bog created by other countries' protective barriers. Premier MacDonald bewails the difficulties of trying "to surmount the bad results of the poverty prevalent in foreign tariff-ridden countries." Mr. Lloyd George joins in the chorus with a statement that he has copied almost verbatim from loose-tongued calamity howlers in this country. "A deficit of 200,000,000 pounds sterling," he says, is what protection has done for the greatest protectionist country in the world."

It is strange indeed that these statesmen should be so distressed over the stupidity of the United States and so little concerned about the welfare of their own people. Do they think to cover up what free trade has done to Britain by shouting from the house tops cheap propaganda as to the effect of protection in America? It is a novelty indeed for Americans to learn that this country has been ruined by the tariff or anything else. But, of course, these tales of woe in America are intended for British consumption only. When British politicians talk for Americans to hear their words are full of intimations that Europe must perish soon unless the United States agrees to cancel war debts.

Nevertheless, it should be stated for the benefit of Britain's deluded politicians that America continues to do its share of the world's business. The decline in trade on this side of the Atlantic seems large to Europe because America deals in quantities vastly greater than does the Old World. But as a matter of fact, this country continues to ship about 10 per cent of its produce abroad and to furnish about the same proportion of all goods entering into international trade as it did before the depression began.

But what of Britain with its glorious free trade? Figures direct from London show that imports declined 16.5 per cent for April as compared with the same month a year ago. That is a good showing. Britain continues to be a good market for many nations even in hard times. But how did British industry fare? Exports for April were 30.5 per cent below those of last year. It must be painfully evident to every Englishman that the government has allowed Britain to be swamped with foreign goods because of its failure to give domestic products preference in the home market.

Is Premier MacDonald proud of the fact that the importation of pig iron and steel products actually increased 3 per cent, while the export of these same commodities fell off 28.4 per cent? It is not surprising that Britain has millions of workers on the dole. When hard times came upon the world nearly every nation took steps to protect its own industries. Since Britain failed to do so, surplus production from all parts of the world is shipped to the "tight little island" while its own workmen remain unemployed. Yet blind leaders of the blind have the naivete to decry what protection has done to America.

SOCIAL PROGRESS.

The social sciences are the youngest branches of knowledge. While the physical sciences are forging ahead, with the capture of new cosmic rays that may break down the atom, and receiving laudations for many remarkable discoveries, economics and sociology are being criticized for having permitted the present depression. Experiments in physics, chemistry and medicine are constantly breaking into new ground, but the experiments in sociology that are being carried on today will not show their effects for years to come.

The present business crisis has brought into the limelight numberless theories for economic relief, but, unlike most other scientific formula they can not all be tried with a view to selecting the best one. The social sciences are still in their infancy, and their progress must necessarily be slow. But they are steadily extending the ground work for a more comprehensive understanding of the forces that shape our social life.

Dr. Charles A. Beard recently stated in an address that the time had come for science to step forward or admit bankruptcy. He said: "Business and political leadership is paralyzed. Five million men and women are walking the streets in search of work in the midst of unlimited wealth. Is it possible that mankind has conquered the physical universe but can not make wise and efficient use of its discoveries?"

Unfortunately mankind does not always use its resources to the best advantage. It may be often the fault of man's stupidity and greed, but frequently it is due to the fact that experimentation requires much time. Man learns best by the process of trial and error. In the field of sociology and economics experiments take many years. The present depression has not proved the bankruptcy of these sciences. It has rather emphasized their great importance.

CHICAGO'S TAX MUDDLE.

Chicago is still floundering in its morass of financial difficulties. Mayor Cermak has labored unceasingly to solve the tangled tax situation. But his efforts to secure payment of taxes now two years overdue have all met with failure due to political opposition.

The last blow was the absolute rejection by the Legislature of the Cermak program of financial reform based on the demands of business men and bankers of Chicago. Since the Legislature has now adjourned there is no further hope from that direction. Gov. Emmerson has announced that he will not call a special session until all local officials are agreed upon a plan of action.

Opposition to the 1929 tax assessment has crystallized in a suit brought by taxpayers to cancel the levy as "incomplete, illegal, fraudulent, unrevised and incorrect." Taxes delinquent for the last three years now total $170,000,000 and the impost for the current year has not yet been made. The hard-pressed city government is paying the police force and firemen from special funds and by borrowing. These sources will yield an additional $20,000,000 with which Mayor Cermak can operate for the next three months, though it may be necessary to suspend all public improvements.

The schools of the city are in serious straits, with teachers and civil service employes unpaid for two months and no funds in sight to meet the $10,000,000 that is due them.

Mayor Cermak has met with discouraging opposition from the politicians of his own party as well as Republicans in his efforts to reform the tax machinery. General sentiment appears determined to reduce the percentage basis of tax levies on assessed valuation. A reduction of 1 per cent from the 2½ per cent basis would probably make necessary a stricter application of personal property taxes. An income tax has also been suggested. Between political exactions and the conditions laid down by the bankers, which must be met if their help is to be secured in refinancing the city, the mayor's task of rescuing the bankrupt municipality is a herculean one.

HOLLYWOOD GETS A BOOST.

Removal of restrictions against the importation of American films into France is a notable victory for the motion picture industry of this country. The ruling of the French Cinema Control Commission is made effective for one year, but it is generally regarded as the end of the controversial film quota system. American concerns may now ship as many films to France as the market demands.

The purpose of the film quota was to develop the French motion picture industry. America is more proficient in the production of entertaining films than any other country. Motion pictures made in Hollywood carry American customs, interests, manners and influence throughout the world. France was annoyed by the enormous demand for American films in that country and the very small sale of French "movies" in the United States. The quota system was, therefore, worked out to maintain a definite ratio in the exchange of films. American producers were granted seven import licenses for every French film licensed in the United States.

Apparently France has discovered that this quota system is ineffective. Americans could not be induced to buy French films by depriving the French of American films. Cinema producers succeed or fail according to their appeal to the public. Obviously, the French industry can be extended only when it makes a universal appeal to the public. Attempts to force competitors to buy inferior screen dramas tend to retard the production of films of a higher type.

One other element has doubtless entered into this decision. Motion pictures have been largely displaced by the "talkies." Transformation of a talking film from one language to another is not the simple process that was required to make silent films understandable to a foreign people. Hence, fewer American pictures are sold. Each country is forced to rely more than formerly upon its own talent and industry. No doubt the advent of the "talkie" has been a powerful influence in the termination of the quota system.

France's action is especially significant because it may induce other European countries to discard their restrictive quotas for American films. Germany, Austria, Hungary and Italy satisfy the appetites of their inhabitants for Hollywood drama only to the extent that America patronizes their respective stars. Since France has recognized the futility of this method of stimulating home industry, these countries, too, may allow their people to choose their own entertainment.

MR. FORD'S EXPERIMENT.

It was announced a short time ago that Henry Ford was undertaking an experiment in large scale farming. This news in itself commands widespread interest, but the more recent statement of his final aims make the project appear to be of even greater importance than a purely agricultural venture. There have been large corporation farms before, many of them have attained marked success, but none has ever interested the public generally.

The most revolutionary idea of the Ford plan is the wage scale. If a five-dollar-a-day minimum wage for eight hours of labor proves successful it can not but affect agriculture all over the country. Conceivably it might, in time, weed out those inefficient farmers who now contribute to the agricultural surplus.

These highly paid field workers are not to be subject to seasonal unemployment, for it is Mr. Ford's ultimate aim to have his men work half the year in the factory and the other half in the open. He believes that summer is no time for a man to work indoors and will attempt to remedy the present custom.

In connection with the farm will be a well equipped laboratory that will endeavor to find, not only the most efficient methods of farming, but also to discover new uses for agricultural products. Mr. Ford says:

"Farming has existed so far to supply the table. This, however, can be done with about 1 per cent of the effort now being given to farming. What agriculture needs is an industrial outlet. Is it possible to 'grow' an automobile? Will it eventually be possible to grow in the earth material which we now get from forests and mines? If the answer is 'yes' it will mean that agriculture will have an industrial market and will require more labor."

It is impossible to forecast the outcome of this venture, but it will prove to be a valuable experiment whatever the results may be. One thing is certain. It could not have been handled by an agency that could have given it more general attention and prestige. The whole country will be interested in Mr. Ford's farm.

All that a debt moratorium means in Senator La Follette's young life is another excuse to ask for an extra session of Congress. But that is easily understood. The summer must be dreadfully dull for him when he has absolutely nothing to object to.

Moscow considers President Hoover's debt proposal "an empty gesture." Apparently that means that since the Soviet has refused to pay any of its debts, it can't expect to reap any benefits from the proposal.

It is possible, of course, that the Democratic leaders who are urging the President into these debt negotiations are actuated by benevolent thoughts for other people besides the Germans.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 25.—The developments of the last few weeks have been distinctly encouraging to business. A United States Court decided that it was not a violation of the antitrust law for two concerns to consolidate and the Government did not appeal. With the exception of some of the Northwest, crop conditions are good. Prices are low, but the people on the land by working hard are producing at a low cost. The price of raw materials has shown a slight improvement. The effort of the railroads to increase rates has met with remarkably little public opposition. Whatever may be the decision of the commission it is evident the people want fair treatment for the railroads. Considerable improvement has taken place in the price of securities. It is too soon to estimate the final result of the proposal of President Hoover to assist Germany, but it seems certain some plan of relief will be adopted. The almost universal good temper in which the proposal was received is most reassuring. We have difficult problems and an uncertain future, but many facts indicate more confidence and better conditions at the present time. The main element in the improvement has been plain hard work.

REGIONAL PATRIOTISM.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

"I am a Cantonese," said Dr. C. C. Wu, Chinese Minister to Washington, explaining his resignation when his government asked him to request the State Department temporarily to removes the arms embargo so that shipments might be made to China for use against the sol-disant government at Canton. Dr. Wu's comment, while bringing to the fore the new schism in China, is indicative of a loyalty which is as alien to old Chinese concepts as it is to the new national idea.

It is this evolution in loyalty which lies back of the hubbub of marching men and jealous war lords. In traditional China the corporate tie never reached higher than the family. When a Chinese said, "I am a Chinese," he was thinking in terms of a way of life, of a civilization, rather than of a national entity. This feeling of a distinctive civilization made up for the lack of a national consciousness in helping the country to survive for 5,000 years as a civilized state.

The Chinese family is not the narrow unit with which the Westerner is familiar. Quantitatively, it stands midway between the Western family and the tribe, but it leaned toward the tribe in the extent of the autonomy which it enjoyed in the life of traditional China. Since loyalty was bounded by the family, it was no wonder that such an agglomeration of almost self-governing families fell into chaos on the collapse of the unifying instrument which kept them together, namely, the monarchy.

Canton, to which Dr. Wu has so proudly given his allegiance, is the home of the new national spirit in China which became necessary to solidify the country on the disappearance of the monarchy. It was a famous Cantonese in the person of Sun Yat-sen who gave his countrymen a realization that they were being governed in the Manchus by an alien dynasty. He and his associates later organized a Nationalist party which seized power in 1927 and established a party dictatorship whose specific function was to tutor the vast body of Chinese people in national consciousness.

Presumably the tutors had a national feeling when they set out on this errand. But by falling out among themselves they are giving the country at worst an example of personal jealousy and at best an example of sectionalism. The rival government at Canton is a counterblast to the measures taken by Chiang Kai-shek and the leading members of the Nanking government in shouldering well-known Cantonese out of office. There is a saying that the Cantonese will dominate the government or become autonomous. The schism gives a certain plausibility to the saying, but it must be regarded against the background of China's embryonic nationalism.

POST HASTE.

The sudden Hoover hurrah has left the Democrats as busy looking for a fly in the argument as the Progressives are searching for a flaw in the ointment.

New York hasn't quite matched Chicago yet, but has discovered a beer baron's boodle amounting to nearly a million.

British Woolworth profits are up 10 per cent. This looks prosperous unless it means that the Johnnies are buying 10-cent neckties and meals.

Too bad moratoriums and Cambridge degrees were so coincidental. A prenatal, instead of a post facto, consultation in Paris by Dr. Mellon might have averted complications.

Il Duce accepts debt delay in principle. If he can out-bull the Pope he may take time to state his attitude in detail.

England passes on the moratorium to her dominions. What a noble example for all mortgagees!

The president of the New York Stock Exchange finds that the changing whims of fashion play hob with consumption. Right. Restore the gay '90 mode of embonpointish feminine form divine and the problem of wheat surplus would be solved.

Atlantic airplane crossings will still have to be cut in half. A pilot in regular service taking 16 hours would have to belong to two unions.

Hoover is nominated for the Nobel peace prize. But he's going to have some competition from those fellows who are trying to settle the church and state wars in Italy, Spain and Mexico.

If our Government didn't have scruples, a lottery on the final figures of the deficit would easily net enough to wipe it out.

It is evident that the Radio Commission is determined not to be outsplit in its decisions by the Supreme Court.

If the newly authorized tariff boost on dried eggs is absolutely prohibitive it is enough. Think what the cook would do, starting with dried eggs.

Of course, the uniform increase to a uniform wholesale price for cigarettes was just a coincidence. Didn't the Sherman law give the oil importers and Secretary Wilbur the wink.

Don't bother about the small-fry issue of $100,000,000 the Treasury will put out. Bills will be limited to a maximum of $100,000.

"What will happen when the stimulus of the 'managed recovery' wears off?" Pass the nux vomica, Dr. Gloom.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

GOLFER'S PRAYER.

I do not ask for more than this:
That easy shots I may not miss.
Let champions take the sterner way,
I would be friendly as I play,
And only hope that I may be
Fit for good golfers' company;
Dependable in moments tense,
Taking the bad shot's consequence
Without excuses trite and lame,
Playing a fairly decent game.

Lord, as along the course I strive
I would not every man outdrive.
I ask but this: that shots of mine,
Though long or short, shall hold the line;
That Brown and Green and Jones and Smith
Shall know I must be reckoned with
As one who still will battle on
Until the chance to win is gone.
No better and no worse I'd be
Than those I choose for company.

And so with life, through good or ill,
My place with courage I would fill.
I'd play the friend till all is o'er,
Nor think too much about the score.
I would not sulk when hope seems faint,
I'd brave the worst without complaint.
When others look for help from me,
Dependable I'd like to be.
And have it said unto my fame
I played a fairly decent game.

Any Boy Can Be President, if He Has the Ability, Chance, Luck and Votes.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IT is frequently said by the able and the fortunate that any youth who desires an education can get it.

The truth of the statement depends largely on the meaning given the word "education."

There are many young people who can't acquire a college education or so much as a high school education regardless of the opportunity they are given.

A recent survey of the public schools in a number of States reveals that 3.5 per cent of the children enrolled are feeble-minded and 15 per cent mentally below normal.

These will have all the education they can absorb before they quit the grammar school.

But if you assume that any youth with ambition enough to thirst for education has the intellectual ability to absorb it, and if by education you mean the knowledge commonly acquired in high schools and colleges, then it is true that any youth who desires an education can get it.

But here, again, the statement must be qualified.

If a boy's parents can't afford to pay his way through school, he may be able to work his way through; but in order to pay his own way he must know how to earn money.

You hear much about the sturdy lad who works his way through college, but for every one who succeeds there are nine who try it and fail.

A youth blessed with unusual physical and mental powers, or one fortunate enough to find an easy job that pays well, can keep up with his classes while earning the money to pay expenses. But the ordinary boy will crack under the strain. His only chance is to work a year and study a year and so alternate until his course is finished—or else slight his studies and depend on the sympathy of his instructors, in which case he will not get an education but only a diploma.

Those who have dependents to support have little hope except in correspondence schools.

By working during the day and studying at night, they can get as much knowledge as others acquire in college; but it is a rough and lonely trail to follow and none but the fittest reach the end.

Getting a real education isn't an easy business, even for those who have every advantage; and to say that a boy can get one despite every handicap is almost equivalent to saying that he has ability enough to succeed without it.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Hoover Statesmanship.

Christian Science Monitor.

The wisdom and statesmanship of President Hoover's bold proposal for a year's suspension of all payments on war debts and reparations are becoming more apparent hourly. Already the effect has been electrical. This is due more to the intangible implications of the proposal than to the material benefits which Germany will receive, great as those are. Neither his credit standing nor his relations with his creditor are improved when a debtor seeks to suspend payments on his debts. But if the creditor takes the initiative, the same result is accompanied by an improvement in both credit standing and relations.

Germany felt compelled to wait for its reparation creditors to make the first move. Here the situation was complicated by the divergence of opinion as to who was the real creditor. In their part Germany's creditors looked to their own creditor, the United States.

For European Stability.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

President Hoover's proposal to declare a year's moratorium on all war debts and reparations has been heard by European governments and is being sifted by them. Naturally, Washington admits no intention of cancellation or even reduction of the debts. But the proposal indicates an entire change of face, if not of policy, regarding the interlocked economics of Europe and America. The Administration admits the bearing of the war debts on the economy of post-war Europe, and takes the lead in proposing at least a temporary adjustment of this problem to avoid the total collapse of Central Europe.

Politics Butts In.

New York Times.

It was inevitable that the Republicans should seek at once to capitalize for their party what the President has attempted to do for the whole world. This is the inveterate American way. It has been adopted and applied by both parties many times under different Administrations. But it seems particularly ungracious just now, when we are all talking of the unselfish spirit in which Mr. Hoover has acted, and of the sacrifices which America is expected to make, to put a partisan interpretation upon the whole affair.

Democrats will be tempted to see if they can do anything of that sort for their own party. But they will be well advised not to assume a carping attitude toward the stroke by Mr. Hoover which has won him applause from nations across the sea. Most of the Democratic leaders who have spoken about the matter at all have been discreet and even handsome in their praise of the President. But a certain amount of yapping has already been heard from irresponsible members of the party, and there is danger that its volume may increase. It ought to have an extinguisher clapped upon it. The Democrats have nothing to gain by attacking a policy just because it has been proclaimed by a Republican President.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Proposed Debt Moratorium Is Hailed as Stroke for Better International Understanding, but Writer Warns America Against Foolish Altruism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The widespread favor with which the proposed international debt moratorium is being welcomed reminds me of the situation when Uncle Sam entered the World War. Prior thereto, owing to the fact that we took time to think, it began to be insinuated in Europe that perhaps this country was too mercenary to fight for democracy.

When the United States did finally join the allies against the kaiser, we were stirred by a spirit of altruism such as in all history no other country has ever shown. And with the end of the war, having demonstrated our ability to chase Germans as well as dollars, our attitude in reference to world rehabilitation was very much too idealistic to suit the unregenerated diplomacy of Europe.

The great lesson of the war was that, in spite of cynical assertions to the contrary, the American people are above everything else idealists in their view of world politics. Today the President's proposal of a one-year suspension of reparations and debt payment strengthens that belief.

Europe has come to its present unpleasant fiscal pass through no fault of the United States. The crippled Germany, which is the source of all the trouble, would not have been hamstrung had consideration been given to the far-sighted American idealism which was voiced by President Wilson.

In governmental affairs as well as in the affairs of individuals, there should be a nice balance between the ideal and the practical. Profiting by past experience, our country should insist that warlike expenditures be renounced by Europe as a salutary act of good faith in connection with the international debt holiday.

In smoothing out the situation we should not, in other words, fail to realize the possibility of a foolish altruism which might be just as unsatisfactory in its ultimate effect on the world at large as would the assumption of a militaristic attitude on our part.

If the moratorium results in a saner understanding and a more friendly feeling between the nations of Europe, even the loss of a few millions by the taxpayers of America would not matter.

Indeed, insofar as it eliminates selfishness from the relationship of nations, it will prove an inestimable blessing. The assumption is that they will try to make the best without mental reservation. cause of world peace would suffer a serious setback if Uncle Sam should be made the "easy mark" of an international confidence game.

Mr. Lewisohn Points Out How Happiness Is a By-Product of Making Others Happy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Happiness in this world depends greatly on our association with other people. We do not stand alone in the world. Unless we feel the obligation to try and make others happy and contented we can not be happy ourselves. No happiness exists in ourselves alone, it must always be in association with others, our friendships and connections. Service to others helps to make us happy. It is our duty and obligation to be kind and helpful to those in our surroundings, to care for our families and our dependents, to share with others, to be interested in the success of our city and of our Nation, and to use our accomplishments for the benefit of our friends and associates. If we feel kindly disposed to others we gain their confidence. It helps to make us happy if we have attained the approval of those who surround us. To share with others is a great step toward happiness. I always feel that wealth and success, when attained, are lasting and beneficial only if we feel that we hold our wealth and success in trusteeship, so that it will be of benefit to those we love and to those in whom we are interested. Even after we are gone, a good reputation, if well deserved, lives forever.

ADOLPH LEWISOHN.

Let I Wonder Stop and Doff His Hat at the Next Drenched Female He Encounters and He Shall Wonder No More.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can recall the time when the average motorist seeing a girl getting drenched in a storm would stop and give her a lift to any desired destination. That was many years ago. In the terrific downpour we had here Tuesday, I noticed any number of well dressed young ladies standing under trees, seeking shelter from the rain. Many lone motorists passed them by without a thought of giving any assistance. One does not mind seeing a man get drenched but there is something about a drenched woman that is very unpleasant. Is it a question of whether the girls prefer to get drenched rather than get in a car with some one or is it that man has lost much of the old-time chivalry and is just too busy to bother with a girl who is in distress? I wonder which it is!

FARM POLICY FIGHT GAINS IN ADHERENTS

Demands for Revision Are Renewed; Conference of Leaders Asked.

(Associated Press.)

Demands for a reexamination of the Farm Board's stabilization wheat sales policy yesterday gained new force.

Representative Andresen (Republican), Minnesota, suggested a round-table conference attended by President Hoover, Agriculture Secretary Hyde and Chairman Stone of the Farm Board to determine exactly what is to be done with more than 200,000,000 bushels of wheat bought to steady domestic markets.

The view is held in some administration quarters that when Mr. Stone returns today from his Western trip, the board, influenced by insistent clamoring for a more definite statement of policy, is likely to study the question again and that the chairman may outline the board's position to the President.

Policy Revision Held Doubtful.

Nevertheless, these same quarters believe the board's recent affirmation of its March 23 policy of handling the stabilization supply "in such a way as to impose the minimum burden on domestic and world prices" will not be modified.

Requests for a definite pledge that the wheat will not be sold for a year, or until prices improve, have come in increasing numbers to both the board and the White House. Mr. Hoover is known to be keenly interested in the situation.

Should an immediate conference with Mr. Hoover take place, Secretary Hyde will not be present unless he is called back from a month's vacation on which he left Wednesday night.

The Farm Board said yesterday no plans had been made for Stone on his arrival today to see the President.

Stand Is Reaffirmed.

Kansas grain men were told last week after a request for a definite pledge had been made, that the board would stand on its March 23 statement. Representatives of the grain trade who met with Stone here in May also were given the same answer. Some traders insist the stabilized holdings have a depressing effect on domestic markets.

The board is said to feel that it wants to be free to take advantage of any favorable situation in the world trade. Stone has said wheat would be sold abroad if a market is found and if it does not adversely affect prices.

In contrast to the opposition to the board's stand, a large number of letters have been received by the board supporting its position. Many of these come from the grain regions and the grain trade.

Tour Ends Convention Of Railway Surgeons

A trip to Mount Vernon and a sightseeing tour of the city brought the annual convention of the Association of Surgeons of the Southern Railway System to a close yesterday. Members and their families, numbering several hundred, after spending a short time at Mount Vernon, visited the Capitol, the Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial and other places of interest.

The convention opened Tuesday with business sessions which lasted throughout the day. Wednesday, the doctors held clinics at Emergency and Walter Reed Hospitals.

$75,000,000 Veterans' Loans Held by Banks

(Associated Press.)

The veterans administration yesterday estimated the amount of veterans' loans held by banks at $75,000,000. This estimate was as of June 30.

At that time the total loans made by the Government totaled $1,145,432,753, including $785,951,603 made since the 50 per cent loan law went into effect. During the week immediately preceding that date 18,106 applications for loans were received.

ROADS WOULD RAISE ALL FREIGHT RATES

Reply to I. C. C. Declares Lines Do Not Consider Any Exemptions.

(Associated Press.)

Railroad officials lost no time in notifying the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday that they expect to include every variety of freight in their requested 15 per cent rate increase.

Given two weeks to respond to a commission inquiry asking if any commodities were to be excepted, the lines placed their reply before the commission in less than five days. They have urged that speed be one of first considerations in the commission's disposal of their petition for the increase.

The response of the roads was embodied in a resolution adopted Wednesday in Chicago and promptly forwarded here by air mail. Although pointing out that no exceptions are contemplated now, it left the way open for deviations after the increase has been approved.

Would Make Necessary Changes.

"Experience has shown," it said, "that where any general change in the entire rate structure of the country is authorized and becomes effective, it has subsequently been found to be necessary to make changes and readjustments, in some instances reductions, to meet competition and other situations."

The original petition claiming the railroads faced an emergency in their financial situation was filed June 17. Members of the commission on June 21 conferred with the cooperation committee of the National Association of Utilities and Railroad Commissioners and arranged for joint hearings.

Immediately afterward an order was issued asking the railroads to clarify their petition as to the lines participating, and what, if any, commodities or classes of freight would be exempted.

Water Lines Joint Appeal.

The only step remaining to fulfil the order is for the individual lines to enter written appearances. Yesterday's communication advised the commission that, in addition to all steam railroads, all water lines participating in rail and water rates had agreed to the proceeding and that all international rates are proposed to be increased.

Speculation arose yesterday in railroad circles as to the effect of the answer on the length of time necessary to decide the case.

Under normal conditions, the proceedings would last at least six months. Should it be necessary to hold hearings throughout the country, a year or even more might be necessary.

Camp Good Will Plans Completed by Kiwanis

Plans have been completed for the annual two weeks' camp for mothers and children at Camp Good Will in Rock Creek Park, to start next Wednesday, it was announced at a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club yesterday by Edward S. Pardoe, chairman of transportation of the camp.

Kimball, former president of the Washington Kiwanis Club and former District governor of the Capital District of Kiwanis Clubs, and by Miss Mary Vickers, contralto at Christ Church in Baltimore.

Sheriff to Face Senate Contempt Charge Today

Philadelphia, June 26 (A.P.).—Thomas W. Cunningham, sheriff of Philadelphia and treasurer of the Republican State committee, today posted $1,000 bail in the Federal District Court for his appearance in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to answer a charge of contempt of the United States Senate. He is expected to appear in court in Washington tomorrow.

The contempt charge grew out of Cunningham's refusal to give the source of $50,000 he contributed to the campaign fund of William S. Vare in the senatorial campaign of 1926. Cunningham refused to answer questions while a witness before a senatorial investigation committee.

Capital School Totals Up 3,211 Over 1929-30

Butlers Soon Will Move to Norman Home

Admiral and Wife Have Been Eight Years in Building Estate.

A SUMMER garden high in the Virginia mountains is the lure which will take from Washington next week one of its most gracious hostesses, Mrs. Henry Varnum Butler, wife of Rear Admiral Butler, commandant of the Navy Yard, who will go to her mountain estate, near Orkney Springs, which has been "eight years in the making." Frequent journeyings hither and yon have interrupted the pleasant duty of supervising the building of the lovely graystone house in Virginia, but Admiral and Mrs. Butler this summer will see the completion of their summer home, which has become their hobby.

Exercising the same discrimination in the planning of their mountain house which is noted in the attractive furnishings and hangings of the newly decorated and remodeled commandant's house at the navy yard the Butlers have transplanted a bit of old Normandy to the heights of the 200 acres which surround Ca Me Suffit, the French hillside home patterned after the design of an old house in Normandy which a year or two ago attracted Mrs. Butler during a visit to that lovely land.

As in their quarters in town Admiral and Mrs. Butler have lent charm to the rooms of the country house through the rare pieces of furniture and odd treasures "picked up" by Mrs. Butler in out of the way places in France.

Cosmopolites both, Admiral and Mrs. Butler have roamed the world in an official capacity, the former on the high seas and in fascinating ports in distant lands, Mrs. Butler as a hostess both of the Army and Navy as her first husband was a colonel in the United States Army with a wide scope of service abroad. Now established in the Capital Admiral and Mrs. Butler derive keen pleasure in the two attractive houses which they call "home."

Within the last two weeks the interior decoration in the commandant's house at the Navy Yard has been completed and Mrs. Butler's collection of beautiful furniture and objets d'art effectively placed, serving as an attractive approach to the gardens which vie with those now being landscaped at the Virginia estate.

The coming of the admiral and his wife brought a gay little note last winter, their establishment on April 15 at the Navy Yard coinciding with the climax of the spring season. Admiral Butler succeeded Capt C. C. Bloch, who was elevated to the rank of rear admiral and is now commanding the midshipman cruise. Admiral Butler in midwinter came on from California where he had been stationed as commandant of the Pacific Fleet Aircraft Squadron, to serve on the Navy General Board here. With the exception of week-ends and a fortnight in the Virginia "mountain top" home he will be in Washington through the summer.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, fashioned in Empire style and trimmed with seed pearls. A long tulle veil fell from a close-fitting cap of the tulle, trimmed with lace. She carried white orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Chandler Back Monday From Stay in England

Admiral Has Attended Meeting of Kipling Society.

Arriving in New York next Monday from England, Rear Admiral Lloyd E. Chandler, U. S. N., retired, will come to Washington to join Mrs. Chandler and their daughter, Miss Martha Chandler, at their home on Tilden street. The Chandlers will leave shortly for Norfolk, Conn., to spend part of the summer season.

Admiral Chandler went to England last month to represent the United States at the annual meeting of the Kipling Society. America's acknowledged authority on Kiplingana, Admiral Chandler had a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Kipling, and wrote Capital friends that "my three-quarters of an hour with the great Rudyard and Mrs. Kipling alone would have repaid me for the trip." Kipling, now approaching 70 years of age, lives quietly in Sussex, denying himself to visitors except on rare occasions.

Admiral Chandler also sent back enthusiastic accounts of the session, which included a report that the author of "Barrack Room Ballads" and "Plain Tales From the Hills" is not losing vogue in this country with the passing years.

Viola Tree, Young Actress, Visiting Here

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman Entertaining Daughter of Sir Herbert.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman has as her guest at Uplands, her picturesque estate on Ridge road, Miss Viola Tree, daughter of the distinguished Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, and one of England's most notable young actresses. Miss Tree will be here for about a week before sailing for England and although Mrs. Harriman has planned no formal parties in her honor, she will invite a few friends in from time to time to meet her guest.

Although Mrs. Harriman will spend most of the summer in Washington she plans to take short trips throughout the season. She will go to New York Tuesday to be present at the opening Wednesday of the new Ziegfeld Follies in which her talented daughter, Mrs. Harriman Russell, who uses the name "Ethel Borden" (she was Ethel Borden Harriman before her marriage) will have a part.

Only this winter did Washington learn something of Mrs. Russell's ability as an actress. She made her professional debut as a diseuse, after the manner of Ruth Draper in a program of sketches entitled "Let's Pretend" at the Belasco Theater the first of March when she appeared with Miss Tree. Previously they made their debut together in Boston. Although new to such professional work, Mrs. Russell has made the monologue or duologue very much her own in amateur theatricals. Her work in some of the entertainments given for charity in New York has been enthusiastically received by the critics, and hence her present claim to fame.

Mrs. Ivan E. Bass, wife of Capt. Bass, U. S. N., will leave Monday to

Culbertson on Contract

By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"GUERRILLA TACTICS."

SOMETIMES in Contract Bridge the partners take up a line of defense even more desperate than faces a proud country overrun by an arrogant foe. As the bidding mounts, the enemy, annoyed by the relentless guerrilla warfare, strikes before the time is ripe and doubles. This deliberate overbidding is indeed a paying proposition at the Contract table, if only it is tempered with a just appraisement of the opponent's strength, a correct judgment of what they can accomplish if they are allowed to play the hand, and a reasonably accurate counting of the cost in points of the anticipated penalty. These are main reasons why opening bids of expert players always mean what they promise.

Occasionally a venture into shrewdly calculated overbidding results even better than the most sanguine person could have anticipated. From John D. Bibb, of Anniston, Ala., comes the story of a venture into guerrilla tactics so judiciously conducted that it drove the opponents into a blurting kind of "spite double" which resulted in a triumphant slam.

It had been one of those games where the other side was getting all the breaks. East and West were vulnerable, while North and South were not. The cards simply would not behave. West was the dealer and these were the hands:

	♠ 10 9 8 5 4 2 ♥ J 10 9 ♦ — ♣ A K 8 2
♠ 6 5 ♥ A Q 8 7 ♦ 6 3 2 ♣ A J 9 3	N W E S	♠ A K J 3 ♥ K 5 4 ♦ K 7 5 4 ♣ 8 5
	♠ Q ♥ — ♦ Q 10 8 6 2 ♣ Q J 10 8 7 6 4

West opened the bidding with one heart, North overcalled with one spade, and East made the beautiful overcall of two spades. South, void of honor tricks and also void of everything pretty much except a long line of clubs and diamonds, passed. West then bid three hearts. This was an underbid, but West thought he would indicate the rebid values in his suit and await his partner's further bidding.

North passed and East bid four hearts. Hopes of a slam he had entertained but West's bid had not shown any great additional values except added trump strength. "Better a 700-point rubber," East argued, "than a doubtful Slam."

Now South entered the bidding with a bid of five clubs. He was willing to let his opponents have a partial score, but preferred a penalty even of 600 points, if need be, to save the rubber. He did not know the Pandora's box fate had in store for him. West and North passed, and East bid five hearts. South passed and West also passed. Had he made the bid of six clubs and thus shown no losers in the suit as East had shown control of the spade suit by his bid of two spades when South made his first defensive bid, this hand would never have seen the printed page. North, however, now seconds South's game-saving bidding by raising the club bid to six, and this bid East, scenting a heavy set, doubled. West wavered, but passed, and decided to open the only unbid suit, leading the Ace of diamonds to get "a look at the board."

It was a look that he could well have done without. The Ace of diamonds was trumped in the Dummy. A heart was led, and trumped by the Declarer. This process was continued until the Queen of diamonds was established when the Declarer led two rounds of trumps and conceded the last trick—a spade—to East and West.

In the inevitable post mortem which followed it developed that East and West could have made a Grand Slam and that without even taking a finesse, except the proven one in diamonds, which would be disclosed as soon as it was led.

South, through his luck and temerity, thus scored 790 points, while West would have scored 2,410 points had he bid the Grand Slam. A difference of 3,200 points on one hand is quite a swing, but I would not advise too general emulation of the bidding on either side. West was too cautious; East too fond of penalties, and South was entirely too bold. Thus there were three faults in the bidding, and, as was fitting, the two worst were the ones chosen by fate for punishment.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, ENCLOSING A TWO-CENT STAMPED SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

Lanvin Interprets the Mode

New York, June 25.

THERE never was anything so refreshingly new, so delightfully whimsical, and what's more, so dashingly smart as the tip-tilted bonnets. Honestly, I mean every one of those expensive adjectives, and furthermore I simply shudder and turn away if I happen to see a woman immodest enough as to shamelessly expose her entire brow! That's what the Empress Eugenie hats have done to me, and to think that not more than three weeks ago or thereabouts it seemed that the majority of women would never give up revealing their foreheads. And now in every smart rendezvous of fashionable women at least three out of every five are seen with these, oh, so sophisticated hats dipped over the right eye and showing almost all of the left side of the head.

These hats can consist of nothing bigger than the ones the Empress Eugenie herself wore—tiny crowns, not pretending to fit the crown of the head, a small brim turned-up at the sides and down in front and the whole posed way down on the right side of the forehead and showing all the back hair as well as that of the left side. Right where the brim turns down in front, if you want to achieve all the quaint charm possible, a tiny bunch of flowers or a bow or a feather fancy is placed. This type is rather daring, perhaps, at the moment.

Suzanne Talbot's hats for daytime wear have this general movement but are not so exaggerated or difficult to wear as the smallest of these Empress Eugenie hats. She makes several with crowns that fit the head like a skull-cap and a fairly small brim that turns way up on the left side and dips down over the right eye. The shape of the crown is like that of a modified derby. Made of chalk-white rough straw and trimmed simply with a ribbon band strung with three crystal slides it's the perfect expression of new, summer hat chic.

The Lanvin frock that I have sketched for you today was so graceful and lovely in its crisp white organdieness that I just couldn't resist showing it to you! I wanted to show you how an innocent, girlish little frock, simple and pleasing to the eye, was the result of much sophisticated detail. In this one, the little collar stands up high in the back in a quaint bertha effect—quaint, that is; until you see the the little scallops are all hand tucked! And rows upon rows of these hand-tucked scallops form the little peplum and the ruffles at the bottom of the full skirt. The whole frock is just one more reason to be glad that organdie has returned to favor this year—for nothing else can take its place for summer dressiness.

• • • •

If you're not quite the slim, young type to wear a frock of this sort, do have one like it for your daughter. It's such a picturesque bit of smartness that it's a good idea to have it around to look at!

• • • •

For perfect, well-groomed beauty you must wear a brassiere, especially under your bathing suit or evening frocks! You probably hate the idea of being stiffly confined when you're going to be active, but that is so unnecessary! I have designed a lovely, dainty little backless brassiere for just these occasions, and if you'll send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Washington Post you may have the illustrated leaflet. You'll adore the gentle way it lends beauty to your figure, and the easy, economical way you can make it up!

You shouldn't fail to read the weekly Dare fashion letter in the big Sunday Post every Sunday.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF June 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3:15 p. m. to 5:15 p. m., and from 6:30 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. The danger hours are from 1:15 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 11:15 p. m.

The astrological influences in force on June 26 are of a calm nature, and this should prove to be a propitious day for the ambitious, energetic individual. The astral influences are of too neutral a nature to defeat determined efforts.

The child born on this June 26 will possess a rather strong personality, and inclined to be a trifle obstinately self-willed. This, however, will be offset by a very loyal and loving nature. A desire to accomplish and execute will be another characteristic.

Born on June 26, you have a tremendous gift for making and holding valuable friendships. You, however, only lavish your attention upon people who are in sympathy with your ideas, and in this way show yourself to be rather selfish. You are very headstrong and independent, and love variety in your work and pleasure. This desire for variety has caused you to travel and have many interesting experiences, and as you have an observant and quickly assimilating mentality, you have succeeded in becoming a brilliant and interesting conversationalist.

Your career will be very successful, and what you will accomplish will be entirely through your own initiative. You work better by yourself, as your nature is too self-opinionated and argumentative to work in harmony with other people. What you earn you usually spend, as you have a desire for perfection and for extreme comfort. You enjoy helping other people, but are somewhat inclined to lose interest before your help proves of any real value. Love of family is very deeply imbedded in your make-up. Your love of home is very strong, and any breaking up in your family would come as a tremendous shock.

Successful people born June 26:

1—Thomas Clap—president of Yale College.

2—George Bruce—type founder.

3—George W. Flagg—artist.

4—Thomas W. Knox—author, traveler and inventor.

5—Sir Robert L. Borden—Canadian premier.

6—Frieda Hempel—actress.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE SUNLESS GARDEN.

SUNLESS gardens frequently mean no gardens, which is a pity, for with a little forethought devoted to their planning, small gardens shaded by tall buildings can be made real havens of rest and beauty, places where we are wont to linger.

As I have said so often in this column, flowering plants must have sun—not necessarily sun during the entire day but at least a part of the day.

The following plants are all flowering and—with the exception of the spring flowering bulbs—while not gorgeous, they are beautiful and worth while in every way.

Let me first suggest myrtle. This is the low-growing little plant with the small starlike flower known in some localities as the periwinkle. This always does well when once established. It is splendid for planting under a tree where grass refuses to live. Being hardy, it will survive the most severe winter weather.

Forget-me-nots also do well in partial shade. They must, however, have sun for a couple of hours each day. It is not too late to set out forget-me-nots at this time. They will immediately take hold and continue to grow until frost. When the flowers begin to fade or open smaller than they did when you planted them, cut them back and encourage them to send out a new set of branches tipped with large, perfectly formed flowers. Also keep the dead blossoms removed, for it is only by so treating them that you can be sure of more and more flowers. Forget-me-nots require a great deal of moisture.

Tuberous rooted begonias get along very well in partial shade; in fact, they crave such an environment. This variety of begonia, however, needs a rich soil and should never be kept with "wet feet"—meaning that they should be placed in well-drained loam. Do not forget that none of the begonia family is hardy, and that the tuberous-rooted varieties must have their bulbs lifted in the fall, to be kept in a dark, dry, warm place until spring.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

GO STEPPING.

MY dear Frances McDonald: I am 28 years old and am considered good looking. I have a good position as secretary, have a wonderful boss and like my work. I belong to a business and professional women's club, have girl friends whom I go out with occasionally. I recently won a prize of $50 for writing an article and friends think that I am capable, smart, and a fortunate girl to have a good position, home, &c.

However, regardless of the above, I am very unhappy most of the time and so despondent at times, in fact, so much so that terrible thoughts are in my mind. I am ashamed to state what they are.

Here are some of the things that trouble me. My home life is a continual nightmare. My father is acting very much against my mother's wishes and we are living in a place that we both hate. He is very close in money matters and she has to take my board money for ordinary living expenses. She doesn't have a cent for herself and has to beg for the necessities of life. She is very unhappy and if it was not for her I would have left home long ago. While my father is a good man as far as morals go, I haven't hardly a speck of feeling for him, he has been so disagreeable to mother. My mother tells me to go away and not ruin my life here, but she has said that I am the only pleasure she has, so I haven't the heart.

I have tried to get her to leave him, but she doesn't want to do that.

I do not go out with men. I had one very unhappy love affair several years ago, which I have gotten bravely over, but I guess it took most of the pep out of me so that I don't have any ideals now. I have tried going out with some, but I have given it up as a bad job. I get absolutely no pleasure out of it and just go out with girls now.

I surely hope you can help me.

R. O.

The last paragraph of your letter is the key to your trouble. Lots of girls have impossible fathers and still enjoy life. Your mother, after all, is not so terribly miserable or she would not cling so persistently to the source of her misery—now, could she?

So the real trouble is that your life consists of work which fortunately you enjoy, and of evenings filled with the petty annoyances that, to be frank, your mother ought to keep to herself. The man is her husband and his shortcomings are her problem, not yours. So she should be bearing her own voluntarily assumed burden instead of transferring it to your shoulders this moment you come inside the door. So much for that. The real thing is that your life lacks color. In fact, the course of your life was abruptly altered through the unhappy love affair, and now the reaction is at hand. The answer to that one is always—another love.

You say you get no enjoyment from going out with men. Now listen. If you go out regarding the man as a possible lover, comparing him with the defaulting Romeo, you probably will not enjoy the experience. But if you go out purely as a needed diversion, regarding the man as another human being sharing with him a pleasant evening, you are bound to enjoy it unless you require medical assistance. And doing this habitually instead of sitting at home responding to poisonous vibrations will soon clear your vision and bring you back to a normal view of life.

School Closing Balks Selection of Entrant

School officials are having difficulty in naming a boy and girl to represent the District in a Nation-wide test in visual education to be held here July 6, Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou said yesterday.

Dr. Ballou attributed the trouble to the fact that schools have closed, making it difficult to reach principals and students. He said he would confer with other school officials within a few days to decide the best step to take. Children in every State are to be appointed by governors.

YOUR NAME

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, PH.D.

THE family name "Tuck" has a quite different origin from that of "Tucker." In most cases "Tuck" is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "Tucca." "Tucca" (also spelled "Tuca") was an old personal name which is derived from the Old English "tucian" and which may be translated "adornment." In some cases "Tuck" stands for "Toke." "Toke" was a shortened pet form of various personal names of Scandinavian origin. In most cases it represents the Old Norse "Thiothgeir" (modern Norwegian "Tiodgeir") which means "national spear." Fourteenth century instances of "Tuck" as a family name are Peter Tuck and Thomas Tuke.

The family name "Tyndale" occurs with a great variety of spellings. It is of combined Celtic and English origin. It means "the valley of the Tyne" and indicates an original place of residence. There are several rivers called "Tyne" in Great Britain. This river-name is probably derived from the Welsh "tyno" meaning "the green plot" and "the dale." A few of the commonest variations of "Tyndale" are "Tindal," "Tindale," "Tindell," "Tindle" and "Tindill." Early instances of this name in English records are Thomas de Tyndale (1317), William de Tyndale (1357), and Robertus de Tyndale (1379).

The family name "Crittenden" is of English origin, and may generally be traced back to County Kent. It is based on a Celtic place name meaning "the settlement on the hill."

The family name "Hanratty" is of Celtic origin. Its source is the Irish "O Hanracht aigh," which means "the descendant of the unrighteous man."

BEACH LOT OWNERS 'SELL' FRIENDS IDEA

Those Who Have Purchased Are Woodland's Best Advertisement.

Not only has Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on South River in Maryland, satisfied the early purchasers of lots there, but these same purchasers have become the best possible advertisement for the beach.

Many of those who bought early and are either building or planning summer homes on their lots, are now calling up and writing to their friends, urging them to get in line and if possible secure property close to them.

In this manner it is expected that Woodland Beach soon will develop into not only a large summer community but also a group of circles of friends and neighbors.

Building operations at the beach are increasing daily as lot owners strive for speed in getting their cottages erected that they may take advantage of the beach during the rest of the present summer.

Woodland Beach has proven attractive to hundreds for many reasons. The boating, bathing and fishing offered on the coves of the South River probably lead the list of attractions, but there are many other advantages to be found there.

Those who have not visited the site, just 32 miles from the Capital, may learn all about it without making the trip, simply by calling at The Washington Post where large maps will give any one interested the exact location of the lots still available—and there are many choice ones.

The price of lots at the beach is another factor which has led to such a heavy sale. Only $93 for any lot on the entire territory and this need not be paid in cash. A payment of $9 plus the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post are all the requirements for joining the list of lot owners.

Take a tip from your friends who have bought and are now building. Get in on this offer while choice locations are still available. Otherwise you may regret your delay for many summers to come.

Hotel Man Badly Injured in Crash

C. C. Beard, of Marlboro, in Hospital Here Following Traffic Accident.

Carol C. Beard, manager of the Marlboro, Md., Hotel, is in a "very critical" condition at Casualty Hospital, following an automobile crash in Marlboro early yesterday morning. He is said to have a fracture of the skull and lacerations of the head and is suffering from shock.

The accident occurred when the car in which Beard was riding blew out a tire at the Pennsylvania railroad throwing the automobile against a telegraph pole. The car was badly damaged.

Two other persons in the car, William A. Rogers and Mrs. Marion Barnes, of Forestville, were also injured. Rogers, the driver of the car, received fractures of both arms and is still in the hospital. Mrs. Barnes was treated for lacerations of the face and legs and allowed to leave the hospital yesterday.

Outing Is Planned By Cosmopolitans

Washington and Baltimore Clubs May Get Together at Beach Resort.

Plans for a joint outing of the Washington and Baltimore Cosmopolitan Clubs are being negotiated, James E. Colliflower, chairman of a committee in charge of arrangements, told the local club at a luncheon meeting at the Carlton Hotel yesterday. The committee is composed of Mr. Colliflower, P. A. Davis, Arthur W. Defenderfer, James E. Divver, Guy O. Dove, E. E. Downhan, Judge Michael M. Doyle, Carl A. Duehring, Edward J. Gainor and C. Emery Galliher.

The outing would be held at one of the numerous beach resorts around Baltimore and would furnish the occasion for a get-acquainted meeting of the two clubs, both of which are members of the District of Columbia Federation of Cosmopolitan Clubs. President Gordon Bonnette authorized the committee to proceed with the plans.

A. Hamilson Wilson, architect, "Cosmopolitan of the Day" at yesterday's meeting, gave a short sketch of his life history. Attendance prizes were won by Michael Schafer and Arthur W. Derfenderfer.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, president of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, will make the award on the esplanade of the Pan-American Union. Guests will include Charles R. Walgren, of Chicago, donor of the award; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, and Mrs. Aileen Wrightson, daughter of the late Gen. Gorgas.

Medal to Be Given Policeman Today

Capt. John E. Scott, of the Infantry Reserve, Will Be Honored.

Capt. John E. Scott, of the Infantry Reserve, will receive the Distinguished Service Cross at the hands of Brig. Gen. Edgar T. Collins before Third Cavalry troops on the polo field at Fort Myer, Va., at 10 o'clock this morning.

The Third Cavalry, commanded by Maj. A. D. Surles, afterward will be reviewed by Capt. Scott, who is now a member of the Metropolitan Police Department, stationed at the Second Precinct. The citation accompanying the award will be read by Capt. William E. Bergin, of the Sixteenth Brigade.

It discloses that at St. Souplet, France, in October, 1916, discovering that the right flank of his battalion was unprotected, Scott "with utter disregard of his own danger, made a personal reconnaissance of the exposed flank under heavy enemy fire." Returning to his company he was given two small platoons to form a flank guard. "Under withering machine-gun fire" he organized his position, "thus preventing a breakdown that might have been fatal to the regiment."

Lawyers Will Enjoy Outing at Annapolis

Courts and law practice will be forgotten by the Barristers, local organization of lawyers, at their annual outing Monday at the Annapolis Roads Country Club, Annapolis, Md. Golf, tennis, baseball, swimming and other sports will be the order of the day.

R. Aubrey Bogley is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, assisted by Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the club; Francis C. Brooks, Norman B. Frost, Clifford P. Grant and Ross H. Synder. A banquet will wind up the festivities.

Moonlight Excursion Planned.

A moonlight excursion on the Potomac, to raise funds for new uniforms and equipment, is planned by the Overseas Military Band, Drum and Bugle Corps, next Wednesday night at 8:45 o'clock. The steamship City of Washington has been engaged for the occasion. A concert will be given by the band, after which the ship's orchestra will play for the dancing.

Nature, not parching, Makes CAMELS Mild

HARSH tobaccos require harsh measures, like parching, to make them tolerable to the throat.

But the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended are naturally mild and gentle. Parching would only ruin their exquisite flavor and aroma.

No matter where you buy Camels you will find them always in factory-fresh condition. Their rare flavor together with their natural moisture is air-sealed-in by moisture-proof Cellophane. We call it the Humidor Pack.

This protective wrapping is dust-proof, germ-proof and weather-proof. A great boon to the smoker.

No stinging particles of peppery dust to irritate the throat; no brackish smoke from stale tobacco; no burnt tongue from the hot smoke of dried-out cigarettes.

Just the cool, mild fragrance of choice tobaccos expertly blended and properly conditioned.

If you are not a Camel smoker, switch over for just one day. Then leave them—if you can.

Leaving the moisture-proof Cellophane on my Camel package when I open it protects the cigarettes against the odors of powder and perfume

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

TRACHOMA.

DR. PARK LEWIS contributes a valuable review of a French book on trachoma to the Sight-saving Review.

The disease has an incubation period of seven to ten days. The earliest symptoms are: Moderate dread of light, feeling as of some foreign body in the eye, and excessive flow of tears. If there is swelling of the lids, gumming of the edges, mucus or pus discharges, pain, there is an infection with some other disease on top of the trachoma. The almost typical granulations do not appear for some time after these first symptoms and turning in of the lids comes months, or years, later still.

It is a contagious malady, founded on lack of cleanliness, neglect of individual and collective hygiene, the common use of toilet articles, and failure to disinfect the hands by frequent washing. Promiscuity favors its spread because individuals are brought more closely in contact.

It is especially prevalent among people who spend most of their time indoors, among soldiers in barracks, and among workmen who are housed in camps. In the countries where the disease is most prevalent children are very likely to be found infected when they reach school age. The home is more liable than the school to spread the disease. When a child is found infected examination of the other members of the family will show some of them also infected.

The disease can usually be cured. Taken early, cure is not difficult. Taken late, years of treatment are required and the results are generally imperfect. Prevention is more profitable than cure. Wherever serious, sustained efforts have been made results have followed.

These Frenchmen say it is a very old disease. It was known to the Greeks. Herodotus says it influenced the Thermopyle campaign 500 years B. C. Hippocrates wrote about it. The Apostle Paul had it as one of his rare assortment of maladies. (This may not be welcome news to up and coming equal suffrage ladies.) Of the army that Napoleon took into Egypt two-thirds developed trachoma.

The other European troops in these Napoleonic wars suffered more from it than did the French—Great Britain worst of all. In one British regiment 636 of the 700 soldiers developed trachoma. The knights returning from the crusades sowed it all over Europe. Howard says in China it causes greater economic loss than flood and famine combined. In Japan 91 per cent of the inhabitants are trachomatous.

For us all this means that we should be of good cheer. A disease that has been so devastating and is now comparatively so unimportant need not be beyond us.

CAUSES OF BOILS.

I. M. F. writes: What is the cause of boils? My 8-year-old boy had about nine of them this winter. What remedy would you suggest to prevent them?

REPLY.

Boils result from infection of the skin, generally of a hair shaft, or a grease or sweat gland, with a staphylococcus. Since this coccus is nearly always on the skin it is important to learn why it infects. Among the more frequent of the contributing causes are: Diabetes, diets too rich in starches and sugars, unclean skins, irritations of the skin.

To prevent boils, change the diet, investigate diabetes, keep the skin very clean, remove sources of skin irritation.

FRIDAY JUNE 26, 1931 SPORTS

A'S LOSE TWO, LEAD SHRINKS TO GAME AS NATS WIN

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

SWEET were the tidings that came out of the West yesterday for followers of the Washington Ball Club. Not since the earliest days of the pennant race in April has so slender a margin as one game separated the Nats from the league-leading Athletics. The turn of events yesterday when the Nats helped themselves to another ball game at Detroit while the Mackmen were dealt a double defeat by the Browns sliced exactly a game and a half off the lead of the champions.

More significant to Washington fandom, however, is the evident break in the solid ranks of Connie Mack's Big Three pitching staff, and the fact that the Athletics yesterday were plastered with their fourth consecutive defeat.

It is not this column's intentions to hail yesterday's developments as the beginning of the end for the Mackmen. They're still out in front and Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg remain great pitchers anyway you look at them. But it has been a long time since the A's have dropped four straight games. And yesterday brought about Earnshaw's first defeat in thirteen starts.

No Longer Invulnerable

The invulnerability of Macks' Big Three has been exploded, however. Every club in the league can take heart at the Browns' conquest of the champions in four out of five games. The psychological effect is bound to be felt the circuit over.

Connie Mack's pitching strategy suffered its first setback in St. Louis. He went into the series under the same conditions that he has met successfully all season with Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg as his pitching mainstays and Shores, Rommell, Mahaffey and McDonald extreme risks whenever they appeared on the mound.

Grove alone was able to win a game at St. Louis for Mack. The second game of Tuesday's doubleheader saw Mahaffey unable to win. Walberg was the victim Wednesday. Earnshaw failed in the first game of yesterday's twin bill and Shores justified his record this season by losing in the second.

Twin Bills Take Toll

The sages who foresaw trouble for Mack in the doubleheaders that piled up from early postponed games have been borne out. In only one previous series with Boston, did Mack encounter two double engagements with his three-man staff. In each of these the Athletics split. The only other series that forced Mack to play two twin bills was the recently concluded set with the Browns. Out of these Mack managed to split one while dropping both games yesterday. Doubleheaders have certainly slowed the club's pace. His three-man staff couldn't contribute the victories so necessary to stave off the threat of a team as highly geared as the Nats.

It has been the play of the Washington Club since the start of its first Western trip that has featured the season thus far. The Nats ehave succeeded in gaining four full games even in the face of the .710 pace of the Mackmen. A recapitulation shows that the Nats have won 30 of their last 38 games, a pace calculated to send a second-place team to the top in short order, barring sensational play of the leaders.

14 Crucial Games

As the season wears on the remaining fourteen games to be played between Washington and Philadelphia assume transcendent importance. The clubs have met eight times thus far with the Macks having won five of the games. It is in the fourteen hand-to-hand clashes between the leaders still on the schedule that the Mackmen appear to have an edge.

No matter how his pitcher may be battered by the other clubs of the league, Mack can always maneuver to save his Big Three for the battles with Washington. In a short series between the two clubs, the presence of Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg stakes Connie Mack to a distinct advantage. They could work in every game with Washington if necessary and the probability is that they will. Despite the recent defeats of Earnshaw and Walberg they, with Grove, form a trio that the Nats can hardly match.

In the meantime, the recent spurt of the Yankees is being overlooked. McCarthy's men yesterday won their second successive double-header and are sporting a winning streak of five straight. Their heavy artillery has been functioning coordinately for the first time this season. Of course, New York is seven and a half games behind the lead. Remember the Braves of 1914. And what was that about the last man out in the ninth?

U. S.-British Pros Meet Today

Line-Ups for Ryder Cup 2-Ball Foursomes Named.

Hagen Seeks Singles Match Tomorrow With Duncan.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 25 (A.P.).—Moved up to the front lines with masterly strokes of strategy, the golfing forces of Great Britain and America are ready for the call that sends them into battle once more tomorrow for the prized Ryder Cup.

Like able generals on the eve of a decisive battle, the two rival captains, Charles Whitcombe, of the British and Walter Hagen, of the American, aligned their fighting forces for the two-ball foursome matches, the feature of the two-day struggle tomorrow.

Both studied the fighting qualities of their men after a test in the broiling sun over the Scioto battle field and announced these line-ups, in order of firing and starting at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, America, vs. Archie Compston and W. H. Davis, England.

Walter Hagen and Densmore Shute, America, vs. Abe Mitchell and Fred Robson, England.

Billy Burke and Wiffy Cox, America, vs. Syd Easterbrook and Ernest Whitcombe, England.

Whitcombe Fails To Enter Self.

While Hagen created a mild surprise by trusting one of the two-ball foursome fighters to Burke and Cox, two players who were forced to qualify for the four nonpicked places on his team instead of mixing up some of his big shot fighters with them, Capt. Whitcombe countered by leaving himself completely out of the opening day's matches.

He was expected to lead off in regulation captain style tomorrow, but decided that because of the intense heat and the showing of some of his mates that he would stay on the sidelines with the youthful Bert Hodson and shoot his game in the singles Saturday, a struggle involving eight matches and as many points. Tomorrow's two-ball foursomes are an English specialty, but Capt. Whitcombe loves his singles match play and has a reason for his liking. He ranks as the champion singles match player of all England.

The two Americans left out of the opening day battle were Horton Smith and Craig Wood. Both were expected to get into the singles matches, although Smith was a doubtful starter. The Joplin Ghost was far off his famous game.

Neither Sir Walter nor Capt. Whitcombe, both trying to outguess the other, would reveal the singles line-up.

Hagen Maneuvers For Duncan Match.

Hagen was doing all kinds of maneuvering, however, to get a match with Duncan, the Briton who defeated him the last matches. There was a faint suspicion, though, that his hope might be cheated, as Duncan may stay out of the singles.

Rumors that Henry Cotton, British star, would join the team after all for the international matches were dispelled by Fred Pignan, British team manager. He said that there was not the remotest possibility of Cotton joining up, and the first day pairings looked like that.

Giants Blanked by Frey As Reds Triumph, 6-0

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Benny Frey pitched a fine game today and the Cincinnati Reds backed him with hard hitting to defeat the Giants 6 to 0. Frey pitched perfect ball for 5 1-3 innings before O'Farrell made the first hit in the sixth. He allowed only six hits altogether and only two Giants reached second base.

The Reds collected ten hits, most of them off Clarence Mitchell. Nick Cullop struck Cincinnati's big blow, hitting a home run with two on base in the fifth.

U. S. DOUBLES STARS WIN AT LONDON

Men Score Handily; Women Advance in Singles.

By FRANK H. KING.

LONDON, June 25 (A.P.).—There was no play in men's singles in the Wimbledon tennis championships today, but the firing continued on two other fronts, with men and women sharpshooters from the United States advancing in the men's doubles and women's singles.

Great Britain's newly acquired superiority complex, gained when they placed seven men in the last sixteen in the singles, suffered several shocks, the most severe being in women's singles, where Mrs. John Van Ryn, Helen Jacobs and Mrs. L. A. Harper advanced at the expense of British players.

Mrs. Van Ryn and Miss Jacobs, by their victories, advanced to the last sixteen, while Mrs. Harper, who did not play yesterday, won her way to the third round. The women's play was in three rounds, Cilli Aussem, of Germany, one of the favorites, winning her fourth-round match to go into the quarter-finals.

Shields and Wood Conquer Britons.

Frank X. Shields and Sidney B. Wood, jr., making their first appearance at Wimbledon in doubles, played impressively to defeat the left-handed Fletcher brothers—C. G. and J. H. L.—in four sets, 6—3, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2. The Britons won their only set by storming the net in good old American fashion.

John Van Ryn, defending the doubles title he won last year with Wilmer Allison, paired with George Lott, jr., to win a second-round match against J. W. Nuthall, Betty's brother, and C. R. D. Tuckey, 6—4, 6—4, 10—8. They drew a bye in the first round.

Van Ryn and Lott, the French doubles champions, were seeded No. 1. Although the English youngsters carried them to deuce four times in the last set the Americans appeared to be able to win whenever they set their minds to it.

Washburn Is Lone American Loser.

The only American reverse of the day was suffered by Watson Washburn, who was defeated with his Polish partner, Tzoczynski, in the doubles by Virgil Kirby and Nat Farquharson, of South Africa. The scores were 6—2, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Miss Jacobs, in her 6—3, 6—4 victory over Mrs. J. B. Pittman, of England, played impressively, appearing faster on her feet and hitting better than she ever has at Wimbledon. She

CARDS DOWN BROOKLYN BY 1-0

Watkins' Bunt in 7th Starts Downfall of Dazzy Vance.

BROOKLYN, June 25 (A.P.).—George Watkins, St. Louis outfielder, who hit three home runs in one game at Philadelphia yesterday, turned his versatile talents in another direction today and deprived Dazzy Vance of a victory in a three-hit game. Paul Derringer shut out the Robins with six hits and the Cardinals won, 1 to 0.

After Vance had retired the first twenty men in order, Watkins bunted safely in the seventh for the first hit. Jim Bottomley followed with a single, Watkins reaching third. The young outfielder took advantage of the Dazzler's slow throw to first to hold Bottomley on the bag and stole home for the only run of the game.

Vance allowed only one other hit, a single by Frisch with two out in the ninth, fanned seven and did not walk a man.

British Ryder Cup Team Welcomes Calm of U. S. After Squabble at Home

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

SCIOTO COUNTRY CLUB, Columbus, Ohio, June 25.—Several years ago an English golf nut by the name of Samuel Ryder who, from his photograph, has the half melancholy, somewhat cold in the head look and long staple moustache of Ramsay MacDonald, decided to give a cup to be played for every two years by teams of America and British professionals.

The American's won the cup in the first tournament, played in Worcester, Mass., in 1927 and the British won it in England in 1929. So now the British are back in the U. S. to play a team organized under the nominal leadership of Walter Hagen in a series of bouts on the grounds of the Scioto Country Club, just outside Columbus, tomorrow and Saturday.

There will be eight Scotch foursomes Friday and eight singles matches Saturday but the selection of the British team aroused no end of squabbling and name calling back in England and just from appearances you would hardly judge that the British have a chance to win.

For one thing, a young fellow named Henry Cotton was left off the squad because in the first place he thought he should have been selected on his record and not asked to qualify and because, in the second place, he said he would be jolly well dashed if he would pledge himself to slip right off home again with the rest of the squad within two weeks, according to a somewhat officious rule of the team, if he were selected.

Cotton is a young fellow whose opinion of himself can not be described as contemptuous, a state of mind not at all uncommon among good competitive athletes. He is one of the best British professionals, having among his conquests tournament called the one thousand guineas, which, I judge, would be the Italian open, and when they ruled him out a lot of golfers in England helped themselves to the umbrage. Or, possibly,—it was only a lot of journalists.

Trivialities Arouse Journalists.

English journalists are fond of writing ringing leaders demanding "can such things be?" and "what has the prime minister to say about this?" for comparatively trivial causes, as, for instance, the time when one of their chaps swung out into space and solemnly warned the government that Primo Garners was certain to rend limb from limb some

2 Ohio State Golfers Reach College Tourney Semifinals

OLYMPIA FIELDS COUNTRY CLUB, Chicago, June 25 (A.P.).—Two long hitting Buckeyes from Ohio State will play tomorrow in the semifinals of the National Intercollegiate Golf tournament for the right to represent the West against either Yale or Princeton in Saturday's final round.

The luck of the draw of their own good golf in the 36-hole quarter-finals today threw Johnny Fiorio, 21-year-old Columbus boy, against his teammate, Robert Kepler, of Dayton, Ohio, in the semifinal round.

Berthed together in the lower half of the bracket were George Dunlap, of Princeton University, defending his title, and Tommy Aycock of Yale, the 1929 Champion. On Saturday it will be the East against Ohio State, or the "Big Three" against the Big Ten conference, for the highest honor in college golf.

Dunlap, an East Orange, N. J., boy, 22 years old and winner of the North and South amateur meet last spring, convinced the largest gallery on the course that he is ready for Aycock Shores Pounded Out in Final as Stewart Goes Route.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 25 (A.P.).—The Browns defeated the Athletics in both ends of a doubleheader here today, 6 to 5 and 8 to 5. The double defeat reduced the Athletics' American League lead over Washington to one game.

In the first game the Browns broke big George Earnshaw's winning streak at twelve games, a home run by Kress, with two on base, being the chief factor in his downfall. The Athletics pounded Sammy Gray from the mound in the second inning, but Roland Stiles' effective relief pitching had them subdued until the ninth, when the visitors counted twice.

The Browns knocked Bill Shores from the scene of action early in the nightcap, and continued their assault on McDonald and Rommel, Walberg finally coming in to stop the attack. Wally Stewart went the route for the Browns. He was touched for home runs by Bishop and Dykes. Bettencourt hit for the circuit for the Browns.

Sheely's Triple Wins For Braves Over Cubs

Boston, June 25 (A.P.).—Earl Sheely's triple which scored two runs in the third inning helped Frankhouse turn back the Cubs today, 4-3. It was Frankhouse's third straight win over first division clubs.

Baecht opposed Frankhouse throughout on almost even terms. Two double plays, Maranville to Maguire to Sheely, and Randy Moore's brilliant fielding in the outer garden aided the Braves considerably, while Hack Wilson's muff of an easy fly in the fifth allowed the winning run.

In the Wake Of the Game

Detroit, June 25.

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON and his charges are scheduled to leave here at midnight for Chicago, where they open a five-game series in four days with the White Sox tomorrow, the extra game being listed as part of a Sabbath double-header.

The Nationals will be seeking their seventh straight victory over the White Sox tomorrow, having beaten them twice in Chicago and four times in Washington. General Alvin Crowder will pitch for the Nats.

Pitcher Sad Sam Jones, who has been visiting his ill mother at Woodsfield, Ohio, rejoined the Nationals this morning.

With a right-hander opposing the Nats and Sam Rice rested, he drew the Washington right-field assignment today.

Roy Johnson, one of the fastest runners in the league, laid down an almost perfect bunt opening the game for Detroit, but Bluege tossed him out at first on a brilliant one-hand grab and peg.

Six of the first seven Nats up worked the count to three and two on Sorrell. Hot as it was, this surplus pitching did not do the Tiger slabster any good.

West came in fast to take Sorrell's short looper in the second.

Sam Rice robbed Walker of a hit with a shoestring catch opening the home third. He went down and rolled over after grabbing the ball, but came up with it in his glove.

Fans were given a laugh when Walker stole third in the fifth. The black dirt stuck to his perspiring face and arms and he looked like a minstrel perched on the sack. Play was called while the Tiger trainer took some water to the base and sponged off the player.

Had the Tigers known their baseball, they would have pulled their third double-play of the game in the sixth. After Cronin walked, West rolled to McManus, who tossed out West at first. Alexander then pegged to second, but Cronin stopped and no effort was made to prevent him from hustling back to first. Although the Detroiters protested long and loud, they made no headway, for the minute West was called out at first Cronin was no longer forced and had a perfect right to go back to first. It is a play rarely seen.

Starting the Tigers' sixth, Fischer sat down in the shade of the diamond over toward third instead of taking his usual warm-up with his catcher. Before the round ended he was excused, Burke relieving him.

Stone's homer in the sixth went over the wall guarding the stands in right-center and through an exit.

Sorrell greeted Burke with a single starting the Tiger eighth, but the slim southpaw made short work of the next three to face him.

STRIBLING TRAINING FOR KNOCKOUT BEFORE SIXTH ROUND

Borrows Plan Of Dempsey For Bout

Georgian to Attack Schmeling at Full Speed at Start.

Will Box for Points Midway if German Upsets Plans.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

GEAUGA LAKE, Ohio, June 25 (A.P.).—Bill Stribling has decided just how he will fight Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship in the massive new Cleveland Stadium the night before the Fourth of July. His plan of battle will go all the way back to the campaign theory of Jack Dempsey when the old man mauler whipped Tommy Gibbons in fifteen rounds on another July 4 in Shelby, Mont., in 1923.

For the first five rounds the lean, powerful Southerner will pile into Schmeling, throwing every punch he has in an effort to sink the champion and win the title on a knockout. It will be a campaign of aggression, a charging attack built around left hooks to the body, left jabs to the head that Bill believes will prop the German up for the right-hand smashes to the chin that have foundered most of Stribling's 127 knockout victims. The record books show, too, that if Bill doesn't get his man in the first five rounds he usually doesn't get him at all.

Strib to "Coast"
For 2d Five.

Then if Schmeling still is on his feet at the end of five rounds, Stribling will coast for the next five as Dempsey did when he found the fleet Gibbons would not collapse under the old champion's assault. Stribling will be content to pile up points, depending on his fleetness and boxing skill, to hold the charging German in check.

Stribling plans then that the last five rounds, if the title hasn't already changed hands by that time, will be a repetition of the first five, with the Georgian again flinging everything in his armory in a final desperate effort to finish the champion before the fifteen rounds are over. It is a courageous battle plan. It won for Dempsey at Shelby and in addition to providing the simplest and probably the most effective manner of fighting the plunging, aggressive Schmeling, it is designed to remove forever any idea the faithful may have that the Southerner can not "carry the hod" against a major foe.

"I am going to beat that fellow anyway," Bill remarked today. "If he don't protect his chin any better than he did against Jack Sharkey I am sure am going to bust him a plenty, too."

Schmeling to Reach Top Form, Predicts Manager

Conneaut Lake Park, Pa., June 25 (A.P.).—With his defense of his world's heavyweight title against Young Stribling only eight days away, Max Schmeling, the German boxing opportunist, announced tonight through Manager Joe Jacobs that he was well satisfied with his weight, his condition and his boxing.

Not until today was any accurate inie available on Schmeling's weight. It was known that he was not far above his natural fighting poundage, around 189 pounds, but all his scalings had been in secret. This morning, when Jacobs put him on the scales, he bounced out as happy as a schoolboy to say:

"His weight is perfect. He is at exactly 190¾ pounds, about a pound and three-quarters more than he will weigh the night of the fight. He has five more days of boxing ahead of him. They will sharpen his speed, his eye and his punch. His wind is great, his legs are fine and he is training perfectly. Trainer Max Machon and I could not have ordered better results. The champion will be in his top stride a week from tomorrow night."

The German fighter was reading a story today between golf rounds to the effect that Stribling intended to fight fast the first five rounds, slow down in the next five and save himself for a fast five-round finish. He remarked that such a plan of battle indicated the challenger had no hope of winning on a knockout.

"As far as Max is concerned, he intends to fight every round until there has been a decisive result," said Manager Jacobs.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

CHARLES C. PETERSON, "fancy shot champion of the world," recently took his billiard table aloft in a airplane and established a unique consecutive billiard shot record that almost equals the one he made on the ground. While the ship was 5,000 feet in the air, he clicked off 100 points in 28½ seconds. He scored 80 points in the center of the table while the plane was banked at a 33 degree angle, traveling 100 miles per hour.

Peterson, competing in the southwestern championship held in St. Louis, 1907, played in the fastest billiard match on record. It lasted but 35 minutes, Peterson beating Maggioli, 300-88.

Another record held by Peterson, is that of scoring 1,000 points in 4 minutes 37 seconds, in St. Louis, 1923.

BRITISH PROS PLAY MINUS COTTON

Meet U. S. Today in Ryder Cup Match at Scioto.

bobbling old horizontalist who thereupon waltzed Primo around and around all night.

So that is approximately how it is in this tropic front before the matches begin. The British team is partly composed of people that nobody in this country ever heard of. There is a Fred Robson, A. W. H. Davies, an L. J. Easterbrook and a Bert Hudson, but the fact that Americans generally haven't heard of those boys may only reflect their own ignorance as Mr. Bryan remarked when the delegates yelled that they had never heard of John W. Davis.

I seem to have Mr. Bryan in mind these days, possibly because the heat is reminiscent of those last days of his down in Dayton, Tenn., when he was downing his barbecued pork on the courthouse lawn within earshot of the champion Bible scholar of the world, who orated endlessly from the courthouse steps that he had no kinfolks in the zoo.

Bobby Jones Now
Thumping the Tub.

Bobby Jones, now turned capper for a line of sporting goods just as Jack Dempsey in his postchampionship days has been going out in front to thump the tub for a succession of gambling houses, went over the first nine holes of the golf course this afternoon, but took a 39 and picked up because it was too hot. The untidy state of his card was due in part no doubt to his absence from competition, but also in part no doubt to the scuffed-up condition of the grass after a large field of journalists had plowed their way around in a ghastly affair called the Johnny Walker Cup tournament.

A Mr. Gallico, of New York, achieved a new high for the course with a card of 146, and the Boy Scouts who saw him climbing up out of the tassel grass on the hole down near the stone quarry rushed up with autograph albums, crying "you are David Binney Putnam, aren't you?"

Gene Tunney, who used to be a journalist himself, by proxy, went out with George White, the Governor of Ohio, and met him again several hours later as they gradually surrounded the eighteenth green. A gallery assembled to follow Gene, but he cued his ball into a tuft of shrubs in the first tee and the people fell back for fear they might unnerve him and vice versa.

Communistic Plan
Of Prizes.

The journalists tournament was devised with the utmost tact on a somewhat communistic plan with prizes for all, 33 all told, lest someone be upset and unable to compose an article for the papers in the throes of defeat. There was a prize for low gross, another for low net, others for high gross, high net, fewest lost balls, most lost balls, for the club throw, form and attendant remarks to count and for the club throw, distance only two count. Consequently, the list of winners was as long as the list of entrants and it would be cruel and unusual to both contestants, if such they could be called, and the readers of these dispatches to go into details.

ALL SEEDED STARS REACH ARMY TENNIS SEMIFINALS

Lieut. Strahan Impressive In Debut

Defending Champion, Robinson, Hedekin and Hills Win.

Robinson Alone Is Pressed, Beating Hobbs, 11-9, 6-2.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE wisdom of the seeding committee in the Army singles championship, now being played at Columbia Country Club for a yard-high trophy entitled the Sheridan Cup, was manifest yesterday when Lieut. J. W. Strahan, defending champion; Lieut. D. D. Hedekin, last year's runner-up; Lieut. S. K. Robinson and Maj. J. Huntington Hills, the four seeded players, attained the semifinal round.

Each officer reached the round before the final hardly without the trouble of removing sweaters or buckling down to the strokes which they use in the direst of matches. Lieut. Robinson's opponent, Maj. Leland S. Hobbs, long noted as a doubles player in this precinct, gave the seeded star from San Diego something of a tussle before yielding 11—9, 6—2, but the three remaining defeated quarter-finalists did nothing to heckle the march of the favorites to their rightful round.

Robinson Troubled
By Hobb's Lob.

Making use of some sound doubles tactics, chief of which was a good lob and a presentable brand of steadiness, Hobbs forced the issue all the way in the first set, aided measurably by Robinson's impatience to end the point quickly. Coaxing his man into errors, Hobbs stayed abreast of his smoother-stroking opponent and was barely nosed out in the first chapter. In the second set Robinson resorted to a game more approximately like that of Hobbs, and was an easy winner, although he had to keep on his toes to turn the trick.

The stock of Lieut. Strahan to retain his title rose like a lubricated cavorocket yesterday as he swept through two opponents to gain the semifinal round of play in a day, aided, of course, by Lieut. Jack Helms' default to him in the first round. In the second round the defending champion easily outstroked Lieut. H. C. Gibner, 6—2, 6—2, and then disposed of the hard-hitting Lieut. F. W. Morrill, 6—4, 6—1.

Strahan showed all of his old-time steadiness in routing his two young opponents. Morrill's man-sized serves had him worried in the first set, but once he had adjusted his steady stroking to the exigences of the cannonball delivery, the issue was never in doubt.

Strahan, Robinson
In Feature Today.

Today Strahan meets Lieut. Robinson in the match which, if he safely passes, virtually will give him the title and the giant trophy for another year. Robinson will be the toughest nut to crack in this tournament, if he is on his game. Today's match brings together two radically different brands of tennis. Strahan's game is founded on the theory of letting his opponent make the errors. Robinson is a free and sometimes wild hitter and is just as much at home at the net as in the back court. It promises to be the best match of the tournament.

The other semifinal today sees Lieut. Dave Hedekin faced by Maj. J. S. Hills, with Lieut. Hedekin anjoying a slightly greater chance to gain the final than his hefty opponent. It is a match which probably will be fought out from the base line. Hedekin has the more orthodox strokes, but Hills' game is all but airtight in consistency.

Neither player was pressed yesterday to win. Hedekin, showing perhaps his best form of the tournament, albeit lacking a little confidence in his strokes, walked through Capt. Christenberry, 6—1, 6—4, while Hills tramped in the back of the court and permitted Lieut. Heiskell to knock the ball all over the lot, to win 6—1, 6—2.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Second round—Lieut. J. W. Strahan defeated Lieut. H. C. Gibner, 6—2, 6—2.
Second round—Lieut. Strahan defeated Lieut. F. K. Morrill, 6—4, 6—1; Lieut. S. K. Robinson defeated Maj. L. S. Hobbs, 11—9, 6—2; Lieut. D. D. Hedekin defeated Capt. C. W. Christenberry, 6—1, 6—4; Maj. J. H. Hills defeated Lieut. James Heiskell, 6—1, 6—2.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS.

Semifinal round (2 o'clock)—Lieut. Strahan vs. Lieut. Robinson; Lieut. Hedekin vs. Maj. Hills.

Ailment of Anderson Puzzles Physicians

Rochester, Minn., June 25 (A.P.)—Hartley "Hunk" Anderson, senior football coach at Notre Dame, must undergo further tests, Dr. C. J. Barrick, Mayo clinic physician, said today, because his case was difficult to diagnose.

Anderson came here yesterday to learn the cause of severe headaches he had been suffering since late in May.

"We have found it necessary to put him through additional tests before reaching conclusions as to his ailment," Dr. Barborka said.

and whomever he may meet Saturday if he wins tomorrow.

Apparently unannoyed by a broiling sun which wilted other competitors, the champion eliminated William Redmond of Notre Dame, 7 and 6.

Aycock, however, barely survived the day after building up a 6-hole lead with only nine to go. Tall Jesse Raineater of Tulane University and New Orleans, lost his air of nonchalance at that point and set out to get even. He won the tenth, halved the next two; won the thirteenth and fourteenth, halved the fifteenth and then won both the sixteenth and seventeenth. As they came to the final tee Aycock was 1 up. Both reached the green in three shots. The Tulane man aimed for a 12-foot curling putt, but missed it by half an inch. Aycock sank his four-footer and walked off victorious, 2 up.

Kepler won his match with Sidney Noyes of Yale rather handily, 5 and 3, but Florio had to fight all the way against James "Scotty" Reston, from Dayton, Ohio, captain-elect of the University of Illinois team, before winning, 4 and 2.

TWO UPSETS IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Grant, Jacobs Fall as Four Survive in Quest of Title.

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Haverford, Pa., June 25 (A.P.).—Finish of the quarter-final round of the national intercollegiate tennis singles championship found one Easterner, a Far Westerner, a Southerner and one from the Southwest surviving. The top seeded players fell in the round.

Bruce Barnes, of Texas, seeded No. 5, was the Southwesterner to ride through by virtue of his victory over Bryant Grant, jr., of the University of North Carolina, top seeded player, No. 10 in national ranking and national clay court champion, 4—6, 6—1, 6—1.

The Easterner is David Jones, of Columbia University, Eastern intercollegiate champion. He triumphed over Eddie Jacobs, of Pittsburg University, who was second in the seeding, 4—6, 7—5, 6—4.

Keith Gledhill, of Stanford University, representing the Far West, eliminated R. M. Ryan, captain of the Yale tennis team, in two sets, 6—3, 7—5. Gledhill, a tall youth, was third in the seeding.

Burwell Eliminates Wilbur Coen.

Teddy Burwell, of the University of the South, earned the right to carry farther the colors of the South by triumphing over Wilbur (Junior) Coen, of Kansas University, fourth seeded in the tourney. The scores were 6—2, 4—6, 6—3.

In the semifinals tomorrow Jones will meet Gledhill and Barnes encounters Burwell.

Grant was on the verge of collapsing in the third. The match was one of the largest quarter-final matches in the history of the tournament.

A surprise came in the double competition when Charley Green and Joseph Case, of the University of Pennsylvania eliminated Gledhill and Ted Easton, of Standford, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4, to be the first to arrive in the semifinals. Gledhill and Easton were seeded No. 3.

Louisa Stops Orange, 8-4, Avenging Defeat

Louisa, Va., June 25.—Louisa avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the Boosters from Orange County and won over them here today, 8 to 4.

The Boosters were held both hitless and scoreless until their sixth time at bat. Louisa made four runs in the first inning. The Boosters' tally came in the sixth frame as the result of four hits, aided by a trick play at second that turned into an error and allowed two runners to score. Ennis and Jones both made star catches in left field.

Alexandria Sports

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 25.—Director Prex Wilson, of the municipal swimming pool, announced today he had arranged the first water carnival of the season at the pool on Independence Day.

"Chunky" Travers, life guard, is acting chairman of the event, and will receive applications from all prospective contestants.

It was stated that there will be races for both men and women, girls and boys. The various events will be announced later.

This is the first of a series of municipal swimming carnivals that will be held this summer. The Alexandria pool is the regulation size and some records are expected to be made.

The next game in the Third Corps area championship series will be played at Fort Humphreys on Saturday when the Walter Reed tossers appear for a game with the Humphreys nine. Robert McDonald will umbire this contest.

The Del Ray Athletic Club Nine is practicing this week for its game with the Jefferson District Firemen on Sunday. This is one of the feature attractions for Jeff Williams' boys.

Charley Corbett, director of the St. Mary's Celtics, expects a record-breaking crowd at Sunday's game with the Howard A. French Nine. Buddy Zimmerman, Alexandria boy, is playing an outfield position with Bill Fiester's club.

The Celtics will practice on Friday to be set for the festivities. Lefty McIntire will toe the hill for the Alexandrians. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

Rookie Kline Hurls Red Sox to 8-3 Win

Cleveland, Ohio, June 25 (A.P.).—Bob Kline was touched for twelve hits by the Indians here today, but he kept them scattered, and the Red Sox won the game, 8 to 3.

Boston's clubbers opened their scoring with five runs in the fourth. They drove Roxie Lawson to the showers in that inning and Pete Jablonowski, who replaced him, fared little better.

By winning today, the Sox ended the series at two games apiece. Johnny Burnett, Cleveland shortstop, who was knocked unconscious by a batted ball in yesterday's encounter, was unexpectedly back in today's line-up.

Klein's 19th Homer Aids Phils to Beat Pirates

Philadelphia, June 25 (A.P.).—Clever pitching by Clise Dudley with Chuck Klein's nineteenth home run of the season and robust hitting by the rest of the Phillies enabled them to gain a 5 to 1 triumph over Pittsburgh today in the opening game of the series.

The big right-hander of the Phils allowed only one hit up till the seventh inning and did not permit a man to reach second base until the ninth.

Klein's nineteenth home run in the sixth inning with Bartell on second, gave the Phils enough runs to win the game.

D. C. Trio Eliminated In Maryland Golf

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 25.—It was dangerous to be a favorite at Rolling Road today, where the first two matches of the Maryland amateur golf championship were played; for, with few exceptions, the players looked upon as probable finalists were eliminated.

Among those who toppled in the rush of newcomers to the select places were the feared trio from Indian Spring, J. Monro Hunter, jr., Le Roy Sasscer and W. Byron Curtis.

All of the Capital representatives were eliminated in the first round. Hunter was defeated by J. W. Cooper (Baltimore Country Club), 2 up. Sasscer lost to Tom Cole (public parks), 3 and 2, while Curtis was the victim of F. A. Savage, jr. (Elkridge Hunt Club), 2 and 1.

YANKEES WIN PAIR FROM CHICAGO

Chapman Hero With Two Homers; Ruth Hits No. 16.

CHICAGO, June 25 (A.P.).—The Yankees hit a flock of home runs today, two of them coming from the bat of Ben Chapman, and Pipgras pitched a four-hit game to win his first victory of the year. These feats enabled the Yanks to win both games of a double-header from the White Sox, 10-9 and 9-2.

Babe Ruth clouted his sixteenth homer of the season in the first inning of the opener and Gehrig hit number seventeen in the seventh frame, but a sixteen-hit attack by the Hose kept them in the lead until the ninth, when Chapman poled his first homer with two on base to win the game.

In the second clash the Sox took an early lead on Yankee errors, but New York came back with a six-run rally in the third inning with Chapman's second homer as the leading blow and put the game away. Chapman batted in seven runs in the two games.

Petrolle Knocks Out Suarez in the Ninth

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, knocked out Justo Suarez, pride of the Argentine, in the ninth round of a ten round bout here tonight, practically assuring himself a chance to meet Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight championship.

The end came after 1 minute and 51 seconds of fighting in the ninth. Suarez, weakened from terrific body punishment, went down from a series of rights and lefts after a right to the jaw had sent him spinning into the ropes. The Argentine was counted out on one knee, apparently unable to rise.

Suarez weighed 138; Petrolle 139½.

If she wins she probably will meet Betty Nuthall in the quarter finals. Mrs. Van Ryn played impressively against Miss Trentham, her British opponent, winning 7—5, 6—2, the issue never being in doubt after the American got warmed up to her game.

Blues Beat Humphreys In Argentine Cup Polo

Fort Malletmen, Conceded 4 Goals, Bow by 11 to 5 in Opening Game; Whites-Artillery in War Department Tilt Today.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

WAR BLUES won the opening match of the Argentine polo cup tournament yesterday on the Potomac Park oval, eliminating the Fort Humphreys squad, 11 to 5. Only one of the Humphreys goals was earned as the victors conceded a four-goal handicap to the Virginians.

The usual large gathering of fans were treated to a spectacle for the first four chukkers, and even in the final two, when the Blues rode their way to the overwhelming victory, the visiting team was putting up a gallant fight.

Strobehm Accounts
For 4 Goals.

It was the flashing mallet of Col. Swift that tied the score after more than three periods of uphill battling, but the outstanding feature of the Blue victory was the suberb playing of Lieut. Strobehm at No. 4 position. Aside from playing a great defensive game, Strobehm counted for four of the War team's goals and two were of the spectacular variety.

The Humphrey four started as though it would give the Blues a real contest when Lieut. Cox matched the goal scored by Col. Chaffee in the first period. In the second the Blues showed to little better advantage with Col. Chaffee and Lieut. Strobehm scoring, the latter's marker being from about 30 yards out and from a difficult angle.

The fourth stanza was the beginning of the end for Humphreys. After some hard playing nea rthe center of the field, Col. Swift broke away for his equalizing goal and shortly after Maj. Blunt put the winners in the lead, never to be headed with a shot from a scramble.

Today's Game Opens
At 3:30 O'clock.

The fifth showed the Blue four at its best, Col. Chaffee scoring twice and Lieut. Strobehm once. The best goal of this period was Chaffee's second, which resulted from a neat pass off the mallet of Maj. Blunt.

Today the semifinal round of the War Department's annual invitation tournament will be played. Third Cavalry and Sixth Field Artillery will meet, starting at 3:30 o'clock, and the winner of this titl will play the War Whites Sunday for the championship.

INSECTS VIE TOMORROW IN LEAGUE

Wonder Boys to Play Georgetown in Vital Game.

TEAMS of The Post's Capital City League, Insect division, will conclude their first round of play tomorrow with three games on the Ellipse diamonds. The most important fray is the one in which the Wonder Boys meet their old foes, Georgetown. This contest is scheduled for 3 p. m. on the North Ellipse.

The Georgetowners, although out of the running for the first half title, can create a deadlock between the Wonders and the Lionels by taking the former into camp, while the latter is disposing of the Langdons, which should not be difficult. The game will mark the renewal of a bitter sandlot feud which originated in the play-off of the insect title of the Capital City League last year. The Wonder Boys finally emerged victorious in that memorable series, but they were forced to go twelve innings in the final game before conquering their rivals by a 10-8 score.

Both Bill Poole, of the champions, and "Buck" Trundle, of the runners-up, will have their strongest teams available for the meeting. Poole will send his star twirler, Ed Baker, to the mound in an effort to clinch the honors, while Trundle has two good ones in Beck and Murray to toss them over.

Orioles-Langdon Play
For Third Place.

The Orioles-Langdon battle will decide third place in the league standing. The former team has two postponed games remaining on its first half schedule and its opponent one.

It is important that all managers of the insect teams entered in the Capital City League submit birth certificates for all players registered with their respective teams and forward the same to the secretary of the league at The Post not later than next Wednesday. Players failing to meet this requirement will be barred from competition in the second half of the series.

STOCK PRICES SAG ON PROFITS-TAKING

Small Declines Mark Active Trading With Turnover of 4,300,000 Shares.

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—Stocks bowed to profit-taking today, but not until the advance in their market, as well as in most others, had gone further.

Although there was some irregularity to the final share quotations, the averages of leading share net changes were slightly lower than yesterday's. This loss was less than a point, however. It was an active market, involving the transfer of 4,300,000 shares, but volume was better sustained on the rise of the earlier hours than on the decline during the afternoon.

Cotton, copper, lead, zinc and rubber improved. Wheat eased and corn was about steady.

Foreign considerations continued to contribute to the market. The short-term credit to Germany to enable her to meet large midyear requirements and Secretary Mellon's Paris visit, the purpose of which, Wall street believed, was to persuade the French to alter their reported stand on the unpostponable Young plan payments, provided the background for a 1 to 7 point forenoon rise. Not long after noon it was rumored that the French cabinet either had resigned or was about to do so because of prospective objections to the Hoover plan in the national legislature, and traders hastily set about realizing. Denial of this report slowed the decline, but by this time buying enthusiasm had waned.

Copper Shares Gain.

Copper shares took the head lines, running up 1 to 3 points as domestic producers posted the third ¼-cent price increase of the week. Gains in the group were modified, but it was difficult to restrain the enthusiasm with which the issues had greeted their recently improved fortunes. Anaconda declared the regular dividend.

United States Steel set a new high for the recovery at 102, but closed at 98⅝, off 1⅜. American Can, Bethlehem, Radio, American Tobacco B, New York Central, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction and Union Pacific lost 1 to 2, while Westinghouse, American Telephone, Union Carbide, General Electric, General Motors, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio eased fractionally.

Auburn retained less than half of a 28-point hop that lifted it to 201. Case gave the shorts a squeeze and was up 2 net, although its extreme advance was nearly 7. Eastman, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, American & Foreign Power, Standard Oils of New Jersey and New York and Stone & Webster returned moderate gains.

The Reichsbank gave up gold heavily in the past week, bringing its losses for the fortnight to $200,000,000, while there were additions at both London and Paris. The reserve ratio of the Bank of England is now at 59 per cent and a reduction in the discount rate appears a possibility.

Loans Drop $13,000,000.

Even the wild stock market advances of last Saturday and Monday could not turn the tide in Federal Reserve brokers' loans which dropped $13,000,000. It was the tenth consecutive weekly decline. Apparently a substantial part of the rally on those two days was due to short covering.

Railroad earnings for May are not so encouraging, but executives of Western lines are counting on a heavy grain tonnage when the crops are moved. The presidents of both Missouri Pacific and Burlington spoke optimistically of these prospects.

Exchanges sagged, possibly reflecting foreign participation in our stock market. The German mark was a little heavy, while the Montreal rate showed renewed weakness, dipping to a new 1931 low. A $1,000,000 gold shipment was received from the Dominion.

Wheat's losses approximated a cent. Better weather was reported in the Northwest and the export demand was disappointing. Corn closed unchanged to half a cent lower. The gains in cotton were 35 to 60 cents a bale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 25 (A.P.).—Dominated by increasing movement of the new 1931 crop from the harvest fields in the producing States, wheat prices underwent material setbacks today. Receipts of new wheat at all markets totaled 657 cars, including 25 cars at Chicago. Despite fresh upturns of securities, speculative buyers backed away from wheat offerings, and paid slight attention to continued lack of any definite assurance that Government sponsored old crop domestic wheat holdings would be kept off the market.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛@1⅜ cents lower; corn, off to ½ cent up; oats, unchanged to ⅛@¼ cent advance, and provisions, 15 to 30 cents down.

Northward sweep of the wheat harvest was emphasized by announcement that cutting had commenced in Nebraska, and by Missouri advices that field operations had been hastened five days by hot weather. Kansas, the banner wheat State, reported harvest conditions ideal, and predictions were current that the next Government crop report would record much higher estimated yields than the June 1 forecast. Greatly augmented arrivals of newly harvested wheat next week were expected.

Slackness of North American wheat export business continued, notwithstanding that pessimistic Canadian crop reports were unabated, and that estimates of Argentina wheat acreage showed a drastic reduction of 30 per cent. Meanwhile, there were advices that Germany's 1931 wheat crop was expected to show 20 per cent increase, and that Russia's wheat seedings now totaled 61,500,000 acres, 5 per cent more than last year's final. Spread trades in which sales of wheat were balanced against equal purchases of corn served further to undermine wheat values.

Corn and oats displayed relative strength, and at one time December corn was 5⅜ cents above last week's low. Belief was expressed that in some sections the prevailing high temperatures and dearth of rain had lowered the condition of the new corn crop.

Provisions reflected weakness of hog values.

BONDS RECORD GAINS AFTER PROFITS RUSH

Some Recessions Noted on Top Prices; Foreigns Make Wide Upturns.

New York, June 26 (A.P.).—The bond market recorded further gains today, although some late profit taking caused some recessions from the day's rest.

The latter trend was noticeable in such obligations as American & Foreign Power 5s, St. Paul adjustment 5s, Erie Refunding and Improvement 5s, Texas 5s, of 1944 and Western Union 5s of 1951. However, the gains in the great majority of bonds were sufficient to permit them to close higher.

Foreign obligations provided many of the largest gains. Australian, Argentine, Colombian and certain Brazilian and German issues were particularly strong. Net advances among them ranged up to 5¾ points, which was the amount of appreciation in the Argentine 5s of 1945. Fractional gains were common. Japanese 5½s and 6½s eased off. After the close a $22,800,000 offering of public utility bonds, guaranteed by the Japanese government, was announced.

Loans of the United States Government were irregular. Trading was concentrated largely in the new Treasury 3½s of 1946-49, which closed 9-32 of a point lower.

Domestic corporate obligations closed with irregular gains. Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, Crock Island refund 4s, Chicago Great Western 4s, Denver & Rio Grande 4½s, Florida East Coast 5s, which were unusually active. Missouri Pacific series I 5s and Seaboard Consolidated 6s were active rails to close higher. New York Central new 4½s were active, and under selling pressure toward the close. Several issues of the Illinois Central lost ground also.

Shell Union Oil 5s, with warrants, were one of the most active industrials and closed with a net advance of 2¼ points. Shell Pipe Line 5s and Shell Union 5s of 1927 made generous gains also. This movement presumably was a belated response to the recent upward movement in oil stocks. Dodge Bros. convertible 6s, Goodrich 6s, Gulf States Steel 5s, International Paper, series A, refunding 5s, International Match 5s of 1941 and Certainteed 5½s closed higher after active trading.

BETTER INSURANCE AGENTS ARE SOUGHT

Law Will Be Urged to Raise Qualifications of Men Handling Life Policies.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

In the interest of both public and the profession, legislation raising requirements for life insurance agents before they are issued licenses to solicit business in the District of Columbia will be sought at the next session of Congress by the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association.

This was learned following the first meeting of the association's new administrative year held yesterday at the Carlton Hotel. A committee composed of Joseph A. Marr, chairman of the association's newly formed legislative committee, and Edward Brashears have been appointed to investigate license legislation of other States and have a law drafted suitable to the District.

The kind of law desired, it was explained, will not be unreasonable in its requirements, but one insisting on higher qualifications on the part of applicants, resulting in the licensing of salesmen with a more profound knowledge of their profession and its responsibilities.

Higher Qualifications Needed.

Present requirements in the District are not believed high enough. Applicants are asked, among other questions, whether they have read the District insurance laws; what experience they have had in the profession; whether they have ever been refused a license or had it revoked; whether they have been convicted of any crime or offense and whether, if licensed, they will agree not to misrepresent conditions of contracts or rebate any part of premiums or commissions. More technical information determining the applicant's knowledge of the profession is believed advisable.

The idea was outlined to members by David S. Bethune, newly elected president of the association, who announced it as one of the policies of his administration. Standing committees for the new administrative year of the Bank Women's Club of Washington were announced last night by President Mabel V. Royce, Washington Loan & Trust Co., at the club's quarterly business meeting, held at the Old English Coffee Shoppe.

Curb Review

New York, June 25 (A.P.).—An extension of the rally was followed by profit taking on the curb today. Gains were either lost or shaded, and some favorites closed with moderate losses. Sales approximated 690,000 shares, 50,000 less than yesterday.

Oils were the leaders while the market was going up during the morning and early afternoon, and also offered the best resistance to the realizing. Although Humble lost all of a 3 point rise, Vacuum and Gulf held up well. Standard of Nebraska jumped 2¾. Cities Service, after touching 13½, closed at 12⅞, off ¼.

Utilities failed to exhibit much enthusiasm over the advance and leaders reacted rather easily. Declines in Electric Bond & Share, United Light "A," Brazilian Traction and American & Foreign Power warrants amounted to at least a point. There were, however, net gains in American Commonwealths "B," International Superpower and Northern States "A."

Metal stocks showed early strength. Newmont advanced 2 points, but its brisk rise of the week attracted profit taking and it finished 2 lower. Consolidated Mining and Smelting of Canada, an inactive, jumped 28½ points on a few sales. New Jersey Zinc was up 1⅝ net. Roan Antelope lost a gain of 1¼.

Aluminum of America had an active turnover, moving to 146, but the 12-point rise was entirely lost. Anglo-Chilean Nitrate, Western Air Express, Northwest Yeast, Ford Limited, Hazeltine and Pittsburgh Plate Glass improved 1 to 3. Ford of Canada "B" was up 7½ net and Spiegel May Stern preferred gained 5½. Parker Rust & Insurance Co. of North American were off a couple of points.

Investment trusts were generally dull.

NURSE DEATH TRIAL NEARS CONCLUSION

Elliott Hathaway Defense Lays Girl's Strangling to Artificial Tooth.

Newport, R. I., June 25 (A.P.).—The trial of Elliott R. Hathaway for murder of Verna Russell appeared near conclusion tonight, as Chief of Defense Counsel George Hurley indicated he intended to close the defense tomorrow.

The entire session today was devoted to introduction of testimony of two medical experts in support of the defense contention that the pretty student nurse choked to death on a fragment of artificial tooth, and that she was not strangled by Hathaway.

Dr. Thomas A. Gonsales, acting chief medical examiner of New York City, ended his testimony by saying that all the most important evidences of manual strangulation were missing in the medical report of the girl's death.

Dr. Frances P. McCarthy, Boston pathologist and specialist in diseases of the skin, gave as his opinion that death was due to spasms resulting from a fragment of artificial tooth which lodged in the air passage and set up an irritation. A fragment of an artificial dental bridge was found near the entrance to Verna Russell's larynx when her body was exhumed, about a month after death.

The State contends the girl was strangled by Hathaway.

Cross-examination of Dr. McCarthy by E. W. Day, assistant to Attorney General Benjamin McLyman, the prosecutor, indicated the State may attempt to show the dental bridge was not dislodged until after death, and that the fragment could not, therefore, have significance. The defense to date has offered no explanation of dislodgement of the bridge.

The defendant's parents, State Representative and Mrs. Louis Hathaway, and his twin brother, Alden, are expected to testify tomorrow as the last witnesses in his defense.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

MONTGOMERY'S TAX RATE REMAINS $1.30

County Commissioners Sign Levy and Advertise Bond Issue.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post. 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Montgomery County's annual levy for 1931-1932 was signed yesterday by the county commissioners, who at the same time announced that the tax rate for the county would remain $1.30 per $100 assessed value, and ordered advertisement for bids on an issue of county bonds totaling $1,055,000.

The levy is substantially the same as the tentative budget which was made public last week. It has been approved by the committee on finance and budget of the Montgomery County Civic Federation and the Montgomery Government Club. The rate on securities also will remain at the same figure as last year, 30 cents on each $100 valuation.

The levy totals $1,184,341.08, and is the largest county budget since Montgomery County was organized. It shows an increase of $72,139.93 above the 1930 levy, for which the same tax rate was assessed. The county commissioners have been able to balance the budget without raising the tax rate because of a $3,000,000 increase in the taxable basis caused by the addition of new property to the tax rolls. This increase will raise the county's taxable basis to $84,558,190. The increase is 50 per cent more than the estimated increase relied on by the Montgomery County Civic Federation, the county commissioners and the Montgomery Government Club in approving bond issues for school, road and bridge construction last January.

The levy provides for an increase of $53,857 for the public schools; $17,945 for the police force, an increase of $6,000 for the employment of auditors and the salary increases and new positions created by the last session of the State Legislature. The largest item is the one for public schools, for which $498,544 is allotted. The second largest is for county, school, road and improvement bonds, amounting to $358,433.02, and the third largest is for the maintenance of the police force, $65,885.

The full list of budgetary items follows:

Attorneys, $5,370; assessors and assessing, $8,400; auditors, $6,000; building inspectors, $5,500; bonds and interest (general county school and roads), $358,433.02; clerk of circuit court, $2,193.45; circuit court expenses, $10,360; county commissioners and clerks, $25,600; disbursement committee, $3,400; county treasurer and assistants, $19,750; county home, $6,000; elections, $15,000; fuel, $2,000; indigent insane, $8,000; insolvencies, $1,000; incorporated towns and special taxing areas, $18,548.52; janitors and elevator operators, $4,140; juvenile court, $3,000; jail warden, $900; jail expenses, $3,000; law library, circuit court, $300; local and State board of health, $2,250; Montgomery County roads (repairs), $33,420; Montgomery County farm bureau, $1,500; Maryland training schools, $5,600; Montgomery County home demonstration, $1,495; Montgomery County cattle testing, $3,000; orphans court, $3,000; pauper coffins, $2,384.75; public schools, $498,544; pensions (First to Seventh Districts included), $11,894; pensions general (Social Service League), $10,000; police court and police force, $65,885; supervisor of assessments, $3,600; supervisor of county aid, $2,700; sheriffs, $9,400; removed court cases, $226.50; road machinery, $4,283; taxes in error, $157.04; volunteer fire departments, $14,500; fund for contingent expenses, $3,606.80. Total items of levy, $1,184,341.08.

The total of tax rates for each election district, including the special district rates, the county general rate and State rate, are as follows: First, $1.68; Second, $1.62; Third, $1.73; Fourth, $1.64; Fifth, $1.61; Sixth, $1.66; Seventh, $1.57; Eighth, $1.61; Ninth, $1.62; Tenth, $1.61; Eleventh, $1.65; Twelfth, $1.68; Thirtenth, $1.59.

In addition to the State and county taxes, there are several towns and communities which are classed as special taxing areas and which levy an additional tax on the persons living in their confines, as follows: Section No. 2, Chevy Chase, 30 cents; Section No. 3, Chevy Chase, 35 cents; Section No. 4, Chevy Chase, 45 cents; Section No. 5, Chevy Chase, 30 cents; Martins Addition to Chevy Chase, 30 cents; Friendship Heights, 30 cents; Drummond, 35 cents; Northwest Park, 35 cents; Oakmont, 5 cents; North Chevy Chase, 25 cents; Chevy Chase View, 10 cents; Battery Park, 13 cents. Other special taxes in addition are Silver Spring Fire Department area, 3 cents; Chevy Chase Fire Department area, 15 cents; Bethesda Fire Department area, 10 cents; Montgomery County Suburban District area, 30 cents; Maryland-Washington Metropolitan District, 10 cents, and sanitary tax, 7 cents.

Because of special taxes, the following communities have different rates from the district in which they are located: Woodmont, $1.84; First and Third Precincts, Thirteenth District, $1.59; Second Precinct, Thirteenth District, $1.58, Thirteenth District special 4 cents rate applies to First, Third, Thirteenth and Second Precincts.

The commissioners yesterday ordered that the advertisements for bids on an issue of $1,055,000 in county bonds be inserted in county newspapers. The bids are to be opened July 14, at noon, in the commissioners' office in the Rockville courthouse, at which time the bonds will be sold to the highest bidder, provided the commissioners consider the offer an adequate price for the issue.

The bonds are to be dated August 1, 1931, and will bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent per annum, payable semiannually o nthe first days of February and August each year until the payment of the principal sum, the payments of intenrest and principal to be made at the Farmers Banking & Trust Co. at Rockville.

The bonds are issued under the authority of an act of the last session of the General Assembly and are due and payable $20,000 in each of the years 1933 to 1937, inclusive; $25,000 in each of the years 1938 to 1940, inclusive; $30,000 in each of the years 1941 to 1950, inclusive; $50,000 in each of the years 1951 to 1960, inclusive, and $40,000 in each of the years 1961 to 1962.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $1,000 or by cash. The bonds are to finance a $311,-000 school construction program and road construction financing. The issue is to be known as the "Montgomery County genenral construction bonds of 1931."

More than $3,000 has been contributed to the found for the publication of a booklet advertising the advantages, residential and commercial, of Montgomery County, it was disclosed yesterday by George P. Sacks, chairman of the finance committee of the Greater Montgomery County, Inc., which has charge of the publication of the booklet.

Each of the chambers of commerce of the county and a number of other civic and business organizations have delegates to Greater Montgomery County, Inc., which evolved from a resolution presented to the Rockville Chamber of Commerce by Walter Funderburk and which later spread to the other chambers and organizations.

The finance committee is conducting a drive for $25,000 to finance the publication and distribution of the booklet in connection with the celebration of the George Washington Bicentennial next year.

Public utilities operating in the county have contributed liberally to the fund, J. Bond Smith, chairman of the public utilities subcommittee, reported. They have forwarded contributions as follows: Potomac Electric Power Co., $750; Washington Railway & Electric Co., $250; Glen Echo Park Co., $250; Georgetown Gas Light Co. of Montgomery County, $75; Capital Traction Co., $100; Washington Rapid Transit Co., $50; Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., $250. No check has been received from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad as yet, but it is understood that this utility also plans a handsome contribution, but first must have the matter approved by the board of directors in Baltimore.

The chambers of commerce each will contribute liberally and other county enterprises are coming forward with aid to the fund. It is expected that the entire fund will be subscribed in plenty of time for the publication of the booklet. The various committees are now engaged in arranging material for the booklet, which will tell in detail of the various historical and beauty spots and the other advantages of the county.

Milburn Read, 15 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Blair Read, of Silver Spring, was seriously injured yesterday when thrown by a horse he was riding at Four Corners, Md. The boy was taken to Takoma Park Hospital and Sanitarium by Paul Curran, of Silver Spring.

Examination showed that his leg had been broken and that he was badly bruised on the body. He was given first aid by Dr. W. R. Haynes, of Silver Spring. The youth, who was graduated from Takoma-Silver Spring Junior High School this year, was riding a saddle horse when it shied and threw him.

James M. Bowling, jr., has been elected president of the North Woodside Citizens Association. Other officers are Mrs. W. H. Ourand, vice president; Robert Benner, treasurer; J. T. Williams, recording secretary; George Jones, corresponding secretary; J. B. Matre, W. H. Reynolds, Robert Benner, James M. Bowling, jr., E. A. Brown and E. C. Algire, delegates and alternates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation.

A free band concert will be given tonight at 8 o'clock at Willis Hall on Columbia road, to Laurel by the Montgomery County Band and Chorus.

A benefit moving picture show is to be held Monday night at the Seco Theater in Silver Spring under the auspices of the Silver Spring Lions Club for the benefit of the fund to purchase an inhalator for the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department.

The inhalator has been ordered by Dr. G. A. Scully, a member of the club, and will be on display in the window of the Acme Candies Store. It will cost approximately $250 with all attachments. The apparatus is to be used in rescue work by the fire department. Dr. Scully will instruct the firemen in its use.

Plan Outing for Children.

Gordonsville, Va., June 25 (Special).—Approximately 100 children from the tenement districts of New York will be placed in homes throughout Orange as guests for a period of two weeks, beginning July 6, if efforts of local workers are successful.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AFTER MR. LONGFELLOW.

THE shades of night were falling fast
As though an Alpine village passed
A grouch who bore, 'mid snow and ice
A banner with the strange device—
"Good times are o'er."
His brow was sad, his face was long,
His face was weak, his voice was strong,
And like a foghorn through the night
His tongue proclaimed this warning trite—
"Hoard all your dough!"
In happy homes nearby the light
Of household fires gleamed warm and bright;
But none of these he seemed to see
As he proclaimed quite lustily—
"The country's sunk!"
"You're in reverse," the old man cried,
"I think you've lost your nerve and pride;
"Quite yellow is, I think, your hide."
And loud that pessimist replied—
"Sell everything!"

* * * *

"OH, STAY," the Hoover said, "and rest
Thy weary head upon this breast!"
A tear stood in his dull gray eye,
But still he answered with a sigh—
"Beware the Reds!"
"Look up and see the skies of blue—Behold the sun is breaking through."
This was the peasant's last farewell
As down the gulch he heard a yell—
"We're on the rocks!"
At break of day as wiser men
Walked through the valley and the glen,
They paused amid constructive talk
To hear a gasping, dying squawk—
"The future's black!"
A traveler by the faithful hound
Half buried in the snow was found,
Still grasping in his hand of ice
A banner with the bum advice—
"Squeeze every cent!"
There, when the sun rose, lay the dope,
Lifeless (or nearly so) I hope;
He willed his brain with pointless pride
To scientists who found inside—
Excelsior.

ELMER ON THE WAR DEBT SUSPENSION.

TELLING Germany she need not bother about making any war debt payments to us for a year is just about like cancelling them, insists Elmer Twitchell. "After the year is up Uncle Sam will probably be a good fellow and suspend payments another year," says Elmer. "This will go on until about 1935 and by that time Germany will have shaken off the whole thought of payments so completely that when Washington asks 'How about paying a little something on those war debts?' she will give a surprised look and demand 'What war debts?' "

This department's notion of something highly ironical is a wounded American war veteran, who has waited years for the Government to recognize his claims for compensation, picking up a paper and reading that Uncle Sam has decided not to make Germany pay any war debts this year.

ALEXANDRIANS HEAR BUTLER ON CHINESE

Marine Commander Speaks at Kiwanis Club; Lauds Virginians of 1776.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU. 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. M. C., was the speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club held yesterday in the George Mason Hotel, and his talk was interesting and entertaining to the 100 members of the club and their friends who assembled to hear him, many outsiders being invited on account of the presence of Gen. Butler.

Harry F. Kennedy, in introducing the speaker, stated the slogan of the Kiwanis Club is "We Build."

Gen. Butler spoke particularly of China and conditions in that country, and the philosophical mind of the Chinese, and said that the undercurrent there is a splendid lesson to those in this country in the acceptance of unavoidable conditions. He compared the differences between Chinese and American roads, and said an old man in that country had said to him that America is a place of signs, road signs for every curve and for every bad stretch, also speed limit signs, and in China such were not needed; that if a car was not to be driven over a certain limit, the road was made rough so the travel would be impeded or wreck the car. He said the Chinese never try to put over anything that is against human nature, and they have a written history of over 4,000 years as a guide.

In the course of his remarks Gen. Butler said the United States is the only nation on earth that can disband millions of men and not have rioting. He said this country is becoming mechanized; that machines are taking the place of men, and that is not allowed in China; that the famous Chinese wall was built in a time of depression; and while it would have been cheaper to have fed the men, by giving them the work of building the wall they were occupied and had no time for revolution or rioting. He said the Chinese idea is that the only thing in life worth having is happiness, and this country will have to do a lot of thinking to reach that stage of philosophy. He quoted a Chinese saying, "Always keep your face to the Sun and you will never see the shadows."

Gen. Butler paid tribute to the people of Virginia, saying: In Virginia were the men who won the independence of America. He said he came of Pennsylvania Quaker stock and that he does not know what was meant when it was said a Quaker would not fight.

Roger C. Sullivan, president of the club, presided. Invocation was by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall. Two guests were introduced, Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, and Fred C. Goodnow, president-elect of the Rotary Club. Harry W. Wade introduced Chick Godfrey, "the singing Leatherneck," who sang the Marines' Hymn and other selections. The program was broadcast over Station WJSV.

President Sullivan announced that the meeting next week will be Sons' and Daughters' Day.

John A. Lannon, jr., was awarded the cross of honor, the highest award given by the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade for meritorious work during the year, at the second annual convention of that organization held in Richmond this week. Alexandrians who attended the meeting were John Lannon, Frank Beall, Martin Violette, Emmett Jenkins, Miss Margaret Gorman, Miss Fannie Kelly, Miss Marie Kraft, Miss Mary Carne, Miss Patricia Griffith, Miss Leona Chisholm and Miss Harriet Thurgood.

John Ferris, Negro, will go on trial in the Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls, presiding, today for the second time, on the charge of fatally shooting William Johnson, Negro, on July 27, 1923. Ferris made his escape after the shooting, and a few months ago was captured in Philadelphia and brought back here for trial. On May 25 a jury failed to agree on a verdict and a new trial was ordered. A venire of 20 has been drawn, from whom 12 jurymen will be selected.

James Thomas, 22, of Toledo, Ohio, and Wallace Walton, 21, of Greensboro, N. C., both Negroes, arrested by Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims and Detective Kennedy, of the R. F. & P. Railroad, are being held on suspicion of having broken into a box car and stolen three pairs of shoes. Capt. W. W. Campbell yesterday received a telegram from J. J. McCarron, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad police, asking that the men be held.

The police state that when the men were arrested each had on a new pair of shoes, and that they had just disposed of another pair for 25 cents.

C. Page Waller, of this city, has been elected vice president of the Virginia Retail Merchants Association, and Julian F. Chauncey was chosen a district vice president. They have returned from Richmond, where they attended the State convention of the association.

Police Capt. W. W. Campbell and Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims Wednesday night seized 60 half-gallon jars of whisky, in a rowboat at Roberts' wharf, between King and Prince streets. The liquor is said to have been brought here from Maryland only a short time before the officers located and seized it. The owners were not apprehended.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence yesterday entered the Alexandria Hospital, where he will undergo an operation today. He expects to remain in the hospital about two weeks.

Danville Y.M.C.A. Asks $2,000 Special Support

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 25.—Directors of the Danville Young Men's Christian Association are facing a serious financial dilemma in curtailed revenue, and it has been decided to raise $2,000 to sustain its operation.

Financial shortage has created no emergency situation, however, and, according to D. L. Buchanan, there are funds with which to operate until fall. Reduced revenue is because of a falling off in payments on memberships and a reduced income from rented dormitories.

Gov. Pollard to Attend Annual Family Reunion

Richmond, Va., June 25 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard will leave here at 3 p. m. tomorrow for the second annual reunion of the Pollard family to be held at Wharton Grove, on the Rappahannock Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The governor says he may be a little off at tennis, but he can pitch a "wicked" quoit.

Munro, of the California Institute of Technology, and "Public Personnel Administration and Good Government" is to be discussed by Charles P. Messick, of the New Jersey Civil Service Commission, president of the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada.

Adult education is to be subject of a special conference Wednesday. Dr. Sidney B. Hall, Virginia superintendent of public instruction, will speak in the morning on the professional school worker and adult education, and Dr. J. F. What the White House Conference has been trying to do for child welfare will be told by Dr. Kelly Thursday afternoon. Friday there will be two other speakers, Dr. A. J. Carlson, professor of physiology in the University of Chicago, who is to speak on "Child Health and Protection," and Dr. William J. Ellis, New Jersey commissioner of institutions and agencies, whose subject will be "The Handicapped."

Advance registration indicates attendance at the institute will be much greater this summer than in any previous year.

Attempt to Burn School Is Balked

Hagerstown Firemen Find Oil-Soaked Waste in New Structure.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 25.—An attempt to fire the new Catholic High School under construction here was frustrated early today.

A ball of oil-soaked waste, attached to a stick, was set afire and tossed into the partially constructed building, which is a part of the present Parochial School and St. Mary's Catholic Church, firemen learned after extinguishing the blaze.

Clarence A. Little, chauffeur for the family of former Gov. William T. Hamilton, discovered the fire and summoned a fire company. His wife, ill, had left her bed, and glancing from the window saw what appeared to be a ball of fire tossed by some one into the building.

SOUTHERN VETERANS RENAME GEN. BISHOP

Confederates End Reunion at Charlottesville With Parade.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 25.—Their numbers sadly diminished, but with their undimmed valor reflected in the resounding yells echoing through the streets, Virginia's Confederate Veterans closed their forty-fourth annual reunion today with a colorful parade that started at the University and ended in a reverent tribute before Shady's equestrian statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee, in Lee Park.

As five grand camp officers stood at attention in the center of a hollow square formed by the Monticello Guard and American Legion Drum Corps, the flags of the two organizations were dipped under the upraised hoof of the charger and the strains of "The Colors" preceded the spirited rendering of "Dixie" by the Charlottesville and Orange Bands.

The grand camp, at its final business session, reelected Gen. Carter R. Bishop, of Petersburg, commander. Brigade commanders chosen were R. O. Eddins, Orange; Dr. Charles F. Russell, Herndon, and W. H. Wolfe, Charlottesville. J. Wellington Spitler, Staunton, was named inspector general; E. G. McGehee, Charlotte Court House, quartermaster general, and Dr. James C. Reed, Blackstone, chaplain.

Selection of a place for next year's reunion was left to Grand Commander Bishop.

The Sons of Veterans established a precedent by electing a veteran, Col. R. M. Colvin, of Harrisonburg, as commander to succeed Albert S. Bolling, Charlottesville.

Col. Colvin, of Lee Martz Camp, Harrisonburg, is 86 years old. He entered the Confederate Army in the spring of 1862 with Company E, Eleventh Virginia Infantry, Kemper's Brigade, Pickett's Division, Longstreet's Corps. He is vice president of the Virginia Battlefield Markers Association.

Brigade commanders elected were George Peed, Norfolk; Robert M. Rainey, Petersburg; O. W. Huddleson, Roanoke; J. Edward Beale, Remington, and Col. Heirome Opie, Staunton.

Maj. Gen. William McK. Evans, Richmond, announced that the Charlottesville Municipal Band has been selected as the official band for the Virginia Division, United Confederate Veterans, for next year.
